SPECIAL SESSION LIKELY IN STOCK PLAGUE FIGHT

Governor Will Issue Call if Legal and Definite Plan Is Offered for Legislative Action

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—If "a definite, legal, intelligent program is prepared" for legislative action to assist in winning the fight being waged in California against the foot and mouth disease, and to reimburse stock growers whose cattle are being slaughtered, Gov. Richardson will call a special session of the Legislature, he announced in a statement today.

[illegible] business in the State is interested in stopping the ravages of the disease," the Governor declared in pointing out the gravity of the situation, and the necessity of finding a way to permit the payment of per half the compensation to the diseased stock which is being killed to check the spread of the disease. The Federal government is ready to pay the other half of the cost."

PLAN DENOUNCED

A committee of citizens appointed at a conference Friday, which should point out the legislation to be adopted and eliminate the possibility of its constitutionality being questioned if a session of the Legislature is recommended, has been declared.

Statement follows:

"The State Agricultural Department and the Federal department are doing good work in the effort to control the dread foot and mouth disease among cattle, sheep and swine. This disease must be stamped out and the efforts of State and Federal authorities is being exerted [illegible]

"Business men of San Francisco do not seem to appreciate the gravity of the situation. Should the disease spread the port of San Francisco will be put under quarantine and millions of dollars lost. Business in California is interested in stopping the ravages of the disease. Fruit men, real estate men, retailers, bankers, manufacturers are in peril along with [illegible]

COST IS UNKNOWN

"At present time it is not known what the epidemic will cost. The State has already authorized [illegible] to be paid from the emergency fund for quarantine purposes, but the State officials have [illegible] to pay the money to pay the owners for diseased stock [illegible] Dalrymple who have been condemned and killed [illegible] compensated. The Federal government stands ready to [illegible] A way must be found to permit the State to pay [illegible]

SPECTER OF WAR RISES

Blood Saturnalia for Europe

Troubled Nations Gird For Sanguinary Conflict of Immediate Future

Germany Arms Covertly for Struggle to Satiate Her Lust for Vengeance

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

(Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, March 9.—With the World War a little more than five years past history, a foreign army on German soil and Europe in a maelstrom of economic disorganization, the European peoples again are peering anxiously into the immediate future at the specter of a new war.

In France, in England, in Germany, and in the maze of small states which divide the map of Europe, the best brains and the best talents of the nations again are being mobilized for preparations which inevitably must lead to new flames of hostilities, new bloodshed and new destruction.

Nowhere does hatred and a desire for revenge flame more highly than in Germany today. After a year of provocations, carefully propagated "questions of honor," misery and bitter resentment, the whole nation is preparing in thought while its military leaders prepare in deed for the day when France and Germany will again meet on the battle field.

There is no question of Germany making war in the next year or

SEEK FRANC PANACEA

French Cabinet Hears Bankers

Latter Asked to Formulate Plans to Halt Drop in Exchange

Ministers Promise to Rush Reforms Now Pending in Parliament

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, March 9.—The Cabinet met at Elysees Palace with President Millerand this morning to consider extraordinary measures to be taken to prevent further depreciation of the franc.

The governor and directors of the Bank of France were present and were asked to submit proposals.

The government promised the bankers it would rush through financial reforms now before Parliament, and the bank officials promised to continue their solid support of the government and take every possible measure to strengthen the franc.

MINISTERS CONFER

The meeting followed a long private conference between Premier Poincare, War Minister Maginot, Minister of Finance Lasteyrie, and Minister of Justice Collorat last night after the Senate Finance Commission had rejected three new laws, substituting another formula, which however, permits the Premier to make 1,000,000,000 francs (about $40,000,000) economies.

Gustav Herve, editor of Victoire, a close friend of President Millerand and a former strong supporter of the government, who is demanding establishment of a dictatorship during the crisis, made the following proposals to the government today.

1.—Requisition of wheat and a tax on bread so it does not increase the price established, and if necessary, bread cards.

2.—Requisition of sugar and a tax on it, and the reissuing of sugar cards to suppress sweets, cakes and candy.

WOULD TAX FOREIGNERS

3.—A tax on exports on a gold franc basis. A head tax in gold francs on every foreigner in France.

4.—Prohibition under pain of a prison sentence of any Frenchman or foreigner purchasing foreign securities or moneys, except through certain banks, which first would verify whether they really needed it for imports or other bona fide reasons.

5. To forbid the purchase abroad of any raw materials and foodstuffs not indispensable in national life—for instance, wood pulp, thereby reducing newspapers to two pages, like during the war.

FOR LIFTING LABOR BAN

6. To suspend the eight-hour working law, the application of which took 100,000 peasants from agricultural work, thereby increasing wages and the cost of living, leaving the country lacking manual labor to till the soil.

7. Not to issue another bond for national defense, suspend the reconstruction of the devastated regions and for final liquidation obtain a loan of 25,000,000,000 to 50,000,000,000 francs ($1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000.)

8. To liquidate the monopoly on matches, tobacco, railways, telegraphs and telephones.

9. To organize a new cabinet of non-political character, but composed of men who are specialists in business, and insist that Parliament grant the right to issue decrees and, if not, dissolve Parliament and go before the country on the issue.

BLUE LAW INFRACTIONS LAND 14,000 IN TOILS

Jersey City Gets Shock as Police Chief Resurrects Rules of Past for Sabbath Day

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JERSEY CITY (N. J.) March 9.—A large section of Jersey City's population is threatened with arrest for violation of the blue laws. More than 14,000 citizens were listed today for violation of ancient laws for the observance of the Sabbath day.

Several weeks ago the forces of civic righteousness pleaded for the operation of the Sunday-closing laws in respect to motion-pictures and other shows.

Finally Chief of Police Richard T. Batterby pointed out to the impassioned advocates of those particular sections of the closing laws that if all the sections of the law were enforced Jersey City would be in a bad way.

Today's move apparently was intended thoroughly to impress this point upon the reformers. Shortly after dawn a special force of policemen, under orders from headquarters moved about the city taking down the names of those who had violated the blue laws in one way or another.

Reports early tonight fixed the number of listed violators at something over 14,000, including grocers, street car men, newspaper vendors, drug-store proprietors, bus drivers, automobile owners and others who transgressed merely by sweeping their sidewalks or front porches. Chief Batterby's men even caught men at work fixing fires in the church of one of the leading proponents of blue law enforcement.

Tomorrow morning all these potential cases, together with a long list of motion-picture exhibitors and other violators will be assembled for presentation to the grand jury. It was announced that it was the police chief's purpose to enforce all blue laws if any of the old statutes are to be enforced.

INVESTIGATE FINANCING

Canadian Bond Deals Under Fire; Explained by ex-Fiscal Agent, Now Here

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORONTO (Ont.) March 9.—Charges that Peter Smith, Treasurer of the Province of Ontario, paid $800,000 in excess commissions to brokers who acted as purchasing agents for the provincial government, in redeeming tax-exempt Ontario bonds worth $15,000,000 at par, are made here by William H. Price, who succeeded Smith as provincial Treasurer. A public inquiry into the transactions out of which the charges grew will open here tomorrow.

No trace can be found of the Provincial Securities Corporation, which sold millions of bonds to the Ontario government, or of Charles Snyder, its director. It is thought the corporation may have been formed by some of those entrusted with financial business for the government, in order to obtain for themselves the profits which were to be gained.

Andrew H. Pepall, formerly of Toronto and when living here, right hand man to ex-Treasurer Smith, is now residing in Los Angeles. As agent for the provincial government, he bought $9,000,000 worth of bonds in the London market and turned them over to Smith. H. G., his brother, is connected with Jarvis & Co., a Toronto bond house, also active in the deal.

PEPALL SEEN HERE

Andrew H. Pepall, formerly financial agent for the Ontario government, is now president of The Long Beach Glass Company, and lives at 310 South Irving Boulevard, Los Angeles. He denied here last night any knowledge of the Provincial Securities Corporation, or of Charles Snyder, but talked with the greatest freedom of his share in the purchase by the Ontario government, in the spring of 1920, of tax-exempt bonds valued at approximately $9,000,000 Canadian money.

"That little episode," he said last night, "was one of the proudest in my life. Sir Thomas White, one of the foremost financiers of Canada, said in the Toronto Club, after it was all over, that it was perhaps the cleverest deal he had ever known.

"Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer, was my good and trusted friend. He may have fallen into errors of judgment, but I shall be surprised to learn that he ever did anything which would render him liable to such serious charges as are said to be hanging over him.

"At this distance, the attack made on him by his successor has all the earmarks, as I see it, of an attempt by the Conservatives to make it appear that Smith, who stepped into office off his farm, threw money to the birds and that no farmer government is fit to return to power.

"I went to London in the spring of 1920 as a duly accredited agent of the provincial government. My powers were confirmed by an Order

Old Churches May be Torn Down and Shipped Across Seas to America

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, March 9.—Americans, without leaving their native shores, some day may attend services in the fog-stained churches of England's metropolis, for it has been proposed to remove a score which are not now used to various cities of the world bound by religious ties to the Church of England.

The proposal was made by Edward Page Gaston, who was unsuccessful in his attempt to return the body of the Indian Princess Pocahontas to Virginia. He has been given support by some Americans who see another way in which to manifest the neighborly feeling between the English-speaking peoples.

Among the condemned churches are many products of the architectural genius of Wren; some are pre-Reformation, and all are associated with some phase of national or international history. Their congregations have been absorbed by others of the 185 Church of England edifices in London.

The old churches occupy valuable property and their trustees decided they shall be torn down and the ground sold.

Mr. Gaston is communicating with organizations in cities of the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand and his efforts may result in some of the churches being dismantled and shipped overseas.

NOTHING BUT COOLIDGE

Delegate Score Is 127 to 0

Hiram Fails to Get Single Pledge in Ballots of Seven States

President Has No Visible Opposition Except in Dakotas

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Coolidge, 127; Hiram Johnson, 0. This is the score to date in the contest for the election of delegates to the Republican National Convention at Cleveland, June 10.

The 127 delegates so far named, all pledged to the President's nomination, are largely from three Western States and the border State of Kentucky. The elected delegates are scattered as follows: Iowa, 29; Kentucky, 26; South Carolina, 10; Louisiana, 4; Minnesota, 27; Virginia, 17; Philippine Islands, 2, and Kansas, 12.

It is expected Coolidge delegates will be increased by thirty-seven within the coming week when on Tuesday Colorado will come its fifteen delegates, New Hampshire eleven and Kansas will complete its list of delegates by naming eleven in addition to the twelve already selected.

NEW YORK ASSURED

Other States which are to select delegates this month are North and South Dakota, North Carolina, New Mexico, Idaho and Mississippi. In addition to those already elected a total of 117 are to be named in March primaries and conventions. Apparently President Coolidge has no opposition except in the Dakotas where Hiram Johnson is a contestant.

President Coolidge is already practically assured of all of the ninety delegates to be named within a short time in New York State where the Johnson campaign seems to have died out completely. The country's confidence in President Coolidge is so strong that his nomination in June, judging by the results so far recorded, seems sure.

But while there is apparent certainty about the Republican nominee there is complete uncertainty about what will happen in the Democratic convention in New York, June 24.

DEMOCRATS AT SEA

Since McAdoo, the leading candidate, was smeared by the revelations that he had been an employee of the oil interests, the Democratic situation has become so confused that no one can forecast who is likely to become the convention choice.

McAdoo is making a brave effort, rewarded with some progress, in rallying his forces, but it is certain his influence in the convention has been weakened. Today Senator Ralston of Indiana is spoken of as the favorite dark horse, but little has actually happened so far to indicate the trend of thought among Democratic leaders. The Democrats have a flock of candidates, active and potential, but no one of them has been able to arouse any special enthusiasm.

It is because of the certainty that Coolidge will become the Republican nominee that a few Democratic politicians of the Hellin, Caraway and Walsh type have been attempting to make partisan attacks on the President. The partisan attempt to attack the President, however, has met with resentment in most editorial comment, including that of leading Democratic newspapers.

ON FIRST BALLOT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—"President Coolidge will receive the Republican nomination on the first ballot and will enter the convention with more than 200 delegates in excess of the 555 necessary for a choice," James O. Good, western manager of the Coolidge campaign, asserted today. Mr. Good came here last night to confer with William Butler, manager of the Coolidge campaign committee.

EIGHT CHARRED BODIES RECOVERED FROM MINE

Little Hope Remains for Lives of Rest of 173 Entombed Men; One Rescuer Perishes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CASTLE GATE (Utah) March 9.—With eight bodies recovered from the Utah Fuel Company mine after a series of explosions yesterday morning, and with twenty more bodies said to be in sight but inaccessible, the second day of Utah's second greatest mine disaster drew to a close.

Relief work was hindered by a fire at 3200 feet in an escape-way and by a cave-in in the main tunnel. The fire was considered local in character, according to reports reaching the surface and it was thought it would do little damage except to retard investigation. No hint of the condition of men in the mine was given. One rescuer died yesterday.

Reports of the number of men who were in the mine at the time of the explosion varied from 173 to 175.

The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined. An investigation will be conducted soon but at present all efforts are being used in rescue work.

LITTLE HOPE LEFT

Miners state that there is a chance for some of the men to be alive but very little hope is placed in this prospect. Those not killed by the direct explosion have a chance, miners say, if they have succeeded in barricading themselves against the gas.

Five of the bodies recovered today were identified as George Harrison, William Pollock, W. A. Berk, George Fillstead and Jack Thorpe. Two bodies, headless and badly charred, have not been identified.

The interior recesses of the mine are filled with poisonous gas, according to helmet men who have to proceed cautiously.

Today several helmet men were overcome and late yesterday George Wilson, head of a crew from Standardville, died from asphyxiation when the nose piece of his helmet became detached inside the main portal.

Rescue crews are better organized but just how long it will be before all of the mine can be explored is uncertain. A United States Bureau of Mines car arrived today from Wyoming and government officials are lending all possible aid.

LODGE HALL IS MORGUE

The Knights of Pythias Hall here is being used as a morgue and the bodies recovered from the mine have been taken there.

The mine in which the disaster occurred is located in Castle Gate Creek Canyon and yesterday, last night and today a cold wind has swept down it from the north, causing discomfort to those laboring at the portals.

There is hardly a family or person in Castle Gate who has not a relative or a close friend in the mine. Only rescue workers, mine officials and newspaper men are allowed to go up the canyon to the workings. United States Bureau of Mines officials are using canary birds to test out the gas in the mine proper. The men in the inner recesses wear helmets and when they find bodies, they take them to aides without gas prevention equipment who are working nearer the entrances.

At each of the two mine portals the mine company has established canteens where hot coffee and food is served to those doing rescue work. Picked rescue crews from other mines are at work at the scene.

Two officers of the National Guard reached here this morning and offered aid.

Record Number of Inquiries Into Misconduct to be in Full Blast Soon

Oil Corruption, Smuggling of Arms and Tax Graft to Go Under Spotlight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Before the end of this week there will be in full blast the largest number of investigations of charges involving official misconduct and sinister influence ever undertaken in the history of the Republic.

Here is a bird's-eye view of the inquiries in progress:

(1.) The Teapot Dome committee of the Senate will pursue the trail of the oil corruptionists, questioning in this connection Leonard Wood, Jr., who says Jake Hamon of Oklahoma, the late oil millionaire, offered to support Gen. Wood for the nomination for President in the 1920 Republican National Convention, provided Gen. Wood would agree to appoint Hamon Secretary of the Interior.

2.(.) The Senate committee investigating Atty.-Gen. Daugherty will open its inquiry with the examination of Mexican border witnesses asserted to have knowledge of support given the De la Huerta revolution against the Obregon government by American oil interests and of Department of Justice orders to allow the smuggling of American munitions of war to the revolutionists.

(3.) The Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives will recommend a course of procedure to be adopted by that body to determine whether there is basis for the prosecution of Representative Langley, Republican, Kentucky, and Zihlman, Republican, Maryland, whose names have been connected with the charges mentioned in the Chicago grand jury report.

(4.) A committee of the House will commence an investigation of the Shipping Board with particular reference to charges of the waste of enormous funds, graft and the manipulation of property sales and contracts in the interest of friends.

(5.) Secretary of State Hughes will transmit to the Senate copies of correspondence relating to oil concessions sought by American in-

DEMOCRATS A-HUNTING GO

Party Leaders Cast Anxious Eye Over Aspirants For Presidency and Search for New Blood

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Men prominent in the Democratic party are looking about for additional candidates for the nomination of President. Apparently the feeling that the list as it is now made up might be improved is widespread. In any event, there is what might be called a nation-wide search on for new timber.

David F. Houston, who was Secretary of Agriculture under President Wilson from 1913 to 1920 and Secretary of the Treasury from early in 1920 until March 4, 1921, has been spoken of frequently this week by Democrats who are engaged in the hunt for additional candidates as high-grade material.

NOT SO INCLINED

The understanding here is that Mr. Houston, who is now practicing law in New York City, is not inclined to enter the race. One of the obstacles to his going in is his political situation from a geographical standpoint. He is a North Carolinian by birth and education, was connected with the University of Texas for several years and when he was called to President Wilson's Cabinet in 1913 was President of Washington University, St. Louis. After leaving public life he took up his residence in New York City.

It is by no means certain, it seems, that the Democratic party in Missouri is in a position to say that it will present his name and the Tammany organization in New York State has, to use the language of one of its members, "made other arrangements." Of course, any State could present the name of Houston and thus bring him before the convention.

McADOO LOSES GROUND

Houston was thoroughly in sympathy with what are known as the Woodrow Wilson policies and it is now pretty well understood that the Democrats will make much of those policies in the coming Presidential campaign. From all accounts the candidacy of William G. McAdoo has lost ground during the last ten days. If this is the case it is pointed out there is a large gap in the field to be filled.

The candidacy of Senator Underwood of Alabama appears to be making some headway, but so far as observers can see there is not much enthusiasm behind it. No one else is doing much of anything at this time in the way of preparing to gain delegate support. So, on the whole, according to the views of men influential in the party, there seems to be an excellent opening for newcomers.

RIFE SUSPICION HIT BY ARTICLE

New York Times Denounces Telegram Inquiry

President Treated Unfairly, Avers Editorial

Scandal Muck-Raking Held to be Unnecessary

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 9. — The New York Times in its leading editorial under the caption "The Dragnet" comments as follows on the Senate debate on the making public by the Senate Public Lands Committee of the two telegrams sent by President Coolidge to Edward B. McLean, the Washington publisher:

"Men and women of all political parties will surely feel a certain preliminary and indignant resentment at the action of the Senate committee in making public two private telegrams from the President of the United States. They appear to be absolutely irrelevant to the inquiry in hand. Their only possible pertinency would lie in an attempt to break down the previous testimony of the President's private secretary, Mr. Slemp.

USED NO DISCRETION

"But all this could have been taken care of in the discretion of the members of the Senate committee. They have exercised that discretion in other cases. When the telegrams and letters that passed between Senator Walsh and Mr. Doheny were first laid before the committee it was decided that they were irrelevant to the matter under investigation and were kept off the records. Later they were forced out by gossip about them. It certainly would seem that the Senate committee might have been as careful to protect the President from malicious rumor as it had shown itself to be with a Senator. The committee could have got as well beforehand as afterward the statement from the White House showing exactly the nature of the two telegrams to Mr. McLean, and establishing the fact that they had nothing whatever to do with the oil scandals.

"It is humiliating to think that we have come to the point where every idle tale and gratuitous suspicion about the President of the United States must be given resounding publicity. However, there is now no help for it.

NET FLUNG OUT

"The net of the Senate committee has been flung far and wide and everything caught in it must be pawed over by the public. Fortunately, no one will be so foolish as to accuse Mr. Coolidge of any complicity in the effort of Mr. McLean and ex-Secretary Fall to deceive the Senate committee and to fool the public. The President's immediate and frank explanation of the McLean telegrams is such as to allay every doubt.

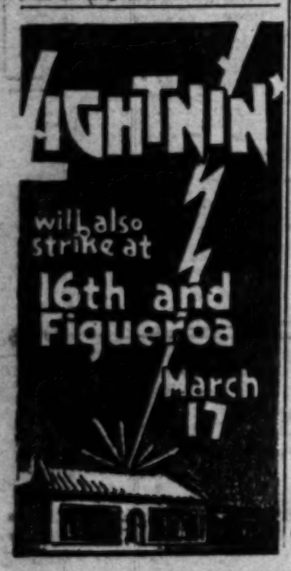
"Until his exposure came, Mr. McLean had been known as a prominent citizen of Washington who had the strongest kind of personal, social and political indorsement from President Harding. He was entitled to be consulted as he had frequently been before in the matter of selecting a commissioner for the District of Columbia. And if the President of the United States is to be brought into question for every routine telegram he sends acknowledging congratulations on a speech or a public statement, who could escape? The thing is petty beyond words.

"The dragnet method of investigation is objectionable for other reasons than the personal injustice it often does. It tends to confuse the public mind. People forget what the inquiry is all about. So many by-paths and blind alleys are run into that the main trail is lost. The investigators themselves are thrown off the track. So long as they think that every fresh batch of evidence, no matter how irrelevant or immaterial must be bruited abroad they are in danger of losing sight of the goal which they set out to reach.

"It is true that Senators declare that they are merely 'laying the foundations' for an orderly and pertinent taking of testimony later, but in the meantime they get their own minds so clogged up with matter that it alien that they are in peril of losing the power to think straight.

SHOULD BE PERTINENT

"We can but hope that there will soon be an end to all these diversions from the main points at issue. There are trained lawyers on the Senate committee. The fact that they are also politicians ought not to be permitted indefinitely to get the better of their legal instinct. They know what it is worth in a trial to have a clear issue joined and to rule out every form of evidence, no matter how piquant or salacious in itself, that does not strictly adhere upon the case. A certain amount of laxity of procedure is inevitable in any hearing before a Congressional committee. The rules of evidence have to bend more or less to the rules of party politics. But there must be an end to this sort of thing some time. The Senators may have to go back and read the resolution by which their investigation was authorized."



RECORD IS SET FOR INQUIRIES

terests in Colombia, Mesopotamia, Persia and other parts of the world and the Teapot Dome committee will examine the documents in search of the trail of Sinclair and Doheny, and also in search of light on the rumors that American oil interests put over the $25,000,000 Colombia Treaty and divided the first payments of $5,000,000.

(6.) The treasury and other departments will transmit to the Senate the names of former Cabinet officers who have represented clients seeking refunds, abatements, adjustments or other favors from the government.

(7.) The Teapot Dome Committee, if permission is granted by President Coolidge, will inspect the income tax returns of Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, E. L. Doheny and others connected with the oil scandal in search of more light on the Sinclair and Doheny payments to Fall.

(8.) An investigation of charges of irregularities in the collection of income taxes, involving large corporations and prominent Democratic and Republican politicians wielding influence under the Wilson and Harding administrations is in prospect as a result of the resolution introduced by Senator Cousens, Republican, Michigan.

OIL RAID PLAN QUIZ

During the early part of the week interests will center on the inquiry into stories that a ring of oil operators had planned a raid on government oil resources as early as 1920 and was active in the national conventions of both parties in schemes to manipulate the nominations in the interest of their plot. The most definite stories have related to the Republican convention and have been to the effect that the oil crowd sought to make a deal first with Wood, then with Lowden and finally with Harding, whereby two Cabinet officers, including the Secretary of the Interior, were to be named who were satisfactory to the oil interests.

In consideration of such promise the oil crowd was to throw its delegates to the candidate for the nomination who agreed to the terms. Hamon was supposed to control about 100 delegates, chiefly from Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas.

WOLFE IS CALLED

One of the Ohio leaders reported to have detected the operations of these asserted conspirators in the Republican convention is Robert F. Wolfe, owner of the Ohio State Journal and Columbus Dispatch. Mr. Wolfe, according to the report brought to the Teapot Dome Committee, said during the convention that the interests bent on grabbing valuable natural resources controlled by the government were actively endeavoring to swing the nomination in the direction that would benefit their schems. Mr. Wolfe has been subpoenaed for examination by the committee this week.

Attry.-Gen. Daugherty is still standing pat, refusing to resign voluntarily and insisting that he will not quit unless President Coolidge puts a request to that effect in writing.

EXIT HELD ASSURED

It is not doubted that Mr. Daugherty will be out of the Cabinet soon and the only question is when his exit will be effected. It is clear that the President desires to be relieved of the Attorney-General he inherited from Mr. Harding and has even gone so far as to convass the field for a successor to Mr. Daugherty, though still hesitating to demand the resignation.

What will bring about the retirement of the Attorney-General remains to be seen. It may be a fresh revelation of questionable conduct or indiscretions, like his speculation in Sinclair Oil stock after entering the Cabinet.

MEXICAN QUIZ

Members of the Brookhart committee who have been concerned that names of witnesses summoned in connection with the Mexican angle have become public are seeking to learn whether the subpoenas went through the office of United States Marshal Walker at San Antonio. Chairman Brookhart announced today that he had received confirmation of reports that Mr. Walker is a brother-in-law of the Attorney-General.

Plans for the hearings still are in the formative stage and the day for opening the inquiry has not yet been fixed definitely, Senator Brookhart said tonight it might be Tuesday but more likely a day or two later.

J. M. Alvarez Del Castillo, representative here of the De la Huerta revolutionists of Mexico, issued a statement declaring any assertion that the revolution sought or received aid from petroleum companies with interests in Mexico are untrue.

DENIES ARMS SHIPPED

"Our only contact with the oil interests," he said, "has consisted merely in affording them full protection and advising concerns operating in territory under our control that they would be required to pay the legitimate taxes fixed by law to the de facto authorities instead of to the Obregon government.

"No arms or ammunition intended for the revolution have, to my knowledge, been introduced from the United States into Mexico."

The statement said revolutionary forces operating in the northern States were armed for the most part with United States rifles captured in action, after they had been delivered to the Obregon forces. No effort was being made to purchase arms in the United States, it added.

Congress Authorized Course, Statement Asserts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—"The entire story of the leasing of the naval reserves, after that course had been found necessary in order to prevent the Navy's oil from passing into private hands without any compensation, and of those provisions of the leases whereby the Navy Department exchanged oil for the construction of storage tanks was told officially to the Senate by the Secretary of the Navy two years ago. The widespread but erroneous impression that the facts regarding these leases have only recently been brought to light by the investigations of the Walsh investigating committee is merely another evidence of the playing of politics by Senator Walsh and his colleagues on the committee."

This statement was made tonight by E. L. Doheny, president of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, whose lease covers Naval Reserve No. 1.

"The necessity of authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to lease these lands in order to prevent the loss of the oil to private parties was brought to the attention of the Congress by Secretary Daniels four years ago in a letter urging the enactment of the law authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to do precisely what has been done," continued Mr. Doheny.

SAYS ASSERTIONS FALSE

"Every assertion, by whomever made, that the Congress did not authorize the course recommended by Secretary Daniels, carried out in part by him and in part by Secretary Denby, or that Congress was kept in ignorance of what was being done, is an absolute falsehood. I stand ready to prove my words by the official records.

"On March 5, 1920, Josephus Daniels wrote to the chairman of the Committee on Navy Affairs of the House, calling attention to the General Leasing Act approved February 24, 1920.

"Daniels then went on to urge an amendment to the leasing law, to be accomplished by inserting it in the naval appropriations bill which amendment was adopted and became the law.

"The provision that $500,000 might be expended was, as explained by Representative Fred Britten, Republican, Illinois, of the Naval Committee, merely to provide cash for such immediate expenditure as the Secretary of the Navy might find necessary before royalty oils became available to carry out the provisions of the act.

PUBLIC MISLED

"Now, Senator Walsh, who knows better, and his fellow howlers, who are too busy windjamming to stop to learn the truth, would make the public believe, if they could, that the Secretary of the Navy lacked authority to lease the Naval reserves, or to use the oil therefrom to construct storage tanks, and it was only as a result of the extraordinary energy and discernment and astuteness of Tom Walsh, et al, that Congress learned such leasing, construction, etc., had been done. But again the official record proves the falsity of any such assertion.

"On May 4, 1923—nearly two years ago, mind you—Secretary Denby appeared before the Appropriation Committee of the Senate. Senator Poindexter asked Mr. Denby what had been done with the naval oil reserves. Secretary Denby replied:

"'The two tracts in California that are set aside as naval petroleum reserves, and the one in Wyoming, all have been opened by lease in order to get the oil before it passes entirely into private hands. The purpose of this is to lay up a war reserve of oil. Originally these reserves were set aside upon the assumption that they would constitute a war reserve. Now we are planning to get the war reserve of oil above ground, because we cannot keep it below ground.'

DENBY GIVES DETAILS

"Recapitulating, Secretary Denby went over the whole ground again, explaining the law which authorized the Secretary of the Navy to handle this oil according to his discretion; explaining that the oil would have been conserved under ground had not that course been demonstrated to be impracticable; stated that he was using the government's share, the royalty oil, to have tanks constructed for such amount of oil as the general board of the Navy regarded as essential as an emergency supply—not for immediate use but to be held for an emergency; stated that the contractors were constructing these tanks in Hawaii and on the Atlantic Coast at the points designated by the Navy, etc.

"I have quoted exclusively from the official records of Congress. All these facts were made known to Congress from two to four years ago. Could any one need further evidence of the determination of Senator Walsh and his associates in this, a Presidential year, to play politics than is afforded by his deliberate creation of the impression that he and his investigation committee have made a great discovery, have only now learned that the naval reserves were leased and that temporarily the government's royalty oil was being used to pay for the construction of adequate storage?

CHARGES DECEIT

"Such a barefaced effort to deceive the public may succeed for a time. But once the people come to realize that a deliberate effort has been made to flimflam them they will have nothing but contempt for the politicians who attempted it and for the party which is responsible for them.

"Senator Walsh has said there was an essential difference between the leases made by Secretaries Daniels and Payne—they leased all of naval reserve No. 2—and those made by Secretary Denby with my company. There is—just one essential difference. My leases have returned to the government 82 per cent of all the oil drawn from the ground. The Daniels-Payne leases have returned to the government only 12 per cent."

WAR SPECTER OVER EUROPE

two, or even five. But the steady growth of the German military machine, while still vastly inferior to that of France, leads Allied and neutral military observers to believe that unless some way can be found to check the rising of hatred and vengeance 1930 may again see France and Germany in a shambles.

GERMANY PREPARES

An eight months' study of the armament situation here has convinced me that Germany's preparations for this inevitable war in the near future have been exceedingly effective despite all the difficulties which have surrounded the nation. The German general staff, while greatly restricted by the Treaty of Versailles, has proved none the less efficient and is in many ways more flexible than a larger body of military experts would have been.

With a new gas which probably is the most deadly known to military science, with technical staffs ready to put into production the latest types of military airplanes and all the other technical equipment necessary for a large army in the field, Germany today has made great progress along the road which leads to war.

TROOPS DOUBLED

Development from the Armistice until January 1, 1923 was slow, but since that time the German military organization almost has doubled.

When France went into the Ruhr on January 11, 1923, the German general staff could count on placing 200,000 troops fairly well armed and equipped into the field. Today that total has grown to 400,000 and the equipment at the disposal of the staff has been greatly improved.

So far as small arms, machine guns and light artillery are concerned it is probable that this army of 400,000 is completely equipped. There may be some deficiency in heavy artillery, but there is no real check on the number of big guns still in the hands of the military or hidden in various parts of the country. The British are skeptical that anything like the quantity needed for so large an army exists. The Americans are noncommittal while the French members of the control commission are certain that in various parts of Germany, especially in East Prussia and Bavaria, there is a sufficient quantity of guns larger than six-inch caliber to hand to provide Germany with an efficient primary artillery corps.

WANT 800,000 ARMY

Germany's military growth has been steady but gradual. The goal for January 1, 1925, has been set at 600,000 by the general staff, but it is doubtful whether the increase will come within 50,000 of that figure. But when they speak of 600,000 troops that does not mean a ragtag and bobtail army, but a compact fighting force of well-trained men, with proper machine guns and light artillery. These troops include elements like the Reichswehr Green police, unauthorized fighting troops which are getting practically the same equipment as the regular army.

In the technical branches Germany's army is as far advanced as any in Europe. Cramped by lack of money and limited supplies, the German staff nevertheless has made excellent headway, particularly during last year.

The aeronautic service has kept pace with events, and above all it has kept in constant touch with the designers and experts who produced Germany's exceedingly efficient planes and war motors.

MOBILIZATION PLANS

Mobilization plans have been drawn up for the Albatross, Junker, Dornier, Halberstadt, Bavarian Motor Works, Siemens, Benz and Mercedes plants. These factories have been kept occupied and their staffs intact to such an extent that most of the German airplane plants could be producing at capacity within thirty days. The motor works are not so well off as the plane factories, but their experiment work has been far from unsatisfactory. I believe that Germany could put in the field 200 efficient bombing and reconnaissance planes almost immediately and that within three months' time a fleet of 500 to 600 planes, including the necessary pursuit units, could be brought into action. These figures are not guesswork, but are the result of patient inquiries regarding German airplane factories since last May.

Morocco Rebel Band Retreats Before Spanish

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADRID, March 9.—Heavy and bloody fighting continues between the Spanish Foreign Legion and the rebels in Morocco. The rebels left 200 dead and many wounded on the field at Pars. The Moroccans, hidden in trenches dug in the dense undergrowth, resisted the charges of the legionnaires desperately but were forced to give ground. The Spaniards' casualties were twelve killed and eighty wounded.

Gravest concern is felt by the Spanish government for fear the English and French may make a diplomatic demand on Spain that the Morrocan rebels be pacified quickly under penalty of abandoning the zone of influence completely and forever.

FLOOD FEAR PAST AS MISSOURI ICE BREAKS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DES MOINES, March 9.—According to word from Sioux City, the Missouri River bids fair to clear itself of ice without the disastrous floods which characterized the movement last year. The break-up occurred here at noon Saturday after a two-foot rise in water since early morning. The break occurred at Yankton, S. D., Thursday and at Vermillion the night before. A small gorge has formed eight miles above the city and some low-lying land is being flooded, but observers said the gorge is not extensive and probably will go.

TWO DIE OF HEART ATTACKS

DENVER, March 9.—William Stanton Selby, 53 years of age, and Arthur B. Shires, 58, died at Boulder from sudden heart attacks. Selby lived on a ranch formerly owned by Henry M. Teller, United States Senator.

RATHBONE BILL HITS QUACK

Author of Measure for Federal Censorship of Advertising Would Extend Scope

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Representative Rathbone, Republican, Illinois, said he would be willing to extend the scope of his bill providing for the government censorship of advertisements and further control of production of bacterial vaccines to include "other medicinal preparations, including appliances or apparatus intended for human use," as suggested by the United States Public Health Service, if the medical opinion of the country indorsed such a measure.

Such an extension of the provisions of the bill would include patent medicines and other alleged remedies and appliances and apparatus which are widely advertised and sold directly to the people, whereas bacterial vaccines are advertised for the most part in technical and scientific publications and sold to members of the medical profession who prescribe them for their patients.

SHOW NECESSITY

Discussion of the bills now before the subcommittee dealing specifically with virus, toxin and antitoxin, and other bacterial vaccines, Representative Rathbone said, would bring out the demand and necessity, if any, for the extension suggested by Dr. George W. McCoy of the hygienic laboratory United States Public Health Service in the interest of protection of the public from false and misleading advertisements of patent medicines and surgical and other appliances.

Under existing laws, establishments manufacturing bacterial vaccines are subject to inspection and their licenses may be withdrawn if the product is found to be unfit or ineffectual or the operation of the establishment insanitary or otherwise below standard. Authority to withdraw license of an establishment, however, has not been held to extend to the opinion of the Federal authorities as to the merits of the product as a remedy.

POWERS OF BILL

Under the Rathbone bill, the Secretary of the Treasury would be authorized to "decline to license any manufacturing establishment or any product made by any manufacturing establishment when in his judgment the public interests would be served by so declining," and he is also authorized to cancel any license held for the product of any such establishment. It is this proposal that is being strenuously opposed by physicians as an invasion of their individual liberty of judgment.

IRISH ARMY MUTINY NOT PERTURBING

Demobilization Policy is Going Ahead in Spite of Opposition

BY HUGH CURRAN

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DUBLIN, March 9. — The Free State government is not greatly perturbed by the mutiny in the army. The trouble apparently arose mainly, but not altogether, from the new army organization, which immediately demobilized 900 officers and reduced the ranks of nearly all remaining. The reorganization is proceeding during the week-end, and in a few instances the demobilized officers are disposed to be unpleasant.

In Rescommon and Gormanstown camps small quantities of arms were taken away which are not authorized. That certain intriguing was going on in the army was known, and there is no doubt that the government was fully cognisant of it.

Matters came to a head when a letter was received signed by certain officers protesting against the government's policy. The terms are regarded as rank mutiny, and the government's reply was to order the arrest of Maj.-Gen. Tobin and Col. Dalton.

The searches started Friday night still continue ineffectual. The suggestion that the dissatisfied ones may make a common cause with the Republicans is not believed, since such a step would completely wipe out their whole army career.

President William Cosgrave expected to refer to the mutiny at an election meeting in Dublin today, but was howled down by a band of women interrupters, who kept up a continual noise. Other speakers tried to speak, but all failed and the meeting broke up.

DENBY WILL RETIRE FROM POST TODAY

New Secretary of Navy Not Yet Selected by President Coolidge

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Edwin Denby will retire tomorrow as Secretary of the Navy and so far as could be learned tonight, his successor has not been selected by President Coolidge.

The President, however, has been giving much thought to filling the first Cabinet vacancy of his administration, and indications today were that he had narrowed down considerably the field of those under consideration and that decision may be announced any time.

Plans for the future have not been decided upon by Mr. Denby. He will return to his home in Detroit within a few days and probably then will make a statement relative to reports that he may become a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

When Mr. Denby lays down his duties tomorrow, Theodore Roosevent, the assistant Secretary, will become acting Secretary to serve until a new department head is installed.

Fight Over Dog Results in Riot Call to Police

DENVER, March 9.—Reports of a daylight hold-up resulted in Patrolmen Connors and Merkle of the riot squad hurrying to the scene at top speed in the riot car.

There, they said, they found Robert C. Rhoads involved in a fight with John Ryan and J. E. Flannigan.

All three were taken to the police station, where Rhoads said the other two had attempted to take his dog away from him, declaring it was stolen. He said he had bought the dog at the city dog pound recently for $5. Ryan and Flannigan claimed the dog was their property.

Police gave the dog to Rhoads and placed Ryan and Flannigan in jail on a charge of disturbance.

Mrs. Penquite for two years resided in Long Beach, but came to the home of her daughter two months ago on account of illness.

BRING OUT TEN MINERS' BODIES

towns are here to help take care of the dead miners and prepare them for burial.

Excitement prevailed in this section last night and roads leading to Castle Gate were crowded with automobiles and other vehicles carrying people to the scene.

ANXIOUS FOR NEWS

Huge fires were built at many places and around these huddled men and in some cases women and children anxious for news of dear ones missing. There are approximately twenty bodies on one of the stopes of the mine but it is impossible to reach them because of obstructions, according to two helmet men who came out of the workings at 6 o'clock tonight.

While there is constant danger of another explosion, rescue work in Utah Fuel Company Mine No. 2 is going forward steadily. The air in the escapeway is declared to be better than in the main shaft and it is planned to concentrate on the former.

There was a wild rumor this afternoon that tappings had been heard but mine company officials and rescue men say this is not true as the distance yet to be negotiated to the main workings is too great for this to have happened. Gov. Charlie R. Mabry of Utah is reported on his way to Castle Gate by automobile and he is expected to reach here sometime tonight to represent the State.

WOMEN IN DESPAIR

On the front steps of many of the miners' homes throughout most of the day sat women and children who lost loved ones in the mine. One young widow with a small baby in her arms, was walking about town most of this morning and this afternoon until she was taken in by friends.

"I want to go to him," she cried. It was explained her husband was in the mine.

At Portal No. 1 were two young girls about 10 or 12 years of age and in their arms they had a small baby. Their father and older brother were among those listed as in the mine.

The votes, sent to the two stations from which the debate was broadcast, were tabulated today and the result was announced.

The subject debated was, "Resolved, that the Bok peace plan should be adopted," with California upholding the affirmative and Oregon the negative. The California debaters spoke from Station KLX, the Oakland Tribune, and the Oregon debaters from KGW, the Oregonian in Portland.

FARMERS PASS UP JOHNSON

Straw Vote by Journal Shows Senator Slipping Sixth Place in Choice for Presidency

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—Senator Hiram Johnson may well close his Presidential campaign and turn his attention to something else, if the views of farmers as registered in the Farm Journal straw vote are any indication.

At the end of the eighth week of voting Johnson has slipped down to sixth place, Senator Capper now having a substantial lead over him. Even in California, President Coolidge leads Johnson by 3 to 1.

The President and William G. McAdoo continue to lead their respective parties. Mr. McAdoo has even increased slightly his percentage of the total vote, which will be interesting news for the Teapot Dome oil lease prebers.

The results for eight weeks: Coolidge, 2,671; Ford, 1,[illegible]; Adoo, 1,946; LaFollette, 1,[illegible]; per, 971; Johnson, 861; 498; Ralston, 453; Cox, 19[illegible]; 177; Smith, 146; Bryan, 1[illegible]; derwood, 141; Lowden, 1[illegible]; 34; Watson, 87; [illegible]; Total, 13,256.

BOND DEALINGS ARE EXPLAINED

in Council, issued by the Cabinet, and I rendered a full accounting to Parliament after my return.

"Being, as I have said, a warm friend to Peter Smith, I pointed out to him, shortly after he took office, that he had a rare opportunity to make a name for himself by saving the government millions of dollars which it was then losing in evaded succession duties, or inheritance taxes, as you would call them here.

"Previous t[illegible] the passage of the inheritance tax law, some $18,000,000 worth of bonds had been issued which remained tax-exempt after the law went into effect. Old gentlemen about to pass on had been refunding their holdings into the tax exempts and cheating the collector of his dues.

"But these same bonds, though in demand by such elderly investors in Canada, were selling far below par in London because later British issues were paying better interest—6 per cent or more as against 4 and 4 1-2. Add to this discount the adverse differential which ruling exchange rates then levied on the pound sterling and it was possible for the Ontario government, if it bought quietly, to redeem these bonds at a substantial profit, and at the same time destroy the Toronto market in tax-exempts.

"Peter Smith persuaded me much against my inclination—my wife was critically ill at the time—to undertake the mission. Technical details of finance were handled by the firm of Aemilius Jarvis & Co. of Toronto, of which my brother, H. G. Jepall, is now general manager, but nothing was binding until it had been countersigned by me as fiscal agent for the Ontario government.

"We picked up about $3,000,000 worth of Ontario bonds for $2,000,000. It was a deal that never could be repeated, for it has been tried since by other Provinces of the Dominion, but the British investors by that time were wary.

"Only purchases of sufficient volume to attract the Ontario government were considered, and only at a figure stipulated by the government. Jarvis & Co. may have bought bonds cheaper still and sold them to the government for a profit at the agreed figure. I know personally that they also bought bonds on which they lost. That was their affair. Mine was to see that the conditions named by my principals were executed, and I fulfilled by mission—to the substantial profit of the government—wholly to my own satisfaction and, as I believe, my credit."

PACIFIC-SOUTHWEST TRUST & SAVINGS BANK

HOPES TO SAVE MELLON RATES

Administration Out to Win Committee Backing

Senate Finance Body Stand Remains in Doubt

Rocks Ahead in Upper House for Surtax Levy

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Administration leaders hope to obtain definite assurance this week that the Senate Finance Committee will report the Mellon normal and surtax rates as a substitute for the Longworth compromise rates as carried in the tax bill passed by the House.

A call has been sent out for absentee Republican Senators who are members of the Finance Committee. The action of the Finance Committee hinges upon the attitude of one or two Republican members. Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois, a member of the committee, who has been absent in connection with his campaign for renomination, will return to Washington tomorrow in response to a summons from the Republican leaders. Senator Elkins, Republican, West Virginia, another who has not been in attendance at the committee meetings during the last two weeks, also has been called back.

LINE UP MEMBERS

The administration appears to count on lining up all the Republican members of the Finance Committee with the single exception of Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin. Unless this can be brought about it is difficult to figure how the Mellon rates can be restored in committee. With Senator La Follette voting with the six Democrats, the remaining eight Republicans would form a bare majority.

Senator McCormick seems to hold the balance of power on the committee and either can aid the administration in restoring the Mellon rates or can force a compromise.

President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon both are anxious that the Finance Committee shall reach the Mellon rates in order that the 25 per cent maximum surtax may be kept before the country and made a campaign issue.

SEE SENATE BOOST

The administration leaders in Congress who are seeking to carry out the wishes of the President and the Secretary of the Treasury say frankly that there is no chance whatever of passing the bill with the Mellon rates in the Senate. They believe that the surtax maximum will be boosted by the Senate at least to 37½ per cent and possibly to 40 per cent.

The Finance Committee, when it resumes consideration of the tax bill tomorrow, will take up estate taxes.

Some time during the week Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is expected to apear before the committee. Besides urging the restoration of the Mellon rates, Secretary Mellon is expected to advocate the elimination of the increase in estate tax rates provided in the House bill, the elimination of the House gift tax and also the so-called "peeping Tom" amendment under which the Senate Finance Committee or the House Ways and Means Committee can obtain access to tax returns.

The Finance Committee expects to require at least three more weeks for the consideration of the bill. If the bill is reported to the Senate by April 1 it probably will be passed by June 1.

BONUS COMMITTEE

Representative Greene, Republican, Iowa, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced today the appointment of a subcommittee to draft the insurance plan bonus bill as approved in a general way by the committee. The subcommittee consists of Representatives Greene and Hawley, Republican, Oregon, and Bacharach, Republican, New Jersey; Garner, Democrat, Texas and Oldfield, Democrat, Arkansas.

Mr. Greene said he thought the committee would be ready to report to the full committee on Wednesday.

"The subcommittee will present a draft of the insurance provision, considering and agreeing on such details as in their judgment will go to make up a bill that will meet the ideas of the members as in part voiced at the committee meetings last week," said Mr. Greene. "I cannot at this time predict what will be done about the borrowing privileges."

BALKANS ON WAR'S BRINK

Bulgarian Rebels Threaten to Annex Macedonia; Powers Seek to Quiet Peoples

BY GEORGE SELDES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SOFIA, March 9.—Sofia is again facing the threat of war. Political and military leaders, newspapers and the masses fear that peace, which has been broken only by internal strife since the treaty of Versailles, again has been menaced.

Many believe that the next few weeks will prove that a crisis has developed in the plague spot of Macedonia.

Alexandroff, leader of the comitadji bands which played a big part in the former Balkan Wars, openly boasts that he will attack and will annex Serbian Macedonia as soon as the Balkan mud roads permit troop movements.

POWERS PROTEST

I learn from investigation in Serbian and Bulgarian circles that England and France, despite denials, have made efforts to prevent hostile feelings and consequent dangers of a conflict.

The situation on the Serb-Bulgar front is much like that on the United States-Mexican border during the Carranza revolution and guerrilla warfare is being continued with hundreds slain.

It is feared that some of the comitadjis may force the Serbs to make a punitive expedition across the frontier. It is expected that the entire Bulgar population will answer the call to arms.

Bulgaria, like Germany, officially has been disarmed, but there is evidence that there are plenty of weapons and munitions hidden.

REBELS JAILED

Downing Street has sent word to Belgrade and Sofia that everything must be done to end the crisis once and for all and warnings have been sent against hostilities.

As a result the Bulgarians are arresting every suspected comitadji in Macedonia and more than 500 have been imprisoned.

It is expected that even the leader, Alexandroff, will be put in jail. He is now hiding with well-armed troops in the mountains on the Serbian side of the frontier.

Rumors persist that the comitadji or rebel warfare largely is due to Italian support and the League of Nations disarmament commission which is involved in a munitions selling scandal.

Sometime ago League officials ordered to supervise the destruction of Bulgarian war munitions were accused of having sold 20,000 rifles and millions of rounds of ammunition. The purchasers are Italians, but the supplies never were shipped out of Bulgaria, it is charged.

THIRD PARTY CALL ISSUED BY RADICALS

National Convention for Presidential Candidates to be Held

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The movement for welding the radical elements in the country into a definite third party has taken form and a call is now being sent out from Washington by the Conference for Progressive Political Action, for a national convention to be held at Cleveland on July 4, next, to nominate candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States.

The call is signed by William H. Johnston, chairman of the conference, one-time Socialist candidate for Governor of Rhode Island, and president of the International Association of Machinists. It is addressed to "organizations of labor, farmers and other progressive groups" and is as follows:

"A special convention of the C.P.P.A. will convene at 10 p.m. July 4, 1924, at the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' auditorium, Cleveland, O., in accordance with the recommendations of the committee on organization and finance, adopted by the third national conference of this organization held at St. Louis, February 11-12, 1924, which read as follows:

"'(1.) That the national committee of this conference be instructed to immediately issue a call for the convention of workers, farmers and progressives for the purpose of taking action on nomination of candidates for the offices of President and Vice-President of the United States, and on other questions that may come before the convention.

"'(2.) That the convention shall be held in the city of Cleveland and shall be open on the 4th day of July, 1924, at 10 a.m.'

"In order that the decisions reached at this convention shall be representative of the best thought of the forward-looking men and women of our nation we urge that each organization entitled to representation send its full quota of delegates. As soon as your selections have been made please notify this office."

DEPOSITS IN CALIFORNIA BANKS GAIN

Increase in Resources Over 1922 Shown to be $346,679,400

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Deposits in all the banks of California totaled at the close of 1923, $2,742,235,073, an increase of $322,153,400 over 1922, according to figures announced today by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Resources of all the banks amounted to $3,193,979,437, a gain of $349,679,400 over the previous year.

The statement adds:

"Building operations, public and private, throughout the State have been and are continuing at high rate.

"Many schools, both for the grammar grades and high school courses, have been erected during the past year to keep pace with the greatly increasd population.

"Establishment of manufacturing plants and commercial enterprises is reflected in the greatly augmented bank deposits."

POWER-SAVING PLEA IS MADE IN TULARE

TULARE, March 9.—Urging power conservation wherever possible, J. R. Haskin, manager of the Tulare district of the Southern California Edison Company, addressing the Tulare Board of Trade directors, announced that plans are under way to put power users on a war-time basis, owing to water and power shortage resulting from the drought. Haskin explained gravity of the situation, stating that every auxiliary plant had been brought into service already, while there was very little snow in the mountains. It was suggested that farmers pump at night, lessening the peak load during the day, that merchants adopt a dim-window lighting system, that the city curtail street lighting and residents and power users in general make every effort to conserve power whenever possible. A number of southern communities already have cut down power consumption to almost a war-time basis.

MADE PRISONER BY VISALIA LETTER BOX

VISALIA, March 9.—C. M. Craghill, well-known local auto dealer, forced his letters through the pile in the receiving bin at Visalia postoffice, even though it was full, because he was in a hurry. Craghill's huge signet ring caught in the slot and he was held captive while other patrons filled the lobby. The more Craghill tugged, the worse it hurt and he sent an S.O.S. to postal employees who rushed to his aid. String, soap, and other devices were applied to the finger in vain. Postmaster A. M. Becker came to the rescue with better results. Now Craghill is considering having the ring filed from his finger.

Santa Barbara's climate is as soft as a caress, yet as stimulating as a tonic. The average for winter varies hardly ten degrees from the average for summer, making outdoor recreation of every kind, even ocean bathing, possible the whole year 'round. The effect of Santa Barbara's climate is graphically told in matter-of-fact statistics which give it the lowest death rate in the country.

DEMOCRATS OF STATE IN SPLIT

Rival Headquarters Set Up to Fight McAdoo

Party Voters May Face Two Sets of Delegates

Second List of Nominators is Uninstructed

[BY A. P. WIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Rival sets of candidates for delegates to the Democratic National Convention in New York, one list pledged to the nomination of William G. McAdoo, the other uninstructed, may be submitted to the Democratic voters of California at the Presidential primary, May 6.

The split in the party had assumed definite form today with the announcement that headquarters had been opened in opposition to the McAdoo candidacy and that petitions would be circulated for uninstructed delegates.

The Democratic State Central Committee, at a recent meeting here, pledged itself for McAdoo, although a minority of the members present expressed vigorous opposition to the former Secretary of the Treasury because of his legal connections with oil interests involved in the Teapot Dome investigation. Later the opposition began working for Senator Copeland of New York, but he declined to have his name placed on a ballot in this State.

APOLOGIES FEARED

Charles A. Barlow of Bakersfield, a former Congressman and a leader of the anti-McAdoo forces, issued this statement today:

"The effort we have made for Senator Copeland has been valuable in arousing California Democrats to the situation confronting our party, and while deeply disappointed at his conclusion not to have his name submitted, we have determined to proceed in placing before the people of California for selection on primary day a group of delegates who will go to the convention without instruction other than the determination to name some clean, progressive and capable Democrat as the party nominee.

"The Democrats of this State will not tolerate the selection of a man whose relation to governmental activities will require constant apology and explanation. Leaders of Democratic thought in all parts of the State are being communicated with and within a few days a list of such voters will be filed with the Secretary of State, so that on primary day the Democratic voters may have the opportunity of voting for delegates who can be depended on to name only some man whose record is unquestioned and who can be relied upon to restore the confidence so necessary in the honest and capable handling of our national affairs."

PLAN DOLLAR DRIVE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Asserting that William G. McAdoo's opponents for the Democratic nomination for President are being financed by the "big interests" and backed by "boss politicians," the League of People's McAdoo Clubs, with headquarters in Washington, is sending broadcast over the country an appeal for contributions of dollar bills to finance the campaign of the former Secretary of the Treasury, and an appeal for the "common people" to form McAdoo clubs and "demonstrate to the Democratic National Convention that the people of this country want William G. McAdoo for President."

This new plan of campaign is separate from the official McAdoo committee headed by David Ladd Rockwell, who has headquarters in Chicago. The literature going out from Washington, however, states that the founders of the club movement "have promised Mr. McAdd that they will enlist 1,000,000 citizens in 10,000 clubs" to back his candidacy, and that if he will "meet the lies and abuse of powerful enemies and lead our fight for honesty and square deal for all" the clubs will "supply his campaign with necessary funds for the fight."

Richard Seelye Jones, vice-president, is acting as vice-general chairman of organization and finance for the People's McAdoo Clubs.

HAUGDAHL BREAKS ASCOT TRACK RECORD IN HIS WHITE WONDER CAR

MIDWICK SQUAD IS VICTORIOUS

Local Poloists Get 11-to-10 Win Over Hawaiians

Joe Pedley is Scintillating Star for Winners

Home Team Comes From Behind, Trims Visitors

BY BRAVEN DYER

Before a crowd of 4000 enthusiastic spectators the Midwick Country Club polo team closed the season yesterday with a 11-to-10 victory over the Army riders from Honolulu in a spectacular thrilling match on the home field. Capt. Carleton Burke's outfit, after trailing the visitors for three chukkers, tied the score in the fourth period and won out by a great rally in the final session. Joe Pedley, who comes very near being the best player on the Pacific Coast, was in a class by himself yesterday, riding all over the field and making seven of the team's goals, chalked up by the visitors. The Midwick No. 2 man also showed better form this game, none of his shots being particularly marvelous. Pedley did all of the scoring for the locals until the fourth chukker when Teddy Miller counted after a neat pass from Pedley.

HAWAIIANS FIGHT HARD

The Hawaiians played their usual fighting game, conceding their opponents nothing and taking out the ball with great skill. They were a little shy on luck, however, many of their shots bounding back after hitting a horse ahead. Lieutenant-Colonel Beverly Brown, Maj. Allen Brewer and Capt. Joe Swing played a great game for the losers. The Honolulu team takes the second game from Midwick, having won two games, tied one and lost the other.

Because the ponies of the visitors were still tuckered out the game was cut to six-minute chukkers rather than the regulation seven-and-one-half minutes. One of Arthur Perkins's mounts suffered a broken ankle in the fourth chukker.

It was a case of too much Pedley in the first four chukkers. The Midwick star counted twice in the first period, and then scored another pair of goals in the second session, some clever passing between Burke and Miller making the scores possible. In the third period Pedley made one of the prettiest plays seen on the local field this year. Taking the ball after the latter he rode straight down the field and shot, the ball hitting the goal. Pedley rode in and caught the pellet as it bounced back, and drove it squarely between the uprights.

John Seymour Wins Motorbike Feature Event

BY GASSON OYLE

With his big red Fiat laying down a smoke screen which made driving much a matter of guesswork for his opponents, Sig Haugdahl, of 180-mile-an-hour fame, yesterday won the big match race at Ascot Park over ten laps beating Fred Locklider to the finish by a comfortable margin of fifty yards in 5m. 24s. flat. Eddie Meyer, who took Fred Horey's position in the race when the latter burned out a bearing in qualifying, finished third, while Leon Duray went out with engine trouble on the eighth lap.

Haugdahl's go-fast was in front for the entire journey, taking the lead at the first turn by snorting ahead of Duray, who had the pole, and was never headed.

RECORD FALLS

Haugdahl cornered more glory by smashing the track record formerly held by Ralph De Palma. He skidded around the oval in the remarkable time of 30s. flat in his 180-mile-an-hour wonder car, bettering the former mark by one second. This means that he was traveling at the rate of seventy-five miles per hour.

For pure, unadulterated excitement the Cannonball Baker motorcycle handicap took the blue ribbon. John Seymour and Gene Walker rode neck-and-neck most of a ten-lap grind, each taking the lead by a few scant feet occasionally. The two dare-devils lapped almost every other entrant in the race, taking the turns almost horizontal with the track, and roaring down the straight-away wide open. Seymour finally crossed the line an inch or two in front of Walker's bike. John Kreiger was third. The time equalled that made by the racing cars—5m. 24s.

Seymour also won the Bentel Helmet on his rapid bike, completing the one lap in 31 2-5s. The Ascot Helmet went to Leon Duray, whose Miller Special led the rest of the cars to the finish in 34s. flat.

TAKES A SPILL

The blood-thirsty fans almost got a thrill in the motorcycle handicap when John Duke spilled on the north turn in a brush with several other bikes. The fact that Duke was unhurt was in evidence when he smothered a fire which started on his prostrate bike. With characteristic promptness the ambulance and fire apparatus arrived just as Duke finished putting out the conflagration.

Arthur Davidson put a spectacular finish on the invitational race for autos when he shot his bronze Rajo Special inside E. R. Jensen's boat on the last turn to cross the line with few feet to spare. His time for the ten laps was 5m. 36s., E. A. Winfield taking third.

The five-lap Paul Derkum Stakes resulted in a victory for Gene

Walter Hagen, One of the Greatest of Pros

FROM CADDIE TO CHAMPION

Graphic Account of the Rise of Walter Hagen to Heights Never Reached by Contemporaries

BY WALTER HAGEN

Former American, British and French open champion, twice American title holder, and present holder of the North and South open and the Florida open and Texas open titles.

[Copyright, 1924, United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.]

[Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles written in an autobiographical form, of the life of America's most consistent tournament winner among the professional golfers. Articles by Mr. Hagan will appear daily in these columns of The Times.]

My earliest recollection of handling a golf club was when I was about 4 years old. There was an old Scotchman, a hardy old fellow, who used to come over once a week for an evening's chat with my father. I looked forward to those visits with a great relish for the old gentleman always carried a golf club with him, whether as a means of protection in his walk through the woods, or as a cane, or a sort of companion, I never knew. I do know that it served my purposes admirably—as a hobby horse.

No sooner had he parked his club in the hall than I had it between my legs and was taking the hurdles in an adjoining room, somewhat to the detriment of the furniture, I recall now that it was a broad-faced mashie, an excellent imitation—by a slight stretch of the imagination—of a steed's head. One night he caught me galloping about and, while he laughed heartily at the discovery, gravely informed me that the stick was made for another and, as I gathered, very serious purpose.

The next evening he came over earlier than usual and, taking me out in the yard, gave me my first lesson in its use. I can still see the gleam in that aged Scotchman's eye as he stood me in position and patiently aided my feeble wallops at an old baseball, which had been substituted, probably to spare my feelings, for the more elusive golf ball.

I might truthfully say that this was the beginning of my golf experience. That was toward the close of the year 1895. The previous summer the first American open golf championship had been played at Chicago, an event, which though I was too young to know what it was all about, provided my father and his friend with subject matter for many a long evening's confab. Little did I imagine, nor my father either, that not many years later I would be walloping a real golf ball over that same course for the championship of the United States.

AS A CADDIE

My first actual contact with the game came about, as it has with so many other successful golfers, through an apprenticeship at caddying. Some years later I was coming home from swimming with a party of boys when one of the fellows proudly exhibited two silver dollars which he claimed had been paid him for certain mysterious services rendered. After a bombardment of questions he reluctantly disclosed the source of this unheard-of wealth. It developed that a fellow could report at the Rochester Country Club, just outside of town, on Saturdays and Sundays, and, for the privilege of carrying a golf bag around the course — and incidentally adding liberally to his vocabulary — receive the magnificent recompense of a dollar and a quarter an hour.

Although I was much interested in baseball at that time I made up my mind that the prestige of a few loose dollars jingling in a fellow's pocket outweighed the transient glory of home runs with the bases full, and the following day applied at the club and got a job as caddie. It was not long before I had mastered all the tricks of the trade. Every caddie gets a lot of time to himself as it is necessary to be around the clubhouse in anticipation of work even when there is no one on the links. Our minds naturally turned to play and the play consisted in hitting golf balls at improvised holes or making targets of trees and fence poles.

This was the way I acquired my first insight into the game, and,

BENGALS BUMP CHICAGO CUBS

Blakesley's Triple Breaks Up Tilt in Ninth

Hack Miller Features With Drive Over Fence

Crowd of 10,000 Fans See Exhibition Game

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Jim Blakesley's triple to right center that scored Vern Blenkiron and Rod Murphy with two away in the ninth routed the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 7, and gave Bill Essick's Tigers an even break in their two-game series with the Windy City outfit. The game was witnessed by a husky preseason crowd of 10,000 fans.

Twenty-nine athletes, not counting bat boys and umpires, performed in the interesting and free-hitting contest. The Cubs used four pitchers, while the Tigers were content with a trio of twirlers.

HACK MILLER STARS

Hack Miller, the Cubs' strong man outfielder who traces his ancestry back to Hercules, Sampson and several other circus side show weight lifters, got himself very much in the public eye by knocking a home run, making a sensational catch and throwing the speedy Pete Schneider out at the plate.

Next to Hack, a new announcer answering to the hind name of Powers, was the feature attraction. Mr. Powers established what is believed to be a new record for making mistakes, eclipsing all the marks hung up by Dan Tobey, Charley Keppen and Old Man Godiva, who had to go out of the announcing game because his white horse died and his cornet burnt out a bearing. However, Mr. Powers showed rare quality of tone and with a trifle more experience it is expected that he will be able to make three-fifths of his announcements correct, which is a little above the average for baseball announcers.

Ken Penner, obtained from Sacramento during the winter, was on the mound for the Tigers and Rod Whitney was catching at the start of the game, while "Sheriff" Blake, formerly of Seattle, and Hartnett were Bill Killefer's starting battery.

SECOND FULL OF RUNS

There were no explosions in the first frame, but the second was full of action and runs. Barrett, Cub third sacker, started the inning by levelling one of Penner's offerings for a double. Then Hack Miller helped advertise Maier beer by walloping the ball clear over the Maier sign in center field. It was a real poke and the fans gave the ponderous Italian a cheer as he rounded the bases.

Vernon came back in its half of the second by scoring three runs and taking the lead. Blakesley

Eighty-four golfers who have reached the age of fifty without dampening their enthusiasm for the game, will tee off today in the fourth annual Pacific Coast senior championships at the Midwick Country Club. MERCURIES TIE OLYMPICS

Los Angeles Athletic Club Soccerites Come From Behind to Even Score With Bay City Eleven

After being two goals down at the half, the Los Angeles Athletic Club came back in the second half at the Coliseum yesterday and battled the classy San Francisco Olympics to a 2-2 finish. Thus a team from San Francisco has yet to win a game in this city this season, yesterday being the fourth attempt.

Fans wondered what had gone wrong with their Mercury outfit yesterday. They seemed to be at a loose end, and seemed to have no special aim in the game. Their combinations went awry and when they did get together and show some style, their shooting went on the blink.

In the first half they were two goals in the rear before the battle had gone along more than twenty minutes. The first came as the result of an alleged "hands" committed by Lyons inside the area, for which a penalty was awarded the visitors. Foster made no mistake about the shot which beat Melford to put the "Winged O's" one up.

PERFECT KICK

Soon after the resumption of hostilities the northerners pressed and a corner resulted from which Hay made a bonny center. Foster had his head in the way and Melford was beaten the second time. As a matter of fact, anything in the way of the ball would have deflected it into the net, so perfect was the kick from the flag.

From then on the Mercuries fought. They pressed at all times, and some of their real form came to the fore. They were combining less, but showing a little more aggressiveness. Hurley and Doyle did not seem to be up to themselves and the halfback line was the only part of the team doing anything.

Chesters broke through in fine style as soon as the second half opened, and after getting in front of the goal passed to Doc Brix, who made the point. Not long after Chesters made a hero of himself by netting the second and equalizing counter.

LACK CONDITION

Taking the teams in balance, the Olympics had the better of the play, but had not the staying powers of the locals. They were better shots, had a better combination, but lacked the condition to keep up the hot pace they set early. That's the reason they had to be content with a 2-2 score.

LOS ANGELES AWARDED TENNIS DOUBLES EVENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9. Officers and executive committee members were re-elected and sanctioned tournaments assigned dates for this year at yesterday's meeting here of the California Lawn Tennis Association.

Most of the meeting was devoted to discussion of aids for development of younger players. A special event for veterans—limited to men 45 years or older—was added to the Pacific Coast championships tournament.

Executive committeemen other than those from San Francisco are Joe Brunschwiler of Sacramento and Harvey Snodgrass, Roland Reinke, Tom Bundy and Nat Browne of Los Angeles. Browne also was re-elected president of the Southern Association. Among the tournaments sanctioned for this year were: Ojai, April 24-26; Central California championships (Sacramento) May 30-June 1; Santa Barbara championships June 13-15; Pacific Coast championships (Berkeley) June 21-29; sectional June 21-29; sectional doubles championships (Los Angeles) July 3-6; Del Monte championships August 15-17; California State and girls' national hard court championships (Berkeley) August 30-September 9; San Jose all-comers September 20, 21, 27, 28; Santa Clara county closed tournament, date not set.

MARION HOLLINS WINS

Defeats Doreen Kavanagh by One Stroke in Play-off for Montecito Invitational Title

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SANTA BARBARA, March 9.—Miss Marion Hollins, former national woman golf champion, won the Montecito Golf Club invitational tournament here today by defeating Miss Doreen Kavanagh, California State champion, in an eighteen-hole medal score play-off. Miss Kavanagh lost the tournament by a single stroke, Miss Hollins touring the course in 78 while her opponent went around in 79.

The two players yesterday tied for low score in the tournament with a net 169 apiece for the thirty-six holes of medal play.

In winning the play-off today with a 78 Miss Hollins negotiated the course four under woman's par. She played spectacular golf, particularly on the first eight holes, which she make in thirty strokes, taking a birdie 2 on the eighth.

On the ninth hole Miss Kavanagh, who was four down, picked up two strokes on her opponent, but in the next nine she failed, despite heroic efforts, to wipe out the rest of the deficit. Although she came in in 41, a stroke better than Miss Hollins's 42, she was still one stroke behind for the eighteen. Going out they scored: Hollins 36; Kavanagh 38; coming in it was: Hollins 42; Kavanagh 41.

Perfect weather aided the players and encouraged a large turnout of spectators.

Championship Within Grasp of Chicagoans

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, March 9.—Although three games remain in the Big Ten basketball schedule, Chicago is the only school with a claim to the conference championship that cannot be lost.

Wisconsin, now in third place, can tie for the title by winning her remaining two games with Iowa and Chicago. Illinois, in second position, can tie by a victory Monday night over Minnesota and a defeat of Chicago by Wisconsin.

Purdue, Ohio State and Indiana have closed the season in a tie, each having lost seven games and won five. Michigan finished with six won and six lost. Minnesota has won five and has a chance of finishing with a .500 average by defeating Illinois Monday.

Iowa won four and lost seven. Northwestern failed to register a single victory in her schedule of twelve games.

Dempsey and Gibbons Bout Up This Week

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 9.—Whether Jack Dempsey will defend his world's heavyweight championship title in a return bout against Tommy Gibbons here in June, is expected to be decided this week when the delayed conference between Jack Kearns, manager of the title holder, and promoter Tex Rickard, is scheduled to be held. Rickard asserted tonight he still is eager to close details for this match.

Dempsey will depart tomorrow on the Twentieth Century for his home in Los Angeles.

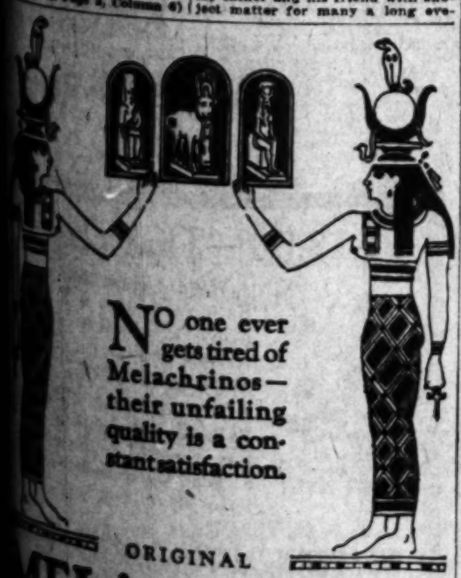
Wilhelm in Sensational Golf Drive

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FRESNO, March 9.—The most sensational long-distance driving ever seen on a local golf course was made here this afternoon by Peter Wilhelm of Fort Washington in an inter-club match with Riverside at the Riverside Club.

On number 13, Wilhelm's tee-shot was hole high to the pin. The hole is 333 yards. Many of his drives were from 250 to 290 yards during the eighteen holes of play.

Riverside's ten-man team defeated Fort Washington, 13 to 12. Next Sunday these clubs meet again on the Fort Washington Links.



Plenty of Competion Looms for Southern California Conference Baseball Outl

COACH SCHOTT'S POMONA NINE TO DEFEND TITLE

Local University of California and Caltech Tossers Also Look Like Strong Contenders

BY WRIGHT FIELD

Although the Southern California intercollegiate conference baseball season doesn't start until April 12 all of the clubs have been practicing for the past two weeks and some bitter competition seems assured. Last year's leading teams are practically as strong as they were in 1923 and the weaker clubs have been considerably strengthened.

Pomona College, champions in 1923, will miss the services of such stars as Paul Walker, Glenn Doughty, Don Cole, Evert Johnson and others, but Coach Carl Schott, who has lost only one peanant in the last seven years, has some mighty good men on hand again.

Rud Frater, captain-elect of the Sagehens, will be seen at first base, with the following lettermen also back: Wayne Ovington, Carrol Rawson, Roland Clark and Dick Worden. Worden plays short, while Ovington and Clark are outfielders. Rawson is a pitcher. From last season's frosh outfit Schott will have Earl Merritt and Doc Holsinger, pitchers. The latter is a left-hander and a good one, while Merritt uses a nice spitball. Miller and Doug Lowell, a catcher, are also promising sophomores.

LOTS OF VETERANS

The local University of California team, winners of second place in 1923, have a whole host of veterans back. Here is the imposing list: Aaron Wagner, captain and left fielder; Al Wagner, brother of Aaron and holder of the third base position; Cy Amestoy, star short stop; Al Monigomery, the Cub's first string moundsman; Lorain Peak, varsity catcher two years ago; Joe Ullman, last season's backstop; George Brock, pitcher; Bill Ackerman, varsity first baseman for two years, and Tommy Vail, pitcher. Those veterans who have not won their letters are Art Hodge, Vic Hansen, J. Rodgers, George Day, Brayson Turney, Bus Jennings and Phil Haddox.

Coach Fred Cousens has a mighty sweet pitcher in Al Montgomery, the flasy southpaw. The Cub twirler turned in some great games last year and is due for a big season.

Caltech grabbed third honors last season. Holly Moyse, the Babe Ruth of th eclacal league, is in the fold again, as are Fred Groat, one of the real fast-ball pitchers in the loop, and Weltekamp, receiver. The Engineers look good for a strong bid at first honors.

RUBE ELLIS BACK

With the redoubtable Rube Ellis handling the Whittier athletes again the Poets are sure to be dangerous. Ranzona, a capable hearer, Johns, Fraser and quite a few other vets are on hand again.

Occidental is blessed with a new coach in the person of Wilkie Clark. The Tiger old timers are Tanaka, hard-hitting outfielder; DeMandel, third sacker; Lindquist, infielder; Brett, Powers and Argue. The last two athletes still have a lot of track work bothering them and won't be out for some time.

Redlands is in a bad hole, having lost Jensen, a good pitcher, and Jess Smith, the team's mainstay for the past four years. Perhaps Coach Cushman can get together a new combination.

Here's how they finished last season:

Team	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
Pomona	7	2	.778
Long B. C.	7	2	.778
Caltech	5	4	.556
Occ	3	5	.500
Whittier	3	7	.300
Redlands	2	6	.250

COACHES PICKED FOR POMONA FROSH NINE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLAREMONT, March 9.—Eugene White Nixon, director of athletics at Pomona College, announced yesterday that Colvin Heath, assistant varsity football coach, and Carl Sawyer had been appointed as coaches of the Pomona College freshman baseball team this season. Practice under the newly appointed coaches begins next week with suits distributed to Babes' horsehide artists Monday afternoon.

A raft of freshmen are expected to turn out for the first-year diamond team and a record bunch of embryo players are expected to be tossing the leather pellet around the local lot within the next few days.

although I began it backwards, I think now that it was the very best way to learn. If everyone who takes up golf would begin by hitting the ball a very short distance I am sure they would master the true golfing stroke much more quickly and easily.

TRIES A PUTTER

It is well to begin first of all with only a putter. Learning to hit the ball is the first thing we must do and it is likely that one will learn much easier with the simple strokes and then work back through the mashie, the mid-iron and the driving-iron to the wooden clubs. If this is done the drive is much simpler to perfect. I think it was months after I took up golf before I ever swung a driver. Pitching the ball at trees and putting on uneven ground helped to develop a touch. Most professionals learn golf this way and it is the real basis for a sound game.

Every boy loves to imitate his elders and, while I had no thought of becoming a golf player when I began to caddy, I soon got into the habit of mimicking the stance and swings of the various players.

It was not long before I knew a good stroke from a bad one. I could pick out the faults in the styles of the different golfers and knew instantly where they were wrong. I soon began to play a little by myself in the evenings and my game developed fast. I would spend hours watching the club professional, Al Christie, giving lessons to beginners and then would go off and practice the various strokes.

"I was later to get a valuable lesson from Al Christie, although one only indirectly related to golf.

All this while I had not entirely given up my baseball, at which I was rather adept, and every other Saturday and Sunday I used to play on one of the local semi-professional ball teams, receiving $5 a game for my work.

One Saturday afternoon, after the game, an incident occurred which nearly altered the entire course of my career.

Allen Cricket Squad Defeats Everett Team

Cricket fans were given another rare treat yesterday at the Goodyear playgrounds when the Allen team locked horns with the Everett team, taking them for the count by a score of 104 to 37 the first period and 104 to 112 the second period. The game was a ding-dong affair from the start to finish with good playing paramount throughout the fray. The Allens had the best of the bargain quite considerably the first inning, but the Everett men came back in the second canto and gave them a very close race.

Percival was the star of the day, making the high score of 28 in both periods. Zooney came next with 27 to his credit. Smith and Allen came next on the list with 22 apiece. Huckzale, 31, and Everett, 27, came next as the high scorers. For such an exciting game there was a very small crowd present.

At 427 Wall street tomorrow all the cricket men are to meet en masse to take up matters of business and boosting of the sport in the Southland.

Denver Polo Four Crushes Cavalry Team

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CORONADO, March 9.—In the second preliminary polo game of Coronado's season, the Denver team got revenge for their Friday defeat by walloping the Eleventh Cavalry by a score of 6 to 4. The game today was marked by a much better brand of polo than was exhibited in Friday's game. The Denver team playing together for the second time showed better team work and rode furiously to win. The individual plays for the cavalry of Capt. Rogers and Lieut. Litman were the feature of the game. For the Denver team Capt. Ervin and Lafayette Hughes displayed splendid ability.

The line-up as follows:

Denver—Lafayette Hughes, Barrie Huston, Capt. Ervin, L. B. Humphreys.

Eleventh Cavalry — Capt. Joe Rogers, Capt. Waldron, Lieut. Litman, Lieut. Pete Conlon.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TULARE, March 9.—Fight for basketball championship of the San Joaquin Valley will open at the local high school gymnasium Friday, the 14th inst., when the Tulare American Legion team meets that of Fresno Legionnaires in the first of three games. Fresno won the northern title, battling teams in Fresno and Kings counties, while Tulare won the southern honor in Tulare county. The second game will be played in Fresno, and the third on a neutral court. Don Abercrombie is manager of the Tulare team, while Cliff McCarl heads the Fresno contingent.

MR. RICH BURSTS FORTH IN INDIGNATION AT EVERYBODY

Mr. Braven Dyer, Los Angeles Times, First & Broadway, Los Angeles, California.

Dear Sir: In order that we may better understand one another, I will try and introduce myself—I am known in my home town, Whittier, as Bill Rich,—my mail comes addressed to W. G. Rich. You as an attendant at Pomona College, no doubt knew one of this family, one of which played on your football team; Long Beach High had two; Hollywood High one and I have two growing up here for Whittier.

If you have time you might look up the record of this family along atheletic lines in the State of Mass. We never set the world on fire, but we have always shot square.

Whittier College has in the past been for some reason gall and wormwood for quite a few sport, or better worded "Short Sport" writers in various Los Angeles newspapers.

A few days ago you intimated that if our College Basketball Team did not play S. B. U. C. Team on the U. S. C. floor, that they were short sports.

This morning you say that S. B. U. C. were sports enough to play on the U. S. C. floor.

I do not believe that you have written either article, only on your own information. I do not believe anybody with any sporting blood in them could have or would have written either article, providing they had the information, which is common knowledge at both schools.

I am giving you now the facts in this case, and you can do one of two things, come clean with them or ignore them. It is up to you as a sport writer:

First—The S. B. U. C. Team practiced on the U. S. C. court for their game with Pomona College. They claimed to Whittier that they had never had any opportunity to practice on that court.

Second—They had rented their court for Wednesday night March 5th.

Third—They sold in the neighborhood of 1000 tickets to this game.

Fourth—After this was done, they began a campaign through the Los Angeles newspapers to have the game played on the U. S. C. Court.

Fifth—They then get in communication with Whittier College and urge that the game be played on the U. S. C. Court. In face of all this you call them good sports.

Do you know that Whittier College was offered this game on a forfeit to them? Do you know that Whittier College refused it, and in face of what had been done played them on a Court on which they had practiced for two weeks? Do you know that Pres. Moore or Pres. Dexter of Whittier might give you information which would show you who were the true sports in this case.

If you do not, you can easily find it out and it is your duty, as a writter of the article published under your name to find it out and place this square before the followers of Basket Ball in Southern California.

While you are doing this ask Coach Nixon if he had previous to football season last fall, a new set of contracts offered him by S. B. U. C. after all contracts with the other schools, including S. B. U. C. had been signed.

There are a lot of things you could find out which I believe might place a better feeling between yourself and Whittier College.

This goes for Bill Hanrey too.

Respectfully yours,

W. G. RICH

SPRING TRAINING CAMP NEWS

BOYES SPRINGS, March 9.—Hammering two pitchers all over the lot, the San Francisco ball club celebrated its final practice game of the training season with the Santa Rosa J. Hamiltons" 17 to 6. Having had no practice in ten days, the Santa Rosa outfit played rapped ball behind "Shorty" Hodge, permitting the Seals to score nine runs in the third inning.

After that there was nothing to the game. Hodge pitched for six innings and did as well as could be expected with poor support. Jones, who replaced Hodge, was unable to check the batting onslaught of the Seals, who hit everything he pitched.

Williams pitched the full nine innings for San Francisco and looked pretty good. He did not issue a single free ball and held the Sonoma county team to five scattered singles.

Schmidt was the batting sensation of the game, gathering four hits out of five trips to the plate. Hyde made a home run off Schmidt, a left-handed hurler. Paul Strand drove Hyde's pet peg over the diamond into the automobiles parked about the diamond, which would have gone for homers in ordinary ball parks, but were limited to two bases by ground rules. He also singled.

Two former Seals, Roy Cochrane and Nick Williams, umpired. The score:

Santa Rosa	6	5	5
San Francisco	17	17	1

Batteries—Hodge, Schmidt and Perez, Spencer; Williams and Yelle, Agnew.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MYRTLEDALE, March 9.—A large crowd of visiting Oakland baseball fans saw their Coast League pennant hopes at first beat this afternoon in a nine-inning ball game.

Especially pleasing to the eye were Kunz and Shuster, who pitched for the gray Oaks and won the ball game for their side by a score of 7 to 2. Kunz allowed but four hits in five innings, while Shuster, who relieved him, struck out seven men in the remaining four.

Ray Arlett drove in both the runs for the White team, one on a homer, which he knocked over Cooper's head in the fourth frame.

Harry Seibold, who pitched for the Whites, looked good for three innings. Harris, who relieved Cox and pitched well for the Oaks, was touched for the one hour of work. The score:

Whites	2	6	2
Grays	7	7	0

With the score tied, 3 to 3, the Japanese gathered three runs in the seventh and put the game on ice. The local boys ran the bases in the ninth as the Salt Lake Bees gave out wasteful and blut. The score:

started the rally with a vicious triple against the score board and held third while Schneider grounded out. Slade hit to short and Vogel threw the ball itno the dugout. Blakesley scoring and Slade taking second on the wild heave. Griffin walked and was forced at second by Whitney, Slade going to third. Then Penner blasted a double to left that sent both runners over the rubber.

Penner got by two-thirds of the third inning all right, but then Heathcote singled, Grantham walked and Barrett tripled, putting the Cubs in front once more.

TIGERS GO IN FRONT

Bob Osburn took Blake's place on the mound for the Cubs, while Frank Keck, late of the Cincy Reds, relieved Penner for Vernon in the fourth. Keck got by without being scored on in the three innings he worked, but the Tigers bunched three hits and a walk off Osburn for three more runs in the sixth inning. Whitney's double scored Slade and Griffin with the two runs that put the Bengals in front, 6 to 4.

Wheeler and Churry formed a new Cub battery in the seventh, while Ray Glider took up the pitching duties for Vernon in the same inning.

The score remained 6 to 4 until the first of the ninth when the Cubs larruped Glider hard and often, scoring three runs and wiping out the locals' lead.

Adams, batting for Wheeler, started the inning tame enough by lining to Jack Wafner at third. Churry singled to center and scored when Statz put one by Pete Schneider to the right-field bleachers for a triple. Grigsby, who had replaced Heathcote in right for the Cubs, sent a sacrifice fly to Blakesley that scored Statz and evened the count. Turgeon, who had taken Grantham's place at second, kept up the rally by singling to left and Barrett followed with another bingle that sent Turgeon to third. Whereupon Hack Miller busted one to center that scored Turgeon with what was presumably the winning run. Vogel lined to Gillespie to end the inning.

BENGALS RALLY

It looked like curtains for Bill Essick's outfit but the Tigers came back with one of their ninth-inning rallys and sent over two tallies for victory. Ernie Osborne was pitching for the Cubs and Vern Plenkhorn, batting for Glider, worked him for a walk. Warner sacrificed the former sprint champ to second, but Gillespie could do nothing for the cause and ingloriously whiffed. Rod Murphy drew four wide ones and then Blakesley delivered his triple and the ball game was over.

The Cubs leave for Catalina Island today where they will continue practice until Friday when they come back to the mainland for a game with the Angels at Long Beach. The Seraphs and Cubs continue their series at Washington Park next Saturday and Sunday. The score:

BEAR SHOT WINS FEATURE

Meadowbrook Filly Cops Tijuana Star Race and Equals Track Record for Four Furlongs

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, March 9.—Bear Shot, the Meadowbrook Stable's fleet filly, won the Juvenile Stakes of $3500 added at the Tijuana track near here today, easily outdistancing her field to win in a canter. The daughter of War Shot-Los Flores was the sixth choice in the betting, but disposed of Silent Pardner, the front runner, early, and then opened up a gap. Bear Shot equaled the track record of 47 4-5 seconds for the four furlongs.

Not Enough, a third choice, got the place, with the show going to John T. D.

New Beauty, one of the Applegate candidates for the Tijuana Derby, won the sixth race, a handicap for 3-year-olds. Cherokee Lee got the place, with Voorgold, an outsider, getting the show. Summaries:

First race, five and one-half furlongs—Margaret White (J. Smith,) won; Cannonball (Cantrell,) second; Little Emile (Cooper,) third. Time, 1:04 2-5.

The Running Hop, Step and Jump

The running hop, step and jump is not a standard event, although it has been included in every Olympiad program. In earlier days it was known as the running triple jump and at that time the standing high jump, the standing broad jump and the standing triple jump were also listed with the better known track and field events. Ewry, the American champion, won standing broad, high and triple event in the 1900 and 1904 internationals (added to the program in 1900) and in 1906 won the standing broad and standing high jump. The standing triple was eliminated from this meet and at the present time is classed with the other obsolete odd events.

The standing broad and high jump competitions were used for the last time in the 1908 Olympics and at this Olympiad, Ewry again won both events. In America they are listed with the indoor events and they form a part of the regular national indoor program.

The running hop, step and jump was added to the national outdoor program in 1913, was dropped for 1920 and resumed in 1924. In certain respects it is a duplicate of the running broad jump and in view of the fact that we have a top-heavy field schedule, it has no real place in the average track and field program. It differs from the all-round competition, in this respect for there is a definite need for both the Decathlon and Pentathlon. It is tolerated, at the present time, because it is included in the nationals and because it still belongs to the Olympic group.

CHANCES DECREASED

The American committee has always been more than willing to yield to the demands of the other nations in these matters with the result that our chances of winning have been materially decreased. A less tolerant attitude might have been in order if our success had been of a mediocre character but in view of the fact that we have always won the track and field games, we can scarcely take an arbitrary stand in the matter of events.

Many of our experts feel that a mistake was made in eliminating the 56-lb. weight throw and all of them agree that the hop, step and jump is a less preferable competition. The former decision was not protested because we have been tremendously successful in this particular weight test and little was said about the latter event because it is now a favorite competition in Finland, Norway and Sweden.

The triple jump was first scheduled in the 1896 games at Athens and was won by Connolly of America with a jump of 45ft. In the second meet at Paris (in 1900) the event was won by Prinstein, the American running broad jump champion, with a mark of 47ft. 4 1-4 in. Prinstein also won at the St. Louis Games in 1904 with a jump of 47ft. even.

O'CONNOR VICTORIOUS

O'Connor of Ireland won the 1906 Athens competition with 46ft. 2in. Ahearn of England won the event at London in 1908 with a mark of 48ft. 11 1-4in. This made a new Olympic record (still stands.) D. F. Ahearn of America holds the world's record of 50ft. 11in.

In 1912 at Stockholm, Sweden won all three places. Lindblom was first with 14.75 meters; Aberg was second with 14.51 meters, and Almlof was third with 14.17 meters.

In 1920 the competition was particularly keen as the sixth place man was less than a foot and a half behind the winner. In this meet, Tuulos of Finland was the winner with a jump of 47ft. 7 1-8in (14.505 meters;) Jasson of Sweden was second with 47ft. 6 1-8in (14.48 meters;) Almlof (who placed third in the 1912 Olmpic) was third with 46ft. 9 3-4in. (14.275 meters;) Sahlin of Sweden was fourth with 46ft. 6 1-8in. (14.175 meters;) Landers of the United States was fifth with 46ft. 6 1-8in (14.17 meters,) and Ahearn of the United States (the world's record holder) was sixth with a jump of 46ft. 2 2-5in. (14.08 meters.)

It is a foregone conclusion that the 1928 Olympic program will schedule this event if our opponents are as successful in the Paris games this summer and if this is the case we have no other recourse than to make the best of it by shaping our own program in accordance with the international ruling.

Collegiate co-operation is out of the question, for at the present time there exists a sentiment in favor of a smaller field event section and this agitation has been chiefly directed toward the discus and hammer events. This revolt against a very desirable program was chiefly squelched because of our dire need of Olympic performers but the proponents of the Olympic events would have little chance of inserting an additional event.

We can, however, if necessary, make a feature of such an event in the summer meets and in the preliminary relay carnivals. The Penn Relays organization lists the event as a part of their special program and it is probable that others could be induced to lend their support.

This year we have a remarkable performer in DeHart Hubbard, the phenomenal Michigan jumper. Hubbard won the 1922 championship with a jump of 43ft. 1½in. and in 1923 duplicated his win with a mark of 47ft. ½in. In the Penn relay meet he jumped—under poor conditions—43ft. 10 3-4 in. He shows as much ability in this triple jump as he does in the single running jump and there is no reason why he should not outdistance all of his Olympic competitors this summer.

In view of the fact that the running broad jump will be scheduled four days in advance of the triple jump, there is a strong possibility of his breaking the long-standing Olympic record. Hubbard has had enough competition during the past two years and enough success to qualify as a real campaigner although he has dropped slightly below par on one or two occasions.

Harold Osborne, national decathlon champion and high jump champion, rates as our second best jumper and may be counted upon in the Olympics. Osborne placed second in the 1922 nationals with a jump of 46ft. 9 1-4in. and is generally capable of making a forty-seven-foot jump. With additional practice—and this is doubtful for he has such a varied program to handle—he might approachin the forty-nine-foot mark.

SHOWS PROMISE

Plansky, now of Georgetown, shows a great deal of promise in this event and in the 1922 nationals placed third with a jump of 45ft. 10½in. He was third in the 1923 meet with 45ft. 2½in. In this meet he was beaten by Geist, a member of the last Olympic team and a former national champion.

Geist won the 1923 Metropolitans with a jump of 46ft. 4½in. and placed second in the 1923 nationals with a 46ft. 10in. jump. Geist has made a remarkable sequence of wins in the New York and eastern section and can regularly be counted upon to clear slightly better than forty-six feet although he failed to qualify in the 1924 Olympic trials.

Although his record entitles him to a place in advance of Osborne, it seems probable that he will be beaten by the Middle Westerner, in the event that Osborne elects to take a try at this competition. Plansky has a similar opportunity to win over Geist although the odds favor the New Yorker.

Prem, of the Baltimore Cross-Country Club, is another possibility although he can hardly be termed an Olympic prospect. He has a record of better than forty-six feet but in the recent meets he has failed to make any significant jumps. The same may be said of Jacquith of the Illinois Athletic Club. His average competitive jump is in the vicinity of forty-five feet. He placed fourth in the 1923 nationals with 45ft. 2in.

The various collegiate competitors are well under the forty-five-foot mark and for this reason cannot be considered as prospective members of the team. In conclusion it is safe to predict that Hubbard will be returned the winner, by a substantial margin, and by the same method of reasoning it may be said that our other contenders have a dubious chance of scoring.

DOWNEY NINE VICTORIOUS

Noses Out Ptomaine Tommies 4 to 3 by Spurt in Ninth Inning; Rudd's Double Does It

In a game that was a fight from start to finish, the Downey nine nosed out the Ptomaine Tommy baseball team at the winner's field, 4 to 3, yesterday afternoon. The game was never decided until the last round, when Nolan, pitcher, weakened, allowing the home team to bring in two runs, which put them one run in the lead.

The Tommys jumped into the lead in the fifth inning when they scored two runs and one more in the eighth put them two in the lead. Rudd won the game when he found Nolan for a double with the bases filled, scoring two tallys. The hitting and fielding of Parsons for the winners was a feature of the game, as was the stick work and fielding of Lampic, Springman and Virgil for the losers. Havle pitching in steady style did much to hold the strong Potomaine Tommy nine to ten hits.

Orientals Are Vanquished by Cubs, 12 to 4

In the contest of East vs. West yesterday at Ross Snyder Field the California Cubs handed the Los Angeles Chinese a sound drubbing to the tune of 12 to 4. Things were going along about even until the eight inning when the Cubs rang up six markers. This was due to the blowing up of Eddie, twirler for the Chinese, who walked two men with the bases filled enabling the Cubs to make twelve runs out of ten hits. On the other hand, Barret, heaver for the winners, played in excellent form and much credit is given to him for winning the game. The feature of the game was the number of stolen bases taken during the fray, which totaled six. McDaniel and Cano handled the stick to good effect, smashing out two, two-base hits apiece.

ECHO PARK OUTFIT GRABS ANOTHER WIN

Echo Park added another victory to its list yesterday when it took the W. H. Fickett Company nine down the line by a 7-to-5 score. The game was closely contested throughout and only by bunching hits in the third and eighth innings were they able to put over the defeat, on the visitors. This makes fifty-three games won out of fifty-six for Echo Park. Knox, twirler for the winners, did his act right royally and held the visitors to a total of ten hits against fourteen garnered off Kout. Two base hits were many. Sousa, Knox, G. Knox, Lorenzi, two, Willie Kout and Britten.

Jack Jacob's Outfit is Winner Over Crown City Nine, 10 to 3

Manager Jack Jacobs's Bozzani Motor Car Company nine, formerly the Post 8, American Legion team, played its first game under its new name yesterday at Brookside Park and handed the Crown City outfit a 10-to-3 trimming at the same time.

Pico hurled for the Bozzani Motor Car club and allowed but four hits. Manager Jacobs says that he expects his shortstop, Truehill, and catcher, Vejar, to be picked up by some professional team soon. Score:

MONTEBELLO CLEANS UP MINOR BUILDERS

Montebello took the Minor Building Company baseball team for the count yesterday at the winner's diamond, by a score of 9 to 3. The home team bunched all nine runs in the first four innings and were held to no score for the rest of the game. Although the building company scored runs in the eighth and ninth innings it was not enough to overcome the lead established by the winners. The game was cluttered up by a great many errors which was the chief means of scoring. Ward played a flashy game of ball, pulling off a double unassisted and a good game at short. Briggs leaped into the limelight when he made a couple of beautiful catches in left field. B. Johnson, Shing, Ward and Dunbar each turned some excellent stick work.

Armstrong, with two triples and a double, was the hitting star, while his team-mate Harper got a pair of bingles. McCue and Johnstone, each collected a couple of bingles for the winners. The score:

Riverside Polo Players Nose Out Cardinals

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, March 9.—Smarting from their defeat at the hands of the San Mateo Cardinals here last Friday, the Riverside polo club four staged a comeback today and won from the Cards by a score of 10 to 9, despite the fact that the visitors went into the game with a five-goal handicap.

The game was one of the best exhibitions of horsemanship and shooting witnessed on a local field this season and a large crowd of spectators were present.

Harry East of Riverside was the star of the game. Outriding and outhitting the defense, he made five goals, while Albright made two, Roe one and Prince one, for the locals.

Boeseke scored two points for the Cardinals, with Tevis and Driscoll each making one goal.

The line-up follows:

Cardinals	Position	Riverside
Moore	1	Albright
Driscoll	2	East
Boeseke	3	Roe

DON'T OVER-GOLF

YOU'LL LOSE YOUR EAGERNESS FOR THE GAME - ALSO YOUR CONCENTRATION AND SNAP.

As far as the effect on a player's game is concerned, is there such a thing as playing too much golf?

Answered by

"The Carpenter of Troon," whose great gameness and mastery of golf make him feared at all tournaments. Particularly competent on approach shots.

You can just bet there is such a thing as playing too much golf! If a player does play too much his muscles lose their snap and he can't concentrate decently on the game—in fact, the thing is not a game when you are overgolfed—it is unpleasant hard work.

A schedule which I find beneficial in getting ready for tournaments, while avoiding overgolfing, is this: I am on the links every day. Three days a week I practice one hour in the morning and one in the afternoon—and I mean practice, not playing around the course. On the other four days I play a round or so, but not enough to tire me very much or to make me want to stop. I always rest the day before a match and won't even look at a club or talk golf during that day.

HATTERS WIN CLOSE GAME

Glendora Nine is Defeated 7 to 5 in Contest Held On Home Grounds; Lugo Features With Bat

With Phillips pitching a good, steady game, and the field backing him up, the Barry Hats nine trimmed the Glendora team in an exciting game yesterday by the score of 7 to 5. The visitors had things their own way the first part of the fray because of a rally in the third inning that netted them three runs. Glendora made their only run during the first part of the game in the fourth round at bat. They found the ball for a come-back in the eighth canto, and four men crossed the home plate for that many runs. This made the score five all.

The Hatters won the day when they bunched two runs in the last round. The teams were evenly matched, and the stick work of Dwarte, Bates and Creed for the Barrys, coupled with the fielding of Barnes and Ames, was timely. Lugo was the heavy hitter for the home team. The score:

TAKAHASHI TAKES ON AD SANTEL TONIGHT

Will Ad Santel meet his equal in the personage of Prof. Takahashi? This question will be answered tonight when the claimant of the world's light-heavyweight wrestling championship meets the Japanese professor on the mat. Santel is probably the best grappler in his class and an artist with the jiu-jitsu art. In the Orient Santel is said to have defeated fifty-seven of jiu-jitsu matmen and as many more at home. The match promises to be a thriller, however, as Santel will meet a man above the ordinary and who will probably meet him more than half way at his own game.

In the preliminary bouts Pete Buzokos has lined up Wallace Donget and John Hackenschmit and Young George and Jimmy Wilson.

Seattle Team Loses in Ninth to Irvine Gang

Neal Raney's single with two men on and two out in the ninth inning drove in the winning run and gave Manager Trickey's Irvine Beanpickers a 5-to-4 win over the Seattle Indians in an exhibition game staged yesterday on the victorious club's diamond.

"Radiant Red" Killefer, manager of the Seattle club, held down second for the Indians. Vic Pigg and "Wheezer" Dell, Seattle pitchers, were used in the outfield by Killefer. Dell featured with a home run.

Brucker and F. Williams hit hard for the Indians, while Raney, Rodgers, B. Armbel and Mass led the hitting attack for the home club. Score:

CLOSING OF BORDER LINE IS APPROVED

CALEXICO PEOPLE FIND NEW RULING IS BENEFICIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CALEXICO, March 9.—Directors of the Calexico Chamber of Commerce after an executive session today telegraphed the United States Treasury Department to disregard protests against the closing of the international boundary line here at 9 p.m. The action of the directors was taken to refute rumors that Calexico business interests are opposed to the closing of the line and were endeavoring to have the recent order of the department modified. Several telegrams were sent to the Treasury Department as well as to Senators and Congressmen declaring that the closing rule is proving satisfactory to Calexico people and that the order should not be altered.

Since the line was closed at 9 p.m. last Wednesday night, only one arrest for drunkenness has been made by the Calexico police up to this afternoon.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. Hurwitz said in issuing his order that although the company from information published in its own report, has sold $85,000 worth of stock, it has declared no dividend and apparently has no revenue. Romaine Fielding is director and former president of the company.

In All the World No Trip Like This

World's Highest Waterfall, Greatest Rocks and Biggest Trees

Nature's sublimest expressions are to be found, as a rule, far from cities, to be reached only by long and arduous traveling.

But in California it's different!

Yosemite Valley, masterpiece of the Creator, is just overnight from Southern California—you can have luncheon tomorrow in full view of the 2565-foot drop of Yosemite Falls, the highest of all cataracts. Not far away are the world's greatest monoliths—Half Dome and El Capitan. Truly magnificent—the oldest and biggest of all living things!—are the mighty Sequoias in the Mariposa Grove of 600 Big Trees, reached by a pleasant motor trip from Sentinel Hotel.

It's springtime now in Yosemite—don't miss seeing the Park while you are in California. Ask for folders.

THE REAL

Theodore Roosevelt

AS TOLD IN THE PRIVATE LETTERS OF

Maj. Archie Butt,

Aide and Intimate of "T. R."

Copyright, 1924, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

CAPT. BUTT TO MRS. LEWIS FORD BUTT

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 15, 1909.

Dear Clara:

The Tafts are coming tomorrow, and I will have an interview with them and possibly learn definitely whether I am to remain with them or not.

Even Gen. Edwards feels a difference, and he was quite short about Mrs. Taft this morning when I suggested that he speak to her on the subject of automobiles.

"I expect to make no more suggestions to her," he said. "You get no thanks for anything you do."

"Hoity toity," I thought. "So you too, are feeling the change which comes to those in the seats of the mighty."

Somehow I am glad I never knew the Roosevelts until after they were in the White House, or possibly I may have seen some difference in them, too. But their old intimates tell me it has made no difference to them whatever in the matter of their personal friendships, yet I occasionally hear regrets that they have become so exclusive. It must be the same to all.

FEELS BARRIER

I have always contended that there is no way that one can possibly keep a footing of informality with occupants at the White House. Even the President's sisters, when they are not visiting there, cannot run in and out when they choose, and if they wish to see Mrs. Roosevelt they are forced to make engagements ahead, just as a stranger would have to do. The moment one ceased to be a part of the household, that moment places a barrier between him and the house itself.

This morning when I went there Mrs. Roosevelt was going out, and she stopped long enough to ask me to destroy the Chartran portrait and two others which she had taken from the walls and which were leaning in the corridor. She also suggested that I break up the china which was shipped.

I have been called to the telephone twice since I began to write this letter by persons who want me to recommend them for one thing or the other to Mrs. Taft. I find that I have the reputation of being the chief confidant of the Tafts, which is rather amusing as I am more uncertain of my attitude to them, or rather their attitude to me, than possibly anyone who is near them at all. I try to adjust my position in relation to them for your interest, otherwise I would not bother to think twice about the matter. If I have any interest in remaining with them at all it comes from the fact that I should like to see from the inside just what they will do and how they will act.

I have ordered cards for dinner, luncheons and receptions engraved for them, for I presume they will want to begin at once to issue invitations, but I am not certain whether they want the old form followed or not, or whether they will change the name from the "White House" back to the hideous name "Executive Mansion." If they do this I will leave of my own accord, for it will mean that there is something fundamentally wrong with them. Bad temper I can stand, but not bad taste. twenty days from now this will be lese-majesty.

As ever, your affectionate brother, Archibald.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) February 16, 1909.

Dear Clara:

All of my theories about Mrs. Taft vanish when I see Mr. Taft. And he has a wonderful way of dispelling all forebodings.

They arrived this morning and telephoned me before I was out of bed to call at 10 o'clock. A lot of things had to ge gone over and settled about the inauguration. She greeted me so friendly, and the Secretary was so wholesome and cheerful, that I really felt remorse at what I had written last night about them. She thanked me for all that I have done, and when I asked her whom she wanted to go with her to the Capitol on the day day of inauguration she said she wanted me if it were permissible. We will go alone in the motor car, one which she will pick out while she is in New York, and come back before the procession starts from the Capitol, in order to have lunch ready by the time the President arrives. She will ask about seventy-five guests and relatives, and in addition to these she will probably have the class of '78 from Yale. I think that is the year. But it will be his classmates.

SERVANTS RETAINED

She is going to retain all the servants in the White House and only make such changes as she sees fit from time to time. She feels that I have managed everything so far with great tact and without having any friction arise between the Roosevelts and themselves. I feel that if others had tried to be as friendly to both there would be no friction at all. But at such times people will carry tales and harp on fears until they make both parties suspicion, and once suspicion is aroused, it is so easy to misconstrue every act. She starts in with nine guests on the 5th of March, and as soon as these go there will be others to come. She naively remarked:

"I think it better to entertain all the relatives as soon as possible, for they will all expect to be entertained at the White House sooner or later, and it is well to have these obligations over and done with."

He was looking bronzed and tanned from his trip to Panama, and seemed in fine humor. As he came into the room he said:

"Hello, Archie; how is my fellow Georgian?"

I felt that Georgia was certainly gaining in distinction when I have two Presidents claiming clanship through my old State. It is one of Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite forms of greetings.

He (Mr. Taft) heard me talking of the arrangements for the inauguration day and asked me what we were discussing. I told him and he said that it was customary for the wife of the President-elect to take with her to the Senate chamber the wives of the incoming Cabinet. He cut me off short and said:

"No need to consider that, then, for I will have no other Cabinet on the 4th of March but the one now in. Neither the members of the prospective Cabinet, and certainly not their wives, will have the slightest standing on the 4th of March. I will continue to meet the present Cabinet until my own will have been confirmed by the Senate."

That settled that point, but he did not gratify my curiosity as to who these members of the new Cabinet would be.

HUNTERS DULL

The luncheon at the White House today was for the members of the hunting party, and it was rather a dreary affair. I fear the President will have to depend on the wild beasts of Africa for excitement, for he will certainly have a tame set of men with him. I think they are all pretty game fellows, but they appear heavy and certainly there does not seem to be an ounce of humor in the entire lot. Maj. Mearns is not in good health and was retired for some internal disease, and it would not surprise me to hear that he was forced to return at any time.

The President said he was taking nine pair of eye glasses with him, for if he should lose his glasses or be without them, he would have to return at once or wait for other glasses to reach him. He says he is not a first-class shot and thinks it due to his eyes. He does not hesitate to speak of his weaknesses, and it is a matter of great mortification to him that he is not a more certain shot. However, he is far above the average from what little I have seen of his practice with the rifle.

I have no fear that he will not be able to get the lion where he needs must get him or be eaten.

The meeting between the President and Taft was most cordial today.

ARCHIBALD.

ENEMIES ENJOY FRENCH PLIGHT

Drop in Franc Value Seen as Part of Plot

Financial Crisis Impends as New Low Touched

Government Loan Cessation Urged as Remedy

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, March 9.—All France's political enemies are elated over the drop of the franc to 3.42 cents, the lowest in its history. They are openly expressing the hope that the continued fall of the franc will plunge the country into serious economical difficulties and force a change in her foreign policy.

The French regard the open expression of these hopes as sufficient indication that Germans and others, by speculative moves on the Zurich, Amsterdam, London and New York stock exchanges are sparing no efforts to help the downward movement of the franc.

SENSITIVE SPOT

That the hostile foreign hopes have touched a sensitive spot is clearly indicated by fact that two great conservative Parisian dailies, Le Temps and L'Echo De Paris, have been repeating in the last few days that the only way to save France's strong independent foreign policy is by a complete cessation of government loans and the speedy readaptation of government expenditures to the government receipts, even though by this policy those, whose homes in the devastated regions have not yet been rebuilt, may be obliged to wait indefinitely.

The tax increases and economy measures proposed by the government two months ago and voted by the Chamber of Deputies a fortnight ago are still ineffective because of the obstruction in the Senate finance committee. Premier Poincare went before the committee recently and declared unless the bills were reported out and the actual discussion was opened in the Senate by next Tuesday he would resign the Premiership, because in his opinion the recent steady decline of French exchange was due almost entirely to the expectation of France's opponents that the Senate would smother the proposed tax and reform measure.

OFFER TO HELP

The finance committee, confronted by this strong ultimatum, professed an earnest desire to co-operate with the government, and the bills probably will be laid before the Senate Tuesday or Wednesday.

Fresh cause for alarm is provided by the weekly report of the Bank of France, which indicates that nearly 1,000,000,000 francs in paper money have been issued within the last week.

"This report," says ex-Senator Henri Beranger, "shows that the note circulation which legally must not exceed 41,000,000,000 francs, is already more than 40,000,000,000 francs, whereas, in last December it was only 27,000,000,000 francs. This proves that 4,000,000,000 paper francs have been issued recently.

TREASURY CRISIS

"Furthermore the advances of the bank to the State, which must not exceed 23,200,000,000 francs, have already reached 22,100,000,000 francs. These two circumstances prove that there is a treasury crisis. Such is the brutal fact. Why try to conceal it?"

The opposition newspaper, La Quotidien, heads its article on the report of the Bank of France, "Specter of Inflation," but its tendency is to exaggerate the difficulties of the government.

Leaders of the Right believe the early passage of the new finance measures by the Senate will be sufficient to check the speculative maneuvers of France's opponents and stabilize the franc.

Meanwhile, French industries are enjoying an unprecedented boom though the cost of living is slowly but surely rising. There is considerable effervescence among the working people who are everywhere beginning to find that their present wages are insufficient.

BATTLE FOR FREEDOM OF RADIO IS ON

Broadcasters Prepare for Fight to Finish With Phone Company.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Radio Broadcasters' Society of America lined up with the City of New York today for a "battle to the death" against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, for "the freedom of the air." Radio organizations throughout the country were invited to join the fight.

A statement issued by the executive council of the Radio Broadcasters' Society of America following a meeting this afternoon at the offices of the Crosley Radio Corporation, alleges that A. H. Griswold of the legal department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, announced at a recent meeting his organization intends to "drive all independent broadcasters out of the field and compel listeners to pay for the service they intend to supply."

Efforts to reach Griswold tonight were unsuccessful.

About twenty independent broadcasting stations were represented at the meeting and invitations to co-operate were sent to the National Association of Broadcasters, Radio Trade Association, American Radio Association, American Radio Relay League, National Radio Chamber of Commerce, the City of New York, and others.

W. R. Caldwell, attorney of the society, said there were about 600 broadcasting stations in the country and only forty-eight of these belong to the so-called "trust." All the others are to be called upon to aid in the fight.

LEGISLATOR IS DEAD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DETROIT, March 9.—W. O. Lee, 80 years of age, member of the State Legislature and prominent in Grand Army of the Republic affairs, died in the Port Huron City Hospital, following an operation.

BISHOP SAYS ALASKA NOW VICE PURGED

Dan McGrew, Rag-Time Kid, Malamute Saloon, Lady Lou Called History

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 9.—"Yes, sir; the whole bunch got out about the same time. Dangerous Dan McGrew, the Lady Who's Known as Lou, the Rag-Time Kid and the Malamute Saloon," said the bishop.

"The church, backed up by decency, has won its fight and Alaska today is as good as any section of the country, a little bit better than a lot of places."

The bishop knows, for he is Bishop Peter T. Rowe, Episcopal diocese of Alaska, who has spent the last twenty-nine years there.

He is in Chicago to conduct Lenten services under the auspices of the Episcopal Church.

"Most people think of Alaska as a place where a man can get almost any kind of a game he is willing to pay for, but such is not the case," continued the bishop.

"Another illusion is that it is a place where there is always ice and snow. That, too, is wrong. As a matter of fact, there are three climates in Alaska. There is the Arctic region where there is ice and snow, the sub-Arctic region with two seasons, winter and summer, and the southern region, where the climate is similar to that of the State of Washington.

"The government by its attitude on coal particularly has hampered the development of Alaska because it has frightened out capital. Today there are about 25,000 white persons in Alaska, where there were formerly 75,000.

"Of course, many left after the gold craze died out. The war took thousands of our young men. What Alaska needs today is money development."

BANK CLOSES DOORS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DES MOINES, March 9.—The Citizens' Savings Bank of Sigourney has closed its doors and the Superintendent of Banks has taken charge. It was stated that a heavy depositor had withdrawn a large amount of cash and the bankofficials had voluntarily closed the doors on account of fear of a run, not because the bank's condition is unsound.

BRITISH MENACE SEEN BY FRANCE

Maneuvers in Mediterranean Cause of Worry

Will be in French Path to African Colonies

Huge Fund for Air Fleet Adds to Distrust

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, March 9.—In England's increase of her Mediterranean fleet in her coming maneuvers off the French coast "between France and her African colonies" and in her endeavor to obtain several Buodecanese islands, French critics find material for an answer to Prime Minister MacDonald's indictment of what Englishmen regard as France's militaristic policy which he expressed in his recent note to Premier Poincare.

If the English are worried because France keeps a great army and a big air fleet, with Germany powerless, what, ask the French, must be thought about the increase of the British fleet and growth of her air fleet since Germany is no longer to be feared?

The Temps Friday night dwelt on the increase of the British Mediterranean fleet and the added £2,000,000 for aviation. It sees significance in that the British maneuvers are to take place around the Balearic Islands, "which lie on the route between France and Algeria and Morocco."

SEE ALLIANCE PLOT

The Temps paid sarcastic tribute to MacDonald's statement that England is building five new cruisers to give work to the unemployed. The paper also charged that failure of the recent naval armament discussion in Rome was due to the attitude of England in trying to obtain hold of the Duodecanese Islands, now held by Italy.

There have frequently been charges in Paris that in promoting a semblance of accord in the Mediterranean between Italy and Spain, England sought to prevent the union of France and Italy, the only two nations whose combined fleets could rival British naval power in the Mediterranean.

GREATEST IN YEARS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, March 9.—A series of British naval maneuvers which will rank among the most important, if not the most important, carried out since the war, will begin in the neighborhood of the Balearic Islands on Monday. The Balearic Islands are near the sea route from France to Morocco and the Paris press has indulged in some comment on the co-incidence of these maneuvers with the increase in British air estimates.

Never since 1919 has it been possible to bring together so large a proportion of the full strength of both fleets for purposes of exercise. A year ago the Mediterranean ships were at Constantinople, Chanak, Smyrna or other places in the Near East owing to the disturbed condition of affairs in Turkey. In 1922 the situation was similar, except that most of the light cruisers were off Crete. Now improved conditions allow of all these battleships, and all but one of the light cruisers under command of Admiral Sir Osmond Brock joining forces with the Atlantic ships under Admiral Sir John Michael De Robeck.

LAUNCH WAR AGAINST CROWS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BEAUTY PARLORS TO MAKE BARBER FIGHT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KANSAS CITY, March 9.—Beauty parlor owners of Joplin have not acknowledged defeat to local barbers, who through the Barber's State Board of Examiners compelled beauty shops to discontinue the bobbing of hair, as in violation of the State law. Owners declared their intention to carry the fight to a finish. Their ultimate goal, according to statements gained from all but one beauty parlor manager, is to carry the fight to the State Legislature through the State organization of hairdressers, and make an effort to obtain an amendment to the State law which would permit the bobbing of hair by beauty parlors without a licensed barber.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DETROIT, March 9.—Payment in full of the entire shortage of $20,000 was promised to Kalamazoo by Lynn Mason, attorney, on behalf of his client, William H. Stauffer, former City Treasurer, who is asserted to have defrauded the city. The statement was acompanied by a further restitution of $8926, which brings the total amount turned back into the City Treasury up to $14,540. The latest repayment was made possible by the sale of the former official's home, automobile and stocks which, held jointly by himself and wife, could legally have been withheld.

INCOME OF RAILROADS TAKES DROP

Class One Carriers Earn at an Annual Rate of 4.54 Per Cent in January

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Class 1 railroads representing a total mileage of 23,928 miles, earned at an annual rate of 4.54 per cent on their tentative valuation in January, according to reports for the month compiled by the bureau of railway economics from returns filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission and made available today.

In dollars this represented a net operating income of $51,281,200. In the eastern district, the rate earned was 5.04 per cent; in the southern district, 5.68 per cent, and in the western district, 3.59 per cent.

The same roads in January last year earned a net operating income of $61,128,970 which was at the annual rate of return of 5.58 per cent. In December, 1923, the net operating income was $69,694,744 or 4.44 per cent.

The net operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

WETS' LEADER TELLS WHERE MONEY GOES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OMAHA, March 9.—The National Liberty League and antiprohibition organization to foster a campaign in favor of light wines and beer, with headquarters in Omaha, today in District Court admitted through its secretary-treasurer, Don Debow, that just one thin dime out of every dollar contributed to the cause through the league reached the league coffers.

As explained to the court by Debow, fifty cents of the dollar goes to the solicitor securing the membership. Twenty-five cents of the remainder goes to the State manager of the campaign. Of the twenty-five cents remitted to headquarters, fifteen cents goes to Debow personally and the last ten cents is paid to the league. Then this ten cents is used for office expenditures. Debow said the league had about one thousand members, each of whom had paid $1.00 and five special members, $5.00 each.

"My Rheumatism is gone—"

There's glorious joy in knowing this—that more Red-Blood-Cells stops Rheumatism, and that S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells.

"There are thousands of you men and women, just like myself, slaves to rheumatism, muscle pains, joint pains, and horrible stiffness. I had the wrong idea about rheumatism for 15 years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S.! Say what you will, I never knew such startling results were possible. Well, folks, besides knocking out my rheumatism it gave me back some of the strength I used to have way back! I've got a better color in my face, my appetite is dandy, I don't use my crutches any more. I'm walking around straight-up on two young legs!" S. S. S. makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. By building blood-cells it builds nerve strength for young folks who ought to have more, and for older people who have little. It stops pimples, boils, blackheads, eczema, chases away blood impurities. You can always rely on it. Start S. S. S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is the more economical.

Brewery Man Tells of Bribe for Protection

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) March 9.—A confession that he has paid about $15,000 to a prominent Missouri State official for "protection" in the manufacture and sale of real beer in St. Louis was made to Federal authorities here by an official of the Griesedieck Brewing Company, according to a story appearing in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

BRITISH AIR FORCE INCREASE PROVIDED

DEVELOPMENT OF DEFENSE OUTLINED IN BUDGET OF DEPARTMENT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, March 9.—Steady development of the British home air defense force is provided for in the estimates of the air department issued today.

At present there are ten home defense squadrons, with eight more to be raised in 1924-25, and six more in 1925-26, making a total of fourteen in two years. This will mean an increase in the personnel of the air force from 33,000 to 35,000 next year and, without counting the reserves, Great Britain should have available for its home defense by the end of April next year from 180 to 200 airplanes.

This will increase the cost, in spite of reductions in the air force in Mesopotamia and Palestine. The air force estimates of £14,511,000 show an increase of about £2,500,000 over those of last year, which is the only increase that it is believed the labor government will ask for.

Air units working with the navy will also be increased by the five squadrons which can be used through an addition to the number of aircraft carried by the capital ships and enlarged accommodation of the air carriers.

SUGAR-BEET FARMERS GET ADDITIONAL PAY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DENVER, March 9.—An additional dollar a ton for sugar beets of the 1923 crop will be paid western farmers by the Great Western Sugar Company April 1, according to an announcement here. Total distribution among grocers on that date will aggregate $2,500,000. This represents the second payment of $1 a ton, since the close of the 1923 beet harvesting season, making a total ton payment to date in the Colorado-Nebraska districts of the company of $7.50 and $8 per ton for beets.

DROPS MANY FROM ROLL OF GENERALS

Obregon Acts in Cases of 75 Chiefs Charged With Rebellion

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, March 9.—Seventy-five generals have been dropped from the government roll by orders of President Obregon, charged with rebellion. In the list figure nine generals of division.

Five generals on this list have been killed in action or executed and many of the others are believed to have been killed or left the country.

Gen. Cavazos has offered to surrender to government delegates en route to the State of Hidalgo to treat with him. Gen. Manuel Pelaez, who is held in a military prison, will be released today. Pelaez, is well known in California where he owns a large ranch.

Gen. Gomez in a statement to the press declared the present revolution would be the last in Mexico as it had shown the legal institutions were strong and could not be overthrown by disloyal military officials.

The government will accept the surrender of all rebel, respecting their lives, but cannot permit them again to join the army.

Candler Jury Deadlocked in Damage Trial

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DECATUR (Ga.) March 9.—The jury deliberating in the trial of the suit for $100,000 damages brought against Walter T. Candler, millionaire clubman of Atlanta, by Mrs. Sarah Byfield, shortly after midnight was ordered locked up after it declared itself "hopelessly deadlocked."

Plaintiff's counsel objected to a recharge of the jury on a point of law after midnight and the judge announced he would not recharge the jury until seven o'clock Monday morning. Court took recess then until that hour.

The jury went out at six o'clock Saturday night.

KILLS BANDIT IN FIGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, March 9.—One bandit was shot and killed and another was captured by a patrolman who engaged three robbers in a gun fight during an attempted hold-up of a local drug store last night. The third bandit escaped.

Make Hay

While the Sun Shines

That's what they do in the Salt River Valley of Arizona. And because the sun shines an average of 312 days every year, they make hay throughout the 12 months. Every month is haying time in this land of plenty. With an abundant supply of water assured, the ranchers of this community reap the World's Biggest Hay Crops

Six, seven and eight crops a year are the rule. Production runs from five to ten tons to the acre. Eighty thousand (80,000) acres of alfalfa land in the Roosevelt Irrigation Project averaged $96 per acre in 1923.

El Rancho Sierra Vesta

Let us take production records on El Rancho Serra Vesta for example. The yield here was just average, but the records have been carefully maintained. During the 1923 season, this ranch harvested seven crops of alfalfa. The cutting dates were: April 3, May 15, June 19, August 6, September 1, October 30, and January 7. The tonnage from the 209 acres for the cuttings were: First, 448 tons; second, 264 tons; third, 225 tons; fourth, 195 tons; sixth, 154 tons, and seventh, 54 tons. You will note that there is no tonnage record for the fifth cutting. The reason for that is that the ranch did not bale or weigh the fifth cutting. It was left in the fields, stacked, for feeding purposes. The average production for the six cuttings was 6.4 tons to the acre. The average price received for this hay was $19.40 per ton. Therefore, the average income was $114.16 per acre.

Director of "Beasts of Paradise," "The Riddle Rider" and Other Universal Features

There was a fellow strapped into bed, out at the Sawtelle General Hospital—some obscure and mystifying complication due to shellshock, the surgeons told me. He lay, day and night, on his back, his whole vista an expanse of gray-blue ceiling.

They say he'll never get well.

I watched a little youngster trip through his ward, singing a lilting song about an old swimming hole. Probably that veteran had known one, years ago before he was hurled into the maelstrom of international wrath and hatred, and emerged a broken hull of what once was a man. Anyway—he smiled.

If I could be sure I made such a man smile every time I made a picture, I would be the proudest man in the world. And that's why my hat is very emphatically off, today, to Aunt Dolly and her Junior Times players.

They asked me to look at them and criticise their work.

I can't. I can only think of that poor fellow strapped to the bed—and remember that they made him smile. All of us can't do that. It takes a William De Mille—or a little child.

SEES DRAMA CLUB

Aunt Dolly asked me to come and look over her dramatic club, one of the greatest features of her great Times organization. I have a young son who prides himself on being a senior member. So I was mighty glad to go to Sawtelle, watch the kiddies show in the Grand Operahouse, when the veterans of the Soldiers' Home attended in a body, and then watch their visit to the wards, where they staged impromptu vaudeville for the bedridden veterans.

"Is it show stuff?" I was asked—and apparently to ascertain this was my principal excuse for being there. Primarily, any show that could get the reception this one did is emphatically "show stuff." A good show is good when the audience says so—not before.

The smile of that wounded veteran is the surest testimony of "show stuff." But after all, the Junior Times Club means more than that—for it means happiness. It brought happiness to that injured soldier—and to the dozens more I saw in the ward; some of them shell shocked! some surgical cases, all handicapped; some incurable—others with a faint ray of hope.

VETERANS PLEASED

It brought happiness to the grizzled veterans who fought, some of them, in the struggle that saved the Union; others who followed Roosevelt at San Juan Hill, or chased Aguinaldo through the perilous tropics. And—it brought happiness to the kiddies themselves—the sheer happiness that comes with the joy of doing something to make someone else happy. It brought happiness to me, too. I've only been out of a hospital myself a little while—and I realize what rays of light these kiddies can scatter.

But aside from all that, Aunt Dolly is making a future generation of real stage and picture stars out of these youngsters. I never saw better trained performers—speaking from the purely technical side of it, as I was sent to.

The headline feature of the bill was Luis G. Arnold, the clever girl impersonator now appearing at Grauman's, and one of the prize winners of the club. He brought his whole Roseta Orchestra, a colorful burst of Spanish harmony, and teamed with his sister Gaby, in a specialty known as "The Gaby Sisters." Hipolito Mora, a male Spanish dancer of rare grace, aided in the ensemble, and Emilia Leovallo, soprano, sang to enliven the program and lend color to the entire sketch given at the theater, for the veterans.

James Osborne, president of the Times Junior Club, and a boy soprano whom I had heard before at several theaters, for he has been booked at almost all the big local houses, sang a number of songs. He suggests what John Steel probably was a few years ago. Incidentally, he sang for the first time the new Junior Times Club ballad, "Who Ain't Go Fun," composed by Carlton Bates, recently of Boston, and which Aunt Dolly ardently believes, will sweep the country as a popular number.

Vernon and Verle Peck, twins, staged a dance number that was literally a "knockout" and followed it with a Scotch dance that was a wonder to me. I don't know who trained these boys, but trained they are—and real artists.

Virginia and Maxine Loomis, the clever juvenile movie stars who in the past few months have taken the Hollywood studios by storm, appeared in an original and very lively version of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean." They sang two more numbers. I have seen these youngsters in films—and have watched several directors work with them—but honestly, I got a new "slant" on their versatility as I saw them work on the stage.

JAZZ ARTIST CLEVER

Lorraine Platts, the 12-year-old jazz artist, mascot of Post One, staged a clever number, and Emmalou Gregory proved a literal scream with her "Horsie Keep Your Tail Up." I've seen her before—but never realized what that youngster could really do until she literally "stopped the show" at the Sawtelle Theater.

Coleman Minnerick, "The child Houdini," did a clever rope and chain act, and mystified with his clever handling of some well-known illusions. Constance Celia, 7-year-old ballet dance, couldn't have done better if she'd been three times that age. She's going to be a second Margaret Morris—you know Margaret started as a dancer and now is the new Wampas baby star and one of Universal's celebrities. Witness "The Ghost City" and "The Iron Man" in which she played.

Minnie Schneider did a clever series of topical songs—and then went through the wards, cheering the boys in the beds.

Minnie it was whom I saw cheer that man in the straps. Which is liable to get me back to the beginning of my story. Fredlyn Singleton, little dancer from Long Beach, did a whirlwind dance number—a military caper in costume, that went like a house afire. Virginia Davis did a Hungarian dance that proved a veritable knockout. She's a little 5-year-old, with golden curls—reminded me a lot of William Desmond's baby Mary Joana. She went around the ward and kissed the soldiers good-night, too. Heaven help the men when she grows up! There's be many a broken heart.

Little Peggy Cartwright, who, is will be remembered, played in "A Lady of Quality," depicting Virginia Valli as she would have appeared at the age of 7, proved another hit of the evening. She staged a beautiful gypsy dance, in a magnificent costume. She is as clever on her feet as on the screen—I remember her scenes with Lionel Belmore as one of the outstanding features of the Universal year.

Sol Grossman sang clever topical songs, and the Le Verna Sisters staged a neat number. Sid Marion, boy ventriloquist—he's a professional, Keith and Orpheum time—proved a veritable riot with "Tommy" his clever dummy.

AUNT DOLLY APPEARS

True Boardman—he's the son of my friend True Boardman, a great screen actor until his tragic death a short time ago—is a veritable chip off the old block. He did a skit with Aunt Dolly. He has many of his father's mannerisms. He's been in the pictures— appeared in "Michael O'Halloran," and other works. I am glad to see he's like his father, who was a fine actor and a gentleman. Young Boardman and Aunt Dolly staged a neat little musical sketch—it would go well in any vaudeville bill—and close to the top of it at that.

They gave every veteran and every wounded man a Junior Club button. And an old veteran who fought in 1865 got up and proposed an old-time soldier's cheer for the youthful troupe.

Did they raise the roof? They did.

And the last thing they yelled was—"Won't you come back tomorrow?"

I wish I could make a picture some day that would "go over" the way that show did.

NEW GLOBE-CIRCLING LINE

Roosevelt Company Starts First of Four Ships April 10 in Merger With Japanese

Another round-the-world service under the American flag will be started from Los Angeles Harbor on April 10, when the steamer Silverash, flying the house flag of the Roosevelt Steamship Company, sails for the Orient.

The Silverash, sailing for this port from New York on the 15th inst., will be the first of four 10,000-ton steamers operated by the Roosevelt Line in a trade merger with the Kokusai Kisen Kabushiki Kaisha of Japan, which concern will likewise maintain four Japanese vessels of like tonnage in the service.

According to formal announcement from New York yesterday the first "K" Line sailing will be that of the Italy Maru, departing from the Orient on April 30 and steaming westward on the latter half of the swing about the globe. Four 10,000-ton freighters will be operated by both the American and Japanese companies, it was announced.

The new service marks the first direct merger between Japanese and American interests in the history of the merchant marine and likewise gives both the United States and Japan two around-the-world services, the others being the Dollar Line under the American flag, and the passenger service of the Osaka Shoshen Kaisha of Osaka. All three lines maintain Pacific terminals at Los Angeles Harbor.

Coincident with formal announcement of the Roosevelt and "K" Lines merger was the denial by C. J. Beck, vice-president of the American lines, that the Harriman shipping interests are involved in the new around-the-world combine.

TULARE COUNTY MAY HAVE JOINT FLOATS

VISALIA, March 9.—Tulare county cities may unite in preparing a section of floats for the Raisin Day parade in Fresno. This suggestion was made here by Frank H. Wilson, Carlos LaMoine and Wynne Miller of Fresno to A. R. Miot, secretary of the Tulare County Board of Trade. They also talked the matter over with J. Sub Johnson, president of that organization, and with Marsden S. Blois, president of the Visalia Chamber of Commerce. The arrangement would insure grouping of all Tulare county plans. Miot will present the matter to the various chambers and boards of trade for consideration.

Tulare County Scouts Set Up Great Record

VISALIA, March 9.—Progress of Boy Scout work in Tulare county during the past year was one of the most spectacular achievements in this line in the United States, declared Elroy A. Thomas, Tulare county Scout executive, addressing Visalia Rotarians.

From five registered troops with a total of seventy-five Scouts, on December 31, 1922, to fifteen registered troops with 355 Scouts on December 31, 1923, and 243 volunteer adult workers aiding, was the growth in Tulare county. This was an increase of ten troops and 281 Scouts in one year.

Two troops already have been organized during 1924 and nine other troops are organized but not chartered, bringing total membership up to 500. The goal of ten new troops for 1924 is expected to be passed.

YOUTH ACCUSED OF LIFE THREAT

Aged Rancher Receives Note of Vengeance

Prisoner's Attentions to Girl Unwelcome

Violation of Postal Law is Officers' Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, March 9.—R. E. Cutler, a former boarder in the home of Frank Byrne, aged Cucamonga-district rancher, was under arrest today on a charge of violating the United States postal laws and will be turned over to the Federal authorities following receipt of a note by the aged man threatening his life and bearing the initials "R. E. C." The note reads:

"If you don't let Irene go with me. I'll get even with you. I'll fix you. You better look out. I mean business. I am not a bit scared of you nor anyone else. I will kill you if you fool with me. You know what I am; if you don't you will find out."

Nearly blind, Mr. Byrne appealed to the officers and Cutler's arrest followed. Although the youth denies sending the note, officers who have compared it with his handwriting declare him to be the author.

The rancher explained that he had disapproved of Cutler's attentions to his daughter, Irene Byrne, and had therefore ordered the man to leave.

It is expected that Cutler will be indicted on a charge of sending threatening letters through the mail.

FORMATION OF STATE ROAD PATROL STARTS

MOTOR VEHICLE DIVISION CHIEF TO ASK FOR LIST OF APPLICANTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, March 9.—Requests to Boards of Supervisors of the various counties in California for lists of eligibles recommended by the Supervisors for appointment to the State highway traffic squad will be made tomorrow by Will H. Marsha, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, it was announced here tonight.

This will be the preliminary step in the reorganization of a State-wide highway patrol it was said, and follows the refusal of the Supreme Court last week to grant a petition for rehearing in a case contesting the constitutionality of the traffic officer provisions of the Motor Vehicle Act of 1923.

Virtually all of the counties of the State, with the exception of Los Angeles and San Francisco and some of the mountain counties, will be affected. Marsh said the State would probably be divided into about five districts with an inspector in charge of each district to supervise the work of the patrolmen. About ninety-five officers will be put to work.

County Commander Don Helwig of Hemet resigned at last night's meeting and Harry Weston of Hemet was elected to that position.

Yesterday afternoon, Peter Hansen, 12 years of age, 1111 Belmont avenue, was the first sufferer. Trying his skill at pole vaulting at Washington Junior High School, the boy fell on his left wrist, fracturing it. The arm was reset by Police Surgeon D. I. Aller and Dr. C. P. H. Kjaerbye and the boy taken home.

A few minutes later, Albert Kalakian, 16, 430 M street, entered, with a dislocation of the left wrist. He was hurt, he told attendants, at the California playgrounds where he was taking exercise on a trapeze.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, March 9.—Plans for the first State-wide gathering of World War veterans in Fresno were discussed last night at a conference of the general committee of patriotic and civic organizations arranging for the State convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War here May 14, 15 and 16.

The baby is in godo health and evidently has had good care, the police said.

Would Convert Brookside Park Into Reservoir

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 9.—Submerging Brookside Park, Pasadena's new stadium and the Arroyo Seco golf course site in a lake was the startling proposal made by James R. Reagan, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District. Mr. Reagan proposes the erection of a huge dam at the site of the present Linda Vista bridge that would care for all the excess waters of the Devil's Gate dam farther up in the arroyo. If this were done, Pasadena's famous amusement park would be totally submerged in water, it was set forth.

The proposed dam would eliminate all remaining dangers of flood damage to South Pasadena and sections of Los Angeles, Mr. Reagan declared. The dam would also furnish Pasadena and surrounding sections with an ample water supply, he said.

Later this week Mr. Reagan will appear before a joint meeting of the Pasadena Engineers' Society and water committee of the Chamber of Commerce and will present in detail the reasons for his extraordinary proposal. Samuel Morris, chief engineer of the Pasadena water department, has been invited to attend the meeting and present objections to the proposal.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALHAMBRA, March 9.—A rollicking musical comedy, "The Lonesome Honeymoon," with a cast of twenty talented local players and a beauty chorus composed of pretty Alhambra girls, is to be presented under the auspices of the Alhambra Shrine Club at the Alhambra Theater on the 13th and 14th insts. Rehearsals have been in progress for the past three weeks.

The piece is a happy combination of song, dance and comedy, with just enough plot to make it interesting, and with many novelty numbers. It was written by Miss Hazel Lyndhoff, dramatist and song writer, who is the musical director of the production. The leading feminine role is taken by Peggy Cramer, local favorite. Leon Utter, W. P. Battelle, J. B. Scullin and other Alhambra men will be seen in the cast of principals. George W. Tobin is in charge of the business arrangements for the affair and announces that many Shriners from Glendale, Pasadena, Hollywood and other cities will be present. On Thursday night the Pasadena Shrine Band will attend.

TRUCK REQUEST OF HANFORD UP AGAIN

HANFORD, March 9.—The State Railroad Commission has consented to have an additional hearing, as requested by the Board of Trade and other commercial bodies of this city and county, on the application of the San Joaquin Transportation Company for a franchise to truck freight over some of the county highways. The first hearing was in Fresno and the second probably will be in Hanford. The objection to the franchise was that the railroads, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe, provide ample hauling facilities and Kings county objected to unnecessary heavy trucking over its highways.

HUNTINGTON FIRE FORCE COSTS LOW

Five Cents Per Capita is Expense of Department in Year Just Passed

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, March 9. Huntington Park's city fire chief, Scott Resley, has just completed a report for the past two years, which shows that the cost of maintaining the volunteer fire department is very low in the city.

His report is to the effect that the cost of the volunteer department for 1923 was $591, and that seventy calls were answered during the year. The total number of volunteers at these seventy fires was 395, or an average of 5 9-14 men to the call. With a population of 12,000 people last year, the cost per capita of each man at each fire was approximately 5 cents.

During the year 1922 the cost of this department was $493, there being thirty-three calls. The total number of men at these fires was 264, and an average of eight men to a call. The per capita was something over 6 cents per man at a fire, taking the population as 8000.

Parole Woman and Man Under Liquor Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, March 9.—Parole of Jim Kamariotis and Mrs. C. E. Frank, inmates of the County Jail for Wright Act violations, was ordered by the Parole Board in session yesterday. Mrs. Frank had been placed in Jail Thursday and Kamariotis yesterday in lieu of payment of heavy fines imposed by Police Judge James G. Crichton.

Mrs. Frank's parole, Chief of Police Frank P. Truax said yesterday afternoon, was conditional upon her leaving Fresno county. That of Kamariotis, the Chief added, was because of the death of his child Thursday and the fact that his wife is critically ill in a hospital. Kamariotis, according to the officers, is penniless and has promised to refrain from bootlegging and go to work.

SAYS DEMOCRATS OF FRESNO FOR McADOO

FRESNO, March 8.—Democrats in Fresno and in the largest percentage of localities in the Seventh Congressional District are solidly behind William G. McAdoo as the Presidential nominee of the party, and the anti-McAdoo movement started in California following the Democratic convention at San Francisco last Saturday has failed to cause a split in the party in this district. Such was the expression from Democratic chieftains in Fresno yesterday, following the announcement that headquarters have been opened in San Francisco by the California Democrats opposed to the selection of McAdoo as the Presidential nominee.

Coast and Geodetic Survey

Tides, Los Angeles Harbor

Note—The following tabulation of the tides is compiled from the Pacific Coast Tide Tables of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. The tides are arranged in the order of their occurrence beginning with the first tide after midnight in the left-hand column. There are usually four tides, two high and two low, each day; but occasionally what would be the fourth tide occurs after midnight and thus becomes the first tide of the next day. The columns of heights give the elevation of each tide above the plane of reference of the Coast and Geodetic Survey chart soundings, except where the numbers are preceded by the minus sign, or dash, when the tides are below the plane. The tabulations are furnished by the Field Station of the Survey, Custom House, San Pedro, Cal.

Sunrise and sunset are computed for Los Angeles Harbor. Moonrise and moonset for Los Angeles.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—The Alaska cod-fishing schooner City of Papeete has departed from here for her annual fishing cruise in the Bering Sea.

Seventy members of the Lions' Club, representing many sections of the United States, have booked to sail on the Yale from here today. The vessel also is carrying a heavy cargo. The delegation recently toured the Hawaiian Islands.

The steamer San Antonio, which went aground in the bay after getting out of the channel late Saturday, was pulled from the mud bank and proceeded to Port Costa. No damage was reported.

The steamer Cleone in the Coos Bay-Bandon run, which rescued passengers and crew of the steamer Columbia when that vessel was wrecked at the entrance of Coos Bay recently, arrived here yesterday, and will undergo annual overhauling while here.

SEATTLE, March 9.—The steamship Otsego, recently purchased from the Shipping Board for the Libby, McNeill & Libby Company, is en route to Seattle from New York and will reach here before April 1. It will be started north by Alaska cannery ports soon after its arrival here.

Cargo congestion in Yokohama, Japan, has reached the point where freight discharged from steamships is placed in open storage, without protection from weather, fire or fire, according to cable advices received here. The situation is so serious that steamship and company agents have issued an announcement that they can assume no responsibility for goods left on their docks after the charges levied by carriers. It is stated that at the present time more than 150 vessels are discharging cargo or awaiting opportunity to discharge cargo at Yokohama.

The Coast Guard cutter Unalga will remain in Mexican waters, Washington advices say, instead of being sent to Bering Sea, as originally planned, according to information reached here today from Washington, D. C. The change in plans followed a protest from Southeast Alaska commercial organizations against withdrawal of the Unalga from patrol duty in that locality.

The Admiral Oriental liner President Jackson, which sailed from Seattle today for the Orient, had as part of its cargo 231 tons of airplane and motor parts belonging to the Army Air Service. These supplies are destined for stations in Japan, China, Indo-China, Siam and Burma, established in connection with the round-the-world flight of army airmen starting here this month.

VICTORIA (B. C.) March 9.—Docking here from the Orient early today the steamship City of Victoria took aboard a Chinese crew and proceeded this afternoon to Moji Bay to load lumber for Japan. The Chinese crew were brought here recently from the Orient by the steamer President McKinley and were held at the immigration station pending arrival of the City of Victoria.

EVERETT (Wash.) March 9.—The steamship Cwellewon was today's only arrival. The vessel will proceed to Mukilteo to load lumber, after discharging her cargo here, it belongs to the Nelson line.

PORTLAND (Or.) March 9.—The steamer David C. Meyer arrived today from San Francisco on her first trip since she was changed from the Anson S. Brooks. David C. Meyer, the 7-year-old boy for whom the vessel was named, was at the dock today with his father, Ernest H. Meyer, to greet it steamer.

The Norwegian steamer Baltimore, which was towed into Honolulu in a disabled condition February 21, last, by the steamer Elbridge, has been repaired and is ready to proceed on her voyage to Grays Harbor and Portland to take a full cargo of lumber, according to advices received here by the agents.

The steamer Elbridge, which has been withdrawn by the Federal Shipping Board from the service of the Columbia Pacific Shipping Company, left today for San Francisco, where she has been ordered laid up indefinitely.

The Norwegian steamer Landaas is due to arrive here on the 15th inst. under charter to Columbia & Puget Sound for lumber and general freight to Japan. Two Yamashita ships are to load on the coast in the near future, taking the first shipments of government lumber to be carried in Japanese bottoms. The Norwegian steamer Ingeborg sailed from Shimidzu February 29 to load government order at Grays Harbor and the Baron Fowell sailed from Yokohama February 27 for Willapa Harbor. The company is to load several ships at other North Pacific ports this spring.

TACOMA (Wash.) March 9.—Bringing steel which, it is declared, will be used in construction of the new ship being constructed here for the Southern Pacific Company, the Hermione, an City arrived Sunday morning.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big checks. Correspondents offering matter for analysis with sand, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the gold is from Mrs. Jones, for instance, "with no marks of industrialization on samples, will hereafter receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Bismuth Absent

BISHOP, Feb. 22.—Question: I am sending you two samples for determination. Is there Bismuth present? T.

Answer: The sample of quartz contains pyrite in the form of small cubes and the other specimen does not react for Bismuth. The quartz specimen probably carries gold.

Bismuth Not Present

BISHOP, Feb. 22.—Q: I herewith mail to you a piece of silicious ore, bearing both gold and silver. Will you please test for Bismuth? S.

A.: While the sample carries silicious matter it is chiefly carbonate ore containing calcite; traces of lead and zinc present.

Quartz

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 22.—Q.: Haven't bothered you for a long time but I am at it again! I am sending you in separate package a sample of rock found in the mountains northeast of Barstow, Cal. Will you please let me know what it is and also if it carries silver or other metal of value? C.

A.: There is no silver of mineralogy in the specimen. The quartz carries micaceous iron (hematite, microscopical), and manganese is sparingly present. It is a pleasure to serve you at any old time.

Free Gold Absent

SAUGUS, Feb. 23.—Q.: Test for gold and silver G.

A.: For gold and silver values kindly consult assayers.

Free Gold Absent

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) Feb. 24.—Q.: I am sending you some samples of ore. Will you kindly test them for values and oblige. MRS. S.

A.: The specimens react, in low percentages, for zinc and lead.

Asbestiform Mineral

KEELER, Feb. 24.—Q.: This sample looks like asbestos, but, like material, does not stand fire very well. Some of it was put under an oxy-acetylene torch, and it seemed to melt into a very hard substance like silicate, and it gave off a sulphurous fume. Would you please tell me what it is, and if it is of commercial value? Who might handle it? V.

A.: The sample is chiefly Asbestiform Tremolite, a variety of hornblende. It is rather odd specimen, as shown by one of the samples containing silky asbestos (Amianthus.) It is therefore probable that both hornblende, in the forms of Actinolite, and Tremolite occur at the locality.

Sulphur is indeed sparingly present and subjected to heat as by you tested the named metalloid was driven off. Why not make some experiments on similar mineral and find whether or not you can obtain a clear glass product by mixing borax with the mineral. It is rather doubtful as to who could handle it unless for use as a roofing mixture, certain cements, and so forth.

Pearlyte

CEDAR CITY (Utah) Feb. 25.—Q.: Are the pebbles, gems of any value? What are they known as in mineralogy? L.

A.: The samples have a pearly and enamel-like luster. They are spherulitic (shaped like little spheres,) and consist of feldpar with quartz. They have no gem value.

Five Specimens

ANGELS CAMP, Feb. 26.—Q.: I am sending by parcel post five samples of rock from a mine here. No. 1 is a schist. No. 2 is quartz and perhaps shows a blue tellurium stain with sulphides. No. 3 seems to be a metal-like mass, and what is the stuff imbedded in the mass? It is not galenite, and it may be molybdenite. No. 4 is a piece of hard, altered slate—"dyke rock" of the mining boys. No. 5 is a small piece of partly oxidized quartz. Do I name these specimens correctly? H.

A.: You have used—nearly so—the correct language in naming the samples. No. 1 is a fine lustered hornblendyte or amphibolyte schist with some calcite. No. 2 is auriferous pyrite in low percentage with a trace only of tellurium, and tellurium is not a metal. No. 3 is of pyrite, and the blackish matter is titaniferous i.. n and microscopical micaceous ir.n (hematite.) No. 4 is a slaty rock in part diabase, "slickenslides" on one side of the specimen. No. 5 is altered pyrite in low percentage, and it is auriferous (gold-bearing.)

Two Samples

GAVIOTA, Feb. 27.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you two samples of soft rock, found in Santa Barbara county, upon which I would appreciate having your report. My entire ignorance of geology and mineralogy debars me from specifying what tests I would like you to make of the rocks; presuming you will make such tests as you think advisable, and in your reply advise if the rocks have any commercial value. W. H. M.

A.: It's a good rule to follow when a lady or gentleman modestly admits "entire ignorance" on any subject, to be on the "lookout" for a scholar. Therefore, qualitative tests were very carefully made. The yellowish-gray sample seems to be of quartz with traces of mica; uranium absent. The brownish specimen carries traces of hydro-carbon.

Five Samples

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Q.: I am a subscriber to The Times and under separate cover I am sending you five samples of minerals for your determination and report as to value and uses. S.

A.: Sample No. 1 carries more or less vanadium; lead traces. No. 2 is rather small to determine, even qualitatively. It is quartzitic rock; limonite present. No. 3 is quartz, stained with limonite. No. 4 is ferruginous quartz. No. 5 is of quartz and magnesium-aluminum silicates. Uses and values problematical.

Aragonite

PASADENA, Feb. 28.—Q.: Inclosed find two samples. Do they show marine life, or could they have come from an extinct volcano? No. 1 came from an outcrop in the center of a sandhill. There is sand above and below this outcrop, and the sandhill is on the flank of granite mountains near San Jacinto. No. 2 came from the top of a hill composed of sandstone and shale in the same locality. R. K.

A.: No. 1 is a variety of calcite known as aragonite. No. 2 is a botryoidal variety of calcite, and not tested for magnesia. It is probable that marine life is not now present in the samples. The calcite is possibly not of the ancient variety.

Magnetite Present

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.—Q.: In tobacco sack please find sample of drillings from 555 feet to 565 feet depth in Southern Oregon. I am anxious to know—what is the prospect for oil? I have made three tests with turpentine and they all show a very rich, dark-brown color. Is the turpentine test of any value toward forming conclusions? One test by a local chemist has given a reaction for hydrocarbon. Thanks a thousand times for your numerous helps. J.

A.: The turpentine test is a fair one on many hydrocarbons, and petroleum occurs in rocks of all ages. It is found in limestone, porous and compact sandstones, black shales and varieties of bituminous coal yield it abundantly when heated. Benzine takes up but little petroleum from shales of coal for the reason that the hydrocarbon is insoluble in benzine. Petroleum, however, is soluble in benzine or camphene. Sulphur traces are in the sample, with aluminum silicate and limonite. Rather a doubtful prospect.

Free Gold Absent

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.—Q.: Please find inclosed three samples. Will you kindly let me know what they are and if of any value. They are from the southern part of the State. W. C. C.

A.: Sample No. 1 is feldspathic rock containing traces of microscopic pyrite and traces of mica; both minerals somewhat resemble gold. No. 2 is a milk-white and brown calcite (lime carbonate,) with iron oxides and aluminum silicate. It is good "cement rock" (impure calcite.) Sample No. 3 is on the order of No. 1.

Salamanders that have been raised on black ground are black, but it kept on yellow earth become almost yellow and their young are that color at birth, asserts a prominent European biologist.

WORK BOOMING IN SAN JOAQUIN

Nine New Wells Started in Kern County Fields

Three Holes Are Spudded in by Pacific Company

Much Repair Work is Done Throughout Area

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, March 8.—With seven new oil wells started in the Midway oil fields of Kern county during the past week and with one in the Elk Hills and one in the Belridge field, the San Joaquin Valley is rapidly returning to its old development form.

The Pacific Oil Company took first place for development by spudding in three new wells, the No. 85 on Section 5, 32-24, and the No. 40 on Section 8, 32-24.

OTHERS STARTED

Other wells started in the Midway district were: General Petroleum Corporation, No. 8, Section 33, 31-24; Formax Oil Company, No. 14, Section 36, 32-23; Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company, No. 18, Section 25, 31-22; North American Oil Consolidated, No. 7, Section 30, 31-24.

In the Elk Hills district the Pan-American Petroleum Company has spudded in its No. 12-C well on Section 6, 31-25 on the Crampton lease, and in the Belridge field the Bear State Oil Company has started its No. 12 hole on Section 30, 28-21.

Six repair jobs have just been started in Kern county fields, and two have been commenced in the Coalinga district. The Junction Oil Company has a crew busy on its No. 10 well in the Kern River field, redrilling, while the same company is doing similar work in its No. 20 hole, both holes being on Section 9, 29-28. In the same field the Bald Eagle Oil Company is deepening its No. 13-A well on Section 30, 28-28.

REPAIRING WELL

The Republic Producing Company is repairing its No. 1 well in the Sunset field on Section 4, 11-23. The Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company is doing similar work in its No. 3 hole in the Midway field on Section 6, 32-24. In the Elk Hills the Standard Oil Company is repairing its No. 3 on the Carman lease, Section 36, 30-23.

RUNNING THE BAILER

by An Old Scout

It will take 450,000 barrels of crude oil to fill the Sinclair pipe line from Clayton, Wyo. to Freeman, Mo., a distance of 716 miles. This line was constructed under the contract between former Secretary Fall and the Mammoth Oil Company, lessee of Teapot Dome in Wyoming, and crude oil will be going through the line from the Clayton storage tanks about April 1, to Sinclair and Standard of Indiana refineries at Kansas City, Mo., and Whiting, Ind. The crude oil to be conveyed will be current daily production from Teapot Dome and Salt Creek, and royalty oil owned by the Navy Department and taken by the Sinclair and Standard of Indiana in "exchange" for Navy fuel oil, lubricants and other products as well as in payment for storage tanks to be owned by the Navy Department under the terms of the now celebrated Naval Reserve contracts.

Twenty strings of drilling tools have been piled up and all drilling has been stopped at Teapot Dome. Suits about to be started will at least temporarily prevent the movement of crude oil. Advice just received in Los Angeles from the scene of Mammoth Oil Company operations is that nearly everybody connected with it will have no work there. Operations in the California Naval Reserves have also been suspended pending litigation.

W. C. Geis, geologist for the Consolidated Royalty Company and the Western Exploration Company at Casper, Wyo., has been at the Biltmore Hotel three weeks making reconnaisances in the Los Angeles basin. In the Richfield district a block of about 800 acres has been taken and a test well will be started at once, S. H. Keoughan, president of the recently merged Mutual Oil Company and the Continental Oil Company, Denver, Colo., who joins the two first-named companies, being due here to start the operations. The same interests are drilling a test in Colusa county, north of San Francisco, which is now cemented at 520 feet. As geologized, the Richfield acreage has a chance for production at 1300 feet, 2600 feet, and the supposed 1400-feet stratum of Santa Fe Springs and Long Beach sand down to 4500 feet.

"Fishing" jobs are part of the day's work in the oil business, applying most generally to drilling wells, but frequently encountered in other branches of the business, particularly in dealing with leasing of land and the purchase of properties and merging of interests by consolidations. For some weeks rumors have been prevalent that strong interests were quietly negotiating for a number of California producing properties, that are to be consolidated into a rather pretentious operating corporation. A New York bank with a Los Angeles branch has been mentioned as the fiduciary agent, holding as much as $16,000,000, as an evidence of good faith, for the presumptive purchasers. A quiet scout discloses the fact that all the talk of big business is another one of those "fishing" jobs always going on in all oil fields.

An "agent" approached the managers of a number of producing companies in this city to ascertain if the properties could be purchased, for cash, oil and other evidences of legal tender. These "agents" learned that any or all of these properties can be purchased for prices and terms satisfactory to their owners, which is as reasonable a basis for trading in the oil business as in any other industrial or commercial avocation, and, as every banker knows, is the foundation of all business. Having reached this junction point, the scout reached the terminus of the excursion, for nothing but atmosphere remained to be scouted and the old airship was shy a couple of cylinders.

John M. Crawford, president of the Parkersburg Rig and Reel Company, Parkersburg, W. Va., arrived in Los Angeles during the week, accompanied by his family, to remain several months for recreation. The products manufactured by his company, including steel tanks, go wherever oil is produced, the business having been established when about all of the crude oil produced in the United States was from Ohio east. Their California trade is now larger than it was in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York, Southeastern Ohio and Kentucky. Mr. Crawford attended the annual banquet of the California Chamber of Oil and Mines at the Biltmore Friday evening.

Edwin Allan Macpherson, whose home and main office are now in Denver, is spending a few weeks here as a recreation after having completed a 400-mile section of the Sinclair pipe line from Teapot Dome to Freeman, Mo. "Doctor" Macpherson has been a leading pipe line contractor for many years, having been a son-in-law of Daniel O'Day, originator and for many years head of the pipe line system of the Standard Oil Company. Very few of the lines of the Standard and its subsidiaries were completed without the assistance of "Doc" Macpherson, but during the last twenty years pipe-line activity has moved west of the Mississippi River. Graduated as a physician, "Doctor" Macpherson never practiced, preferring oil-country activities.

Henry Ach, well-known attorney and oil operator from San Francisco, attended the annual banquet of the Chamber of Oil and Mines at the Biltmore Hotel Friday evening. Mr. Ach has been a figure in California history for many years and has been personally interested in oil production and mines, his Monte Cristo lease at Maricopa having been purchased by the Standard several years ago for something like a million dollars.

SIX NEW WELLS ARE COMPLETED

Good Producers Brought in at Santa Fe Springs

One Reported to Have Daily 1000-Barrel Output

Many New Developments Recorded Under Way

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA FE SPRINGS, March 9. Six wells were placed on production in the field last week, all of which were, with one exception, good for less than 1000 barrels' daily output. The Standard Oil Company, drilling W. L. Houghton No. 2, secured 1000 barrels. This well, which was the second drilled by the Standard on that lease, went down 4670 feet and the oil tested 34 degrees gravity. The Standard completed its S. and J. well, which made 220 barrels of oil from 4640 feet. The oil tested 34 degrees gravity. The Orr No. 1, drilled by the Standard, resulted in a flow of 250 barrels, but the oil was so dirty that it was allowed to flow into the sump. The well is producing from a depth of 4670 feet.

The Petroleum Midway Company completed Mattern No. 2-5 at 4560 feet and got 370 barrels. The Associated Oil Company secured a 100-barrel pumper in Green No. 1 on the Green lease. It was drilled 4670 feet deep.

The Jameson Consolidated Oil Company drilled its No. 1 well 4448 feet deep and got 400 barrels per day. The oil tests 31 degrees gravity.

KEY TO DISTRICT

The Petroleum Products Syndicate's No. 1, which is located east of Santa Fe Springs, is standing after being drilled 4300 feet. The well experienced mechanical trouble at that depth.

In the Bandini district west of Santa Fe Springs the Burbank Oil Company is drilling a hole which will, it is expected, reveal something concerning the productivity of the district. The hole is now down 4500 feet and is reported to be showing indications of oil with occasional showings of gas. The Oakridge Oil Company test, which was drilled 4700 feet near this well, is in the same sand and may at some future time be a producer if water trouble can be remedied. The company has started two other holes near the Oakridge Rossi No. 1 on the strength of the showings in that well.

The M. and H. Oil Company well is standing idle now, but may be drilled deeper if the mechanical troubles can be eliminated.

The Standard Oil Company has started a hole on the Home Oil Company holding which it recently purchased and has named the hole Standard Home No. 1. The well will be drilled to 4500 feet, it is asserted.

PRODUCTION RENEWED

The Federal Oil Company has offset the Elliott Consolidated Oil Company's well on the Clarke lease at Santa Fe Springs. The Elliott Consolidated secured an 800-barrel well at 4600 feet.

The Bell-View Oil Company well has been returned to production. It was making about 400 barrels a day before it stopped flowing. After being off production for a short time it was placed on the pipe line again and is now making about 800 barrels a day.

The Standard Oil Company well No. 1 on the Houghton lease is down 5620 feet and is fishing for a lost collar. There have been but few indications of oil in this test during the past few hundred feet, it is asserted.

The Pacific Clay Products well, drilled by the Standard Oil Company, is standing idle at 5530 feet. The Wolfskill well, which has been drilled 4770 feet deep, is also idle. It is asserted that this well will be abandoned soon.

The Union Oil Company drilled Meyer No. 1 to 4600 feet and, after swabbing, secured a little oil, but not enough to make a commercial well. Rig has been built for the No. 5 well on the Farwell lease.

The Petroleum Midway Company secured a water well in attempting to place its Stanley No. 3 on production. This hole was drilled 4500 feet deep and was the third unsuccessful well on that property.

OPERATION STARTED AT CORNELIA PLANT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AJO (Ariz.) March 9.—Operation has been started in the third section of the New Cornelia mill. The plant is reported working well, with an unusually high percentage of saving in copper values. Harry Kilban of the Victoria mine states that at seventy feet of depth a fourteen-inch vein of rich silver ore has been cut.

SLUMP IS OVER AT SIGNAL HILL

Nine New Wells Brought in During Last Week

Production Shows Decrease of Slight Amount

Flow is Swelled Greatly by Latest Holes

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 9.—The Signal Hill field, after its slump of a fortnight ago, came back strong last week with more than 16,000 barrels of new production from nine new wels. As a result the daily average yield of the field showed a decline of only 6000 barrels, the output being 217,000 barrels per day against 223,000 barrels for the previous week.

The new wells were as follows:

Ramsey-City B No. 2, located on city-owned lands on Reservoir Hill in the southeastern section of the field. It was drilled to 5041 feet, showing an initial yield of 4000 barrels a day.

Pan-American Petroleum Company's Anderson No. 3, located on Alamitos Boulevard, near Summit street was completed at the 5080-foot level and brought in for an initial flow of 3000 barrels.

Shell Company's Stratton No. 2, at Cherry avenue, near Burnett street, drilled to 4945 feet and was reported by company officials as showing a yield of 1000 barrels when completed.

Shell Company's Ness No. 2, located on top of Signal Hill proper, near Panorama Drive and Signal Hill Boulevard, was brought in from the 4875-foot level, showing an initial yield of 2000 barrels.

FISHER NO. 6 IN

The W. H. Fisher No. 6, on Lovelady avenue in the old Lovelady pool district, was completed at 5228 feet with an initial yield of 1750 barrels.

The United Oil Company's King Tut No. 1, adjoining Sunnyside Cemetery, on Orange avenue, and drilled on ground that was once cemetery property, was completed with a flow of 1600 barrels from the 4985-foot level.

The W. S. Royalties No. 8, located in the western section of the field on Linden avenue, was completed at 4850 feet, showing an initial flow of 1000 barrels.

The Herwick No. 12, located at Linden and Frankfort streets, on a lease directly south of the Herwick No. 7, was completed at 4852 feet, showing a yield of 2000 barrels.

Union Oil Company's Community No. 5, at Walnut avenue and Crescent street, was completed at 4745 feet and is now rated as a 500-barrel producer.

A feature of the week was the bringing in of the two big wells, Ramsey-City B-2 and Pan-American's Anderson 3, in the southeastern area, where recent developments have awakened the interest of many operators.

James A. Wood
PRESIDENT

WILSON & COMPANY, INC.

First Avenue and Forty-Fifth Street.
New York City.

March 7, 1924.

To the holders of the preferred and common stock:

The special meeting of the stockholders of the company which was called to be held on Wednesday, February 27, 1924, first took an adjournment to Wednesday, March 5th, and has now taken a further adjournment to Wednesday, March 12th, at noon, when it will reconvene at the principal office of the company at No. 186 First Avenue, New York City.

The board of directors wish to be sure that the stockholders understand the issue that is now before them. It is simply a question of whether you will follow the board of directors of your own company, or whether you will be guided by the members of the Swift family who constitute the management of one of our principal competitors.

The holders of considerably more than the necessary two-thirds of the common stock and of a large share of the preferred stock have given their support to the plan recommended by the board of directors in the circular letter of February 1, 1924, contemplating the creation of 250,000 shares of prior preferred stock (a portion of which was intended to be sold to employees) and 350,000 shares of class A stock, ranking behind the existing preferred stock but having a preference of $3 per share in respect to dividends over the common stock.

In spite of this liberal support, the consummation of the plan has thus far been blocked because members of the Swift family (who together own more than twenty-seven per cent of our preferred stock) and Messers. Tucker, Bartholomew & Co., the Boston brokers backed by the Swift interests, have opposed the plan and refused their support, thus preventing the necessary vote of the holders of two-thirds of the preferred stock.

Upon the Swift interests, therefore, rests the responsibility for blocking the plan adopted by your board of directors, after mature consideration, to interest employees in the enterprise, to obtain additional funds through the issue of stock and to enable the company to reduce its outstanding indebtedness and improve its whole financial structure. This is a grave responsibility for the Swift interests to assume. In their letter of February 23, 1924, Messrs. Tucker, Bartholomew & Co., claim that the management of the company is attempting to "shift the burden of the situation" to them and their clients. Nothing could be further from the facts. Your officers and directors have recommended the plan of financing which is before you and are quite willing to assume full responsibility therefor, believing that the plan is in the best interests of the company and of both its preferred and common stockholders. The Swift interests, on the other hand, along with Messrs. Tucker, Bartholomew & Co., have taken upon themselves the burden of opposition, and must assume the serious responsibility which such opposition entails.

Messrs. Tucker, Bartholomew & Co., state in their circular letter that on February 8th they sent to the company a telegram protesting against the issue of prior preference stock and advising of their intention to solicit proxies among the preferred stockholders for the purpose of defeating the proposed plan. The telegram asked the company to abandon the plan without contest. These brokers were not holders of preferred stock according to our books, and knowing that they represented the Swift interests I went directly to their principals, that is to say, the Swift family of Chicago, and laid before them the facts as to the company's position and the necessity for the present plan of financing. Since then we have had further conferences with the Swifts and their representatives, have supplied them with all information requested and have again urged upon them the importance of giving their consent to the plan.

It is most unfortunate that interests identified with one of the company's chief competitors are thus in a position to defeat the plan. Such an outcome would cause special regret to your board of directors, for after a prolonged period of acute depression in the packing industry the management reports that the company's operations last year, particularly for the last six months, showed a most satisfactory improvement and that the outlook for the industry during the current year is most encouraging. The failure to adopt a constructive plan to finance the company's requirements through stock issues would prevent the stockholders from participating in this improvement because of the necessity of directing earnings that would otherwise be available for dividends to the retirement of debt.

The success of the plan for financing the company's requirements by the issue of additional stock is especially important at this time because of the large amounts that will be needed to meet the sinking fund requirements on its outstanding bond issues, which already rank ahead of the outstanding preferred stock. If these sinking fund requirements cannot be financed out of new issues of stock, as contemplated by the plan, it means they will have to be met, so far as possible, out of the company's earnings and put ahead of dividends upon the preferred stock.

It must be apparent that if the Swift interests succeed in blocking the plan to raise additional funds through the issue of stock they will probably render necessary the suspension of dividends upon the preferred stock, thus interrupting the company's hitherto unbroken record of preferred dividends. The dividends on the preferred stock as a matter of fact has already been endangered by their efforts to defeat the plan.

It should be added that the interests who have opposed the plan now before the stockholders have suggested no other plan and proposed no alternatives. Apparently their aim is simply to defeat the plan. Under existing conditions that must mean continued financing of the company's requirements by borrowing, which in turn would mean further interest and sinking fund charges that the company would have to meet before it could pay dividends on the preferred stock.

The adjournment of the stockholders' meeting to Wednesday, March 12th, will give those stockholders who have heretofore withheld their approval an opportunity of voting for the plan and of giving their support to the management as against the opposition of Swift interests. Send us your proxy in favor of the plan, if you have not already done so, in time for the adjourned meeting. If you have already sent it to us, no further action is necessary. If, on the other hand, you have sent a proxy to Messrs. Tucker, Bartholomew & Co., or to the Swift estate trust, in opposition to the plan, I urge you most strongly to revoke such proxy by dating, signing and returning to us your proxy in favor of the plan.

Los Angeles Basin Wells Surpass All Others

Torrance Field Has Dozen New Well Producers

Rise in California Crude is Expected

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

Los Angeles basin oil fields last week completed thirty wells, practically all of which showed initial production in excess of the average initial production of all oil wells in the United States for the entire year, many of which yielded in excess of that amount.

Torrance led the list with twelve completions, Long Beach was second with nine new wells, Santa Fe Springs completed six, and Huntington Beach finished three. It is expected that the present week will keep pace with former records both in the matter of new wells. The Huntington field is expected to add at least one as its share.

Operators are looking for an increase in the price of California crude oil sometime within the next two weeks. Crude prices in Ohio, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas were advanced last week. Bonuses ranging between 12 and 21 per cent per barrel are being paid here for light crude.

FORMAX COMPANY DRILLS IN OIL SAND

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT, March 10.—The Formax Oil Company has its drill in the No. 8 hole in oil sand, having passed through about 300 feet of petroleum-bearing strata. Superintendent James Grant plans to complete the well in the neighborhood of 1300 feet. This company has a new rig up for well No. 14 and grading has commenced for No. 15 derrick.

TORRANCE FIELD WIDENING

Big Companies Prepare to Reach Out On East And West Ends; Twelve New Producers

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

TORRANCE, March 9.—Twelve new producers, with a combined daily output of 7300 barrels, were brought in here last week. While these wells were being placed on production a dozen others were drilling in the oil sand. The majority of these are expected in before the end of this week. Preparations are being made by some of the big companies to open up new territory in the east and west ends of the field.

EXTENDS FIELD A MILE

On the east the Shell Company has gone nearly a mile beyond the Southland Petroleum Company's Oakley No. 1 outpost producer on the east, to locate its Watson No. 1 on the 200-acre Watson lease east of Harbor Boulevard.

The Oakley No. 1, which was brought in "bare-footed" nearly six weeks ago with an initial flow of 600 barrels a day, is now reported to be pumping at the rate of 200 barrels. The oil is a little better than 17 gravity. Two wells are being drilled east of Harbor Boulevard, but both are north of the Shell's wildcat.

The Southland Petroleum Company's Winship No. 1, which is only a few hundred yards west and north of the Shell well, is not deep enough as yet to pick up the oil formation, and the Keystone Syndicate's No. 1 well, a half mile to the north, is down 4750 feet. Little hope is held out for the latter. It has had numerous oil showings, there has been no indication of productive sand. The well is now believed to be too far out on the edge. The Shell well is thought to be far enough south to pick up production, if the Torrance field extends that far. The new wildcat is six and one-half miles from the extreme west edge of the field.

TWO FIRMS EXPLORING

The Standard and Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Companies are exploring on the west side of the field. The Stanard well is going in on its Ellinwood property on the south side of Redondo Road, a mile west of the most westerly producer on that road and two-thirds of a mile south of the nearest producer on the north, which is the Chanslor-Canfield Midway's discovery well, Del Amo No. 1. The Chanslor-Canfield Midway's well is an offset to the Stanard wildcat. It will be called Del Amo No. 12.

From the drilling done to date, and the knowledge the companies have of the Torrance structure, the two wells being put down by the Standard and Chanslor-Canfield Midway are considered almost certain to become producers, although they may be rather far south on the structure. The Chanslor-Canfield Midway officials feel sure of production in this territory. As soon as the Stanard put lumber on the ground for its Ellinwood No. 1, they immediately ordered a rig in to offset it.

There is considerable rivalry on the west side of the field between the Standard, the Chanslor-Canfield Midway and the Petroleum Securities' drilling crews, growing out of an offset battle between these companies in the southwestern territory. There is likely to be an unofficial race between the Standard and C. C. M. O. crews on the outpost wells.

Indicating tha. the southwest section of the field will be an important factor in the future production of the Torrance structure, the Standard's Marble Fee No. 1 came in Saturday with an initial flow of 800 barrels. It is believed that the well will increase to 1000 barrels as soon as it has cleaned itself out. The well is the farthest west of the producers along Redondo Road.

In this section, both north and south of the road, there are now approximately forty wells drilling ahead. The Stanard's well was completed at 3697 feet. Offsetting that well on the east, the Petroleum Securities crews Saturday were preparing to put Marble No. 28 on production from a depth of 3717 feet. The oil string, Saturday, was also being run in the Chanslor-Canfield Midway's Torrance No. 35, completed at 3715 feet. Both wells are expected to go on production today. The Standard and Petroleum Securities' wells were cemented off at 3280 feet, giving them an oil formation of more than 400 feet. The Chanslor-Canfield Midway's Torrance No. 35 was cemented off at 3240 feet, giving that well 465 feet of oil formation to produce from.

MORE OIL FORMATION

These wells have from 150 to 200 feet more oil formation than the wells in the area near Midway Northern No. 1, three-quarters of a mile to the east, and the majority of the eastern area of the field. Along the west end of Carson street the same condition is found, and these wells, while having almost as big an initial production as the wells in the Midway Northern territory had, have held up far better.

While the Standard was putting its Marble Fee No. 1 on production the Shell Company, two miles east of it, on the Redondo Road was bringing in March No. 3, equally as good a well in point of production, though considerably lower in gravity. The gravity of the Marble Fee well is expected to run around 25 deg., and the March well about 19 deg. March No. 3 was cemented off at 3650 feet and completed at 3852 feet. It is producing from half as much oil formation as was found in the Standard well.

Three other wells were brought in during the week in the neighborhood of the March well. None of them is believed to be making what may be expected by the end of this week. The Shell's Kettler No. 1, completed at 3512 feet, is flowing at the rate of 600 barrels, through a three-eighths-inch bean, to build up pressure. It is expected to make between 800 and 1000 barrels. The Superior's Torrance No. 15, completed at 3815 feet, is making 600 barrels through a three-eighths-inch bean, and is expected to go up to 1000 or 1100 barrels. It offsets E. J. Miley's Torrance No. 1-A, which is now making 900 barrels and increasing steadily.

LARGE FLOW EXPECTED IN FARMINGTON

Rattlesnake Believed to be 200-Barrel Well; Nearly Pure Gasoline

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FARMINGTON (N. M.) March 9. The Rattlesnake Dome well being drilled by the Producers' and Refiners' Corporation for the Santa Fe company is being put in shape make a real production test.

All reports made officially place the production of this hole at a high figure for this region, the latest estimate being that the well is a 200-barrel producer.

The casing is being pulled and a packer installed on top of the producing sand to get all of the gas pressure and perhaps an increased flow. This well definitely proves the structure to be commercially productive, operators say.

The Rattlesnake No. 1, after cleaning out the mud, proved to be a much better well than was at first reported after it was bailed and left standing during the latter part of the week the oil flowed over the top of the hole for a short time.

It is now believed that the well will produce a settled flow of from fifty to 100 barrels per day of the highest grade oil ever taken out of the ground. It tests even higher than the oil from the wells on the Hogback Dome, its gravity being about 64 degrees.

Plans for going deeper in this hole have been abandoned. The rig will be moved to a new location and another well put down. That this oil has proved lighter than that of the Hogback Dome has led some operators to believe that the main producing sand will be encountered somewhere this side of the Hogback proper, reasoning that the oil in Hogback Dome and the Rattlesnake structure has filtered through and hence is nearly pure gasoline. Others think that it is the result of filtration and that the best sand probably lies deeper down.

The Rattlesnake structure was not considered promising when the leases were sold by the government at Santa Fe last fall. It went begging during the bidding and finally was sold for $1000 to the Metropolitan Company of which S. C. Munos, president of the New Mexico Central, and his associates in New York are backers. The Producers' and Refiners' Company was engaged to do the drilling.

Portrait Artist Off to England to See Parents

Mrs. Meena Belk, daughter of Thomas Burton, J. P., of Liverpool, England, after a year spent in Los Angeles visiting friends, left for the "Old Country" yesterday. She will visit friends in Canada on her way back and will reach Liverpool in about a month. Her father has been seriously ill.

Mrs. Belk is a miniature portrait painter of note, her work having received special merit and having been exhibited in the Royal Academy in London. She has painted a number of miniatures of prominent people while here and has been the recipient of honors at the Writers Club and other organizations. She is a lecturer of prominence and has appeared before a number of the women's clubs where she has spoken on "Art for Art's Sake." It is her purpose to return to this country again and to give a series of lectures on the possible future of the motion-picture industry.

Mrs. Belk made a close study of the motion-picture industry while here and its relation to Great Britain will be one of the topics with which she will deal while abroad. She believes there is a wonderful future for the film in England and says the industry there is only in its infancy.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

Los Agricultores no Apetecen a Johnson

PHILADELPHIA, Marzo 9.—Haría bien el Senador Hiram Johnson en dar por terminada su campaña presidencial y dedicar su atención a alguna otra cosa, si ha de concederse importancia a la opinión de los agricultores, manifestada en una "votación de paja" que registró el periódico "Farm Journal."

Al fin de la octava semana de votacin, Johnson ha bajado al sexto lugar y el Senador Capper le saca ya bastante ventaja. Hasta en California va Coolidge delante de Johnson, con una superioridad de 3 a 1.

El actual Presidente y William G. McAdoo continúan a la cabeza de sus respectivos partidos. Este último hasta aumentó ligeramente en el tanto por ciento de la votación total, lo que debe de ser noticia importante para los investigadores del arrendamiento petrolífero de Teapot Dome.

Las cifras de esta votación se han formado con votos de todas partes de los Estados Unidos, pero especialmente de los importantes estados agrícolas del Oeste Central donde la votación ha sido tomada por el "Farm Journal" en los circuitos postales rurales.

Tesorero Desfalcado que Prometió Pagar su Déficit

DETROIT, Marzo 9.—Lynn Mason, abogado que representa a William H. Stauffer, ex-Tesorero de Ciudad, de quien se dice haber defraudado al Ayuntamiento, prometió ayer a Kalamazoo el pago de todo el desfalco de 29,000 cometido por el citado funcionario. La promesa vino acompañada de una remesa de $8926, con lo que monta ya a $14,640, la suma que se ha restituido a la Tesorería Municipal. Este último pago se hizo posible vendiendo la casa, automóvil y acciones del ex-funcionario, bienes que legalmente pudo haber puesto a salvo, pues eran posesión mancomunada de él y su señora.

San Luis Missouri no Podrá Ser Centro Cinematográfico

ST. LOUIS, Marzo 9.—La Compañía General Manufacturera, domiciliada en el Bulevar Delmar, 6300, que, según sus anuncios, iba a hacer de San Luis un centro de cinematografía, ya no podrá vender acciones en Missouri, por decreto del señor Hurwitz, Comisionado Suplente de Finanzas del Estado, quien revocó la licencia de la compañía de vender acciones, diciendo que se iba a cancelar la misma immediatamente. Manifestó Hurwitz, al dar su orden, que, aunque la compañía, por su propio informe, tenía vendidos $85,000 de acciones, no ha declarado ningún dividendo, y no tiene, al parecer, rentas ningunas.

EVIDENCE FOUND OF BURGLARY FAILURE

FUMES FROM OVERTURNED JAR OF ACID BAR INGRESS OF OFFICE OWNER

Fumes of a strong acid, accidentally released when a container was broken, are believed to have routed burglars from the office of I. N. Inskeep, handwriting expert, on the seventh floor of the I. W. Hellman Building late yesterday. Although evidence was found that intruders had visited the office and apparently knocked over the acid jar, nothing was missing.

Mr. Inskeep returned to his office after an absence of several hours but was unable to proceed further than the entrance of the seventh floor on account of the overpowering fumes. He called the police who in turn summoned firemen. Equipped with gas masks, the firemen braved the gas, opened the windows and neutralized the acid. Mr. Inskeep told the police the acid was one of a number of valuable chemicals he uses in his work.

Don't Starve to Reduce Fat

Why spend the rest of your life counting calories and denying yourself proper nourishment, when you can reduce in a safe, natural manner without dieting, exercise or inconveniences?

If you are overweight the chances are that the little gland which Nature implanted in your body to regulate the fat-building process is dormant and inactive. Like an automobile with a defective carburetor, your system is getting too rich a mixture. This fault is generally due, not to diet, but to the organic weakness which allows an abnormal proportion of the food to turn into fat.

Vitaxa Obesity Tablets produce a healthful stimulation of the gland that controls fat, thereby aiding it to function properly. As its activity increases your weight should gradually reduce until all useless fat has vanished. Procure a $1 bottle of Vitaxa Obesity Tablets from the Owl and Sun Drug Stores and any reliable druggist. Follow the simple directions and you will be amazed at the quick results. A. O. Burke, an intimate friend of the dead man. Funeral arrangements are held in abeyance pending the arrival of Mr. Schneider and the daughters this afternoon.

GRIEF AS SHOCK

Grief at the death came as a severe shock to the many business associates and the scores of friends of the dead man, both here and in San Francisco.

It is early hour yesterday morning the Schneider maid called to the Burke home with the news of the death. Dr. Eugene Lee, the family physician, was hurriedly summoned and when he ascertained that life had fled the body, arrangements for removal to the Cunningham and Pearl undertaking parlors were made. The body is now at that establishment.

Jacob M. Schneider was born at Bruchbach, Germany, [illegible], 1846. At the age of 12 years he came to the United States with his parents, who settled in Boston. Four years later he began his business career as a clerk in the store of Reid & Ford at Petaluma, and within a few years became a partner in that concern.

On January 17, 1893, he was married to Miss Angela Barrie of San Francisco. In addition to his widow, he leaves a son, Dr. F. H. Schneider of Alameda, a brother, August A. Schneider of this city.

Mr. Schneider's present business association was established thirty years ago and for more than a quarter century he was president of the J. W. Robinson company.

ACTIVE IN CIVIC LIFE

Aside from his business interests Mr. Schneider took a prominent part in civic activities. He was formerly president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, for many years he was a member of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and he was a member of the Transportation Committee which figured prominently in the location of Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Pedro. It was through his efforts which brought about the consolidation of the Pacific Electric lines into the seaport of the Los Angeles Harbor.

He was a member of the Jonathan Club, the Los Angeles Country Club and the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

The funeral policy of the J. W. Robinson company will be continued under the direction of H. Jacob M. Schneider in the interest of the company for [illegible]

J. M. SCHNEIDER DIES SUDDENLY

Former Business Man is Stricken in Bed

Heart Trouble Fatal During Family's Absence

Head of Robinson Company and Civic Leader

Jacob M. Schneider, president of the J. W. Robinson company, member of the Board of Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce and pioneer Los Angeles business man, was found dead in his bed early yesterday morning by a maid at the family home, 115 Lafayette Park Place. Death came unexpectedly during the night as a result of heart trouble, at a time when Mrs. Schneider and the seven children were absent from home.

While the dead man complained of an unusual "fatigue," no significance was attached to the statement as he appeared to be in normal physical condition.

The bereaved widow and three children—Margarita, Rowena, Carlos—are speeding West at Chicago on the Santa Fe limited. The two older sons—Robert and John—arrived here yesterday morning from Belmont College near San Francisco, and the younger sons—Robert and John—are at the home of a brother, John P. Burke, an intimate friend of the dead man.

Funeral arrangements are held in abeyance pending the arrival of Mr. Schneider and the daughters this afternoon.

TURN DIRT FOR PLANT AT HARBOR

Actual Work on Unit of Cordage Factory to Get Under Way Today

Industrial Los Angeles added another unit to its growing pay roll yesterday when the first shovel of dirt was turned at the harbor on the site where will rise the California Thorn Cordage, Incorporated. Tomorrow construction gangs of the Anton Johnson Company will start work on one steel and tile building 90x240 and several smaller buildings, which, with machinery, will represent an expenditure of $300,000.

Three months later, according to Maj. J. C. Thorn, manager, the plant will start producing 250,000 pounds of rope and twine products monthly, on which the first four months' output already has been contracted for in Southern California. It is estimated by Maj. Thorn there is an existing market in Southern California for 700,000 pounds monthly.

The plant will employ forty-seven rope makers to start, the unit eventually calling for eighty, with tentative plans under way for a $150,000 enlargement. Several dozen types of product will be produced at the plant, from small twine to twelve-inch and fourteen-inch hawsers and ship lines.

The ceremony yesterday at Point Fermin was witnessed by several score of Southern Californians, most of them stockholders in the company, which is being financed entirely here. Albert T. Brown, pioneer harbor realtor, turned the first shovel of dirt, while J. T. Little, formerly of Vancouver, told of Maj. Thorn's success in a similar plant there. H. D. Leslie, Los Angeles insurance man, also spoke.

New Pullman Cars Embody Every Luxury

New Pullman observation cars, declared the most luxurious ever placed in service, will be started on the Golden State Limited of the Southern Pacific tomorrow. The cars have barber-shop, bath, telephone, smoking-room, reading-room and other conveniences. The car is open to public inspection at the Southern Pacific station today.

The new cars have Circassian walnut finish instead of the customary Pullman mahogany; the upholstery is blue and the panels in the observation end are distinctive in design. A new ventilation system has been used which is described as a great improvement over former types.

THIRTY PLANES IN CONVOY

Army Pilots to Fly With World Circlers Far As Seattle; Insignia Contest Spirited

Thirty army airplanes will convoy the four giant cruiser biplanes of the Seattle on the initial stage of the projected round-the-world flight, it was announced by the authorities yesterday at Clover Field. The planes will start from Clover Field Monday morning flooding the office of Lieut. C. C. Moseley.

CONTEST STILL OPEN

According to Lieut. Moseley, contestants will have until Thursday at 6 p.m. to complete their designs and get them into his hands. The judging committee will consist of the round-the-world flyers themselves and they will begin the arduous task of choosing the winner early Friday morning.

As soon as the winning design is selected, artists will paint it on each ship of the world-cruising detachment and when the start of the epochal flight is made early Monday morning, each of the four planes will have the insignia emblazoned on its fuselage.

The design, it is stated, must typify the feat of the United States Army Air Service in flying around the world, but it is especially announced that the American flag must not be made a part of the insignia. The American eagle, however, is not only permissible, but desirable.

MAY USE NAME

Contestants may submit as many entries as they wish and it is probable that the winner's name, as well as his design, will be painted on the planes.

Scores of drawings have already reached Lieut. Moseley and more

ONE REASON HOMES ARE STILL DARK

City Power Bureau's Lobbying Trip to Washington Cost Public $3423

Taxpayers, who are within a few months to be asked to hand the municipal Bureau of Power and Light $20,000,000 more in bonds on top of the $23,000,000 in bond issues the Bureau has already secured plus annual revenues now in excess of $7,000,000, received an interesting sidelight yesterday on why, in spite of the millions it has gathered in, the Bureau is "broke" and owes the taxpayers more than $7,000,000. This came from the expense account of the Washington lobbying trip of President Criswell of the City Council, filed with the accounting department of the Bureau.

While the expense account showed expenditures from public funds of $587, President Criswell's salary as a Councilman for the two months he was absent from the Council was $400, and then the Bureau gave him a one-way railroad ticket East, which cost $136.95.

Special Counsel Mathews of the Public Service Commission who was also a member of the Washington lobbying crew which worked for two months to try to force favorable action on the Swing-Johnson bill has also returned to Los Angeles with an expense account which will be at least $500, while his salary for the two months as attorney for the Public Service Department was $2000, as he receives $12,000 a year. So the total cost to the public for political lobbying in Washington by these two men alone was $3423.

Criswell and Mathews have made frequent lobbying trips to Washington, which resulted in an average expense for each official for each trip of $500. Councilman Criswell admitted from the floor of the City Council last week.

Meanwhile, applicants for electric service are told at the Public Service Commission offices that the Bureau has no money for service connections, and will have none until more bonds are voted.

The Bureau spent many thousands of dollars last June for "jazz" bands, marcel waves for young women, hundreds of thousands of circulars, banners and other advertising for the $35,000,000 power bonds, which were defeated. The Bureau is threatening to again spend much money from its revenues for the $30,000,000 power bond issue to be submitted this spring, despite the fact that there is a suit pending in the courts filed by W. W. Mines to force the commissioners to refund to the City Treasury for the benefit of the people of Los Angeles $12,415 which the Bureau admits it spent on the "jazz band" campaign last June for the $35,000,000 power bond issue.

PLANS SILK PRODUCTION FOR STATE

Antelope Valley Seen as Future Industry Center of United States

Antelope Valley may become the nation's leading silk producing area within the next twelve months, according to Dr. George P. Clements, manager of the agricultural and horticultural department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Clements bases his assertion on word received from J. A. Nour, eminent sericulturist, to the effect that he is leaving San Francisco for Los Angeles to work on the founding of an immense silk-growing industry in Antelope Valley.

Mr. Nour, who was a student under Pasteur and is accredited with having saved the silk industry of France at one time, has just completed a comprehensive survey of the Pacific Coast and its possibilities as a silk-raising territory.

Antelope Valley was found to be the one section of the Coast best suited to the growth of the mulberry trees upon which the silk worms thrive. The temperature and humidity of the valley, according to Mr. Nour, are most favorable both to the health and efficient production of the worms.

GERSHON IS OFF TO WASHINGTON

Preceded Resignation From Justice Department

Testimony Expected to Bare Plot to Aid Rebels

Dave Gershon, former Department of Justice agent, who has been subpoenaed before the Senate committee investigating the administration of the Department of Justice under Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, left San Diego for Washington yesterday morning where he will testify as to his knowledge of events preceding and following the seizure of a contraband shipment of arms for Mexico in 1921, and give any information he may have as to the asserted knowledge of former Secretary of the Interior Fall and high officials of the Department of Justice concerning the shipment.

With him Gershon took a mass of data, reports and correspondence concerning the seizure of the arms and the subsequent release of three men who were taken into custody at the time of the seizure near National City on the border.

TO TELL EVERYTHING

"When I take the stand," Gershon stated, "I shall reveal everything concerning the events of the seizure and my subsequent departure from the government service. If the committee wants the facts I can reveal them."

He stated his lips were sealed by orders of the committee and he could not release for publication full details of his testimony which it is declared will involve high officials in plans for the shipment of the arms.

The shipment in question took place in October, 1921. J. A. Flahive and his sons, Jack and Frank, were arrested following the seizure, but later released.

HINTS AT FALL PART

It is intimated that A. B. Fall, then Secretary of the Interior, had a conference with Department of Justice agents in Red Bluff prior to the shipment, and informed them that the arms should be permitted to pass the border. It was also intimated that Fall knew the arms were intended for Col. Esteban Cantu in the latter's effort to start a revolution.

Gershon left the Department of Justice shortly following the seizure of the arms. The Senate inquiry is expected to clear the air definitely and bring to light the details of the asserted conference Fall had with Department of Justice agents prior to the shipment, and the circumstances surrounding the release of the Flahives.

SENTENCE OF BANKER SUSTAINED

Ex-Cashier of Bank at National City May Appeal Case to Highest Court

The United States Circuit Court of Appeal at San Francisco has affirmed the verdict in the case of Oliver Bower, former cashier of the Peoples' National Bank of National City, near San Diego, who was sentenced by Federal Judge James last May to serve ten years and five months in the Federal penitentiary on a charge of embezzlement and falsifying records. Notice of the ruling on Bower's appeal has been received by U. S. Atty. Joe Burke. The case may be carried to the United States Supreme Court, it is announced by E. J. Kelley of San Diego, counsel for Bower.

Bower was convicted at San Diego on May 18, 1923, following a trial which lasted five weeks. The indictment against him contained six counts, five of which charged him with making false entries on the books of the bank. In the sixth count he was charged with embezzling $125,000 of the funds of the bank. The prosecution was handled by John R. Layng, assistant United States Attorney. The appeal was taken on technical objections.

The bank with which Bower had been associated was closed October 26, 1921 after passing into the hands of a receiver. The transactions on which the indictment against Bower was based took place just prior to that time.

INDIANS TAKE STEP FORWARD

Land for Welfare Work Is Dedicated

Chief Standing Bear Greeting Children

THE first steps toward making Los Angeles the center of a widespread campaign for the betterment and education of the American Indian was taken yesterday when a four-and-a-half-acre tract of land in the Ella Hills back of Lincoln Heights was dedicated to Indian welfare work by school children and by Chief Standing Bear, president of the American Indian Progressive Association.

Thirty-five school children from the Fairvew Heights School of Inglewood, who contributed part of the money used to buy the land, were present at the dedication under the direction of Mrs. Bertha Gunnup Hollister and Mrs. Ella M. Friend. Chief Standing Bear, who is a Sioux Indian, headed a delegation of Indians and accepted the land in behalf of the Indian race. Miss Ida May Adams, of the American Welfare League, and Mrs. Verna B. Richards of Pasadena, were among the speakers.

Some of the uses planned for the land, according to Chief Standing Bear, are the establishment of an Indian employment bureau, a hospital for the sick and an open-air theater for the presentation of pageants and of historical dramas similar to the Mission Play. These projects will be sponsored by the American Indian Progressive Association, which, the chief explains, is local at present, but will be converted into a national organization.

Capital for the purchase of the land in the Ella Hills was furnished largely by an unnamed donor, but there were several smaller contributions. It is the plan of the donor, according to those interested, to push the development of the Ella Hills site as a center of Indian welfare work.

Lake Dredgers Find Ancient Boat

Workmen dredging Witek Lake near Butler, N. J., brought up the remains of several canoes supposed to have been built by prehistoric Indians. Prof. Saville of the Museum of the American Indian pronounced the canoes from 700 to 1000 years old. They were made of a cedar which no longer grows here. The keels alone remained intact. The bottom of the lake also gave up stone axes and flint knives.—[Pathfinder.

NEAR DEATH AS CAR HIT BY FREIGHT

Operation Saves Life of Victm; Other Occupant of Auto Bruised

One man was seriously hurt and a companion with whom he was riding in an automobile escaped with slight hurts, when the car collided with a freight train on Lankershim Boulevard, near Lankershim, early yesterday morning. Police Surgeon Saverien performed a major operation at the Receiving Hospital and saved the life of the more seriously injured of the two men.

The accident is said to have occurred when their machine stalled on the railroad crossing, and only the fact that the train was moving at a slow speed prevented both from receiving more serious injuries. Charles Yuskus, 33 years of age, an employee of Universal City film studio, was treated for a depressed skull fracture, necessitating an operation to save his life. John McDonald, 42, also a resident of Universal City received a few cuts and abrasions about the limbs.

RESIDENTS TO MEET

Residents of the Greater Sunset Boulevard district, which includes Echo Lake, Edendale, Silver Lake and Sanborn Junction will meet in the Micheltorena schoolhouse auditorium tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock. George A. Levy, former industrial commissioner of Denver, Colo., will speak on "Community Development." The public is invited.

CHINAMAN SELF-SLAYER

Quan Ying, 30 years of age, committed suicide by hanging himself yesterday in the basement of an apartment house at 677 South Westlake avenue, according to the report of Detective Lieutenants Jarvis and Craig, who investigated. The body of the Chinese, who was employed at the apartment as a janitor, was found hanging by a bedsheet. Ill health is believed to have been the cause.

TO VOTE ON DRUG WAR AID

Supervisors Take Up Today Plea for Funds to Distribute Narcotic Booklet

The Board of Supervisors will vote today on the request made by Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, as head of the International Narcotic Education Association, for this county's financial participation in the proposed national distribution of the booklet "The Peril of Narcotics and How to Meet It." The City Council also is considering the matter.

"It is proposed to place the booklet in every American home and thus to prevent the spread of the drug habit to the present and rising generation. The headquarters of the international association is in Los Angeles.

"Our work has been approved by the boards of forty-four States and we hope that Los Angeles county and city will not fail to make the necessary appropriations because its effect on the other counties in California and the other States in the Union," Capt. Hobson said yesterday.

The books would be distributed as a part of a week of propaganda, the week beginning next Monday. The county and city governments are asked to furnish $5000 each for issuing 200,000 copies of the booklet, which would place it in every home in the community. It also is proposed that the Supervisors co-operate with other municipalities in the county in financing the project so that the entire county can be covered. Some legal difficulties in the way of county participation have been removed by the suggestion that the County Health officer legally could furnish the necessary funds.

The cost of this widespread distribution would be only 1 cent per capita, Capt. Hobson declares. By contrast he points out that it has been estimated authoritatively that the drug habit in the amount spent on drugs and in the subsequent loss of efficiency costs the nation $18 per capita per annum; this is not considering the excessive cost in administration of courts of justice and police departments.

MAY ARREST SECOND MAN IN BANK RING

Sleuths Promise Action in Inquiry on Protection of Bandits

The second arrest growing out of the investigation of the robbery of the First National Bank of Arcadia and its charges that protection has been given to large bandit gangs operating in the city, is expected before the grand jury resumes its inquiry tomorrow, according to the investigators who have been working during the recess.

With Hubert Kittle, former police inspector and special investigator of the District Attorney's office, now under arrest charged with receiving stolen property, the second arrest is expected to clear up the disposal of a large part of the loot of the bank robbery. So far Kittle, who is being held incommunicado in the Santa Monica City Jail, has refused to implicate others in the asserted alliance between the gangs and police officers.

The investigators are still searching for the three young women who led the Sheriff's office to arrests for the Arcadia Bank robbery, for which three Mexicans, Salvadore Mendivil, Brulie Galindo and Jose Hernandez, are now serving sentences at San Quentin penitentiary. As soon as the women are located they will be taken before the grand jury.

A. W. Fitzgerald, former Burns detective, is expected to be one of the most important witnesses in the inquiry when he testifies before the grand jury tomorrow. It is believed that his testimony will result in an indictment against one of the central figures in the asserted crime ring.

Among other witnesses expected to be called tomorrow are Detective Sergeants Ben Kighin and Stanley Decker of the Pasadena Police Department. These officers were the first to reach the scene of the bank robbery and obtained the first descriptions of the bandits.

DEATH MET IN FLAMES BY WOMAN

Mrs. Augusta Schutte is Found Burned to Crisp in Her Chair by Son

The body of Mrs. Augusta Schutte, 83 years of age, of 1010 West Second street, burned to a crisp, was discovered yesterday in a chair in her sitting-room. Mrs. Schutte, a widow, had lived in the same house for approximately fifty years, neighbors said.

Nothing else about the house was burned, and even the chair on which she sat and a table on which her arm rested were scorched only slightly. In an attempt to reconstruct the tragedy the police conjectured she had lighted a match to start a gas heater, had suffered a stroke of apoplexy and that the match fell from her lifeless fingers and set her clothing ablaze.

Her body was found by her son, F. W. Schutte. Neighbors told the police they had seen Mrs. Schutte about the house in the morning.

LAND OFFICE WOULD HELP RANCH PLAN

Urges Contest on Entry of Mojave Reclamation Idea be Dismissed

Persistent efforts of Allen Weeks, a rancher, to develop desert land in the Mojave desert, south of Muroc, will receive co-operation from the government if recommendations made by Receiver Smith and Register Valentine of the United States Land Office in Los Angeles are affirmed at Washington. The local officials have recommended that a contest filed against Weeks's entry of the land by field agents of the General Land Office be dismissed.

Weeks paid $1900 to the original claimant of the land for the right to develop it. There is an artesian well on the property which Weeks expects to use successfully in making the land productive. The field agents from the General Land Office contested his entry, however, on the grounds that experiments had shown the soil to be unfit for agricultural purposes.

The recommendation that the contest be dismissed was made by the local agents on the grounds that Weeks has spent considerable money in a good faith effort to make the land productive.

RECORD TRAVEL DUE HERE SOON

Summer Tourists Expected to Set High Mark

All-Year Club Secretary in East Sees Increase

Automobile Travelers Will Form Great Horde

Summer travel to California for 1924 both by railroad and automobile will exceed all previous records, according to information that has just been gathered at important eastern cities. A wire to this effect has just been received by the All-Year Club at Southern California from its executive secretary, C. G. Milham, now in the East. He is to return here in the middle of the month.

"General Manager Young in entire charge of the Cook travel agency in the United States," said Mr. Milham, "told me that all signs at this season of the year indicated that travel to Southern California would exceed previous records. He ascribed this increase to the advertising that the All-Year Club has done this season, and to the advertising which those who have visited us in the past summers have given wherever they have gone. The idea that Southern California is just as good a summer resort as it is a winter resort is only slowly taking hold, and as it grows from year to year, Southern California may look for a continuously increasing number of summer vacationists, and with this spread a continuously increasing stream of new wealth.

PLAN EMULATED

"Mr. Young told me that the community advertising of Southern California was looked upon as so great a success that it was being emulated in several places this year with several other community vacation plans projected for next year."

A great many of the eastern railroads, according to Mr Milham's telegram, have taken a leaf from California's notebook and have patterned their advertising after the State's advertising. That is they do not advertise the railroad particularly, but they advertise California. Then their advertising informs the reader that if he intends going to California that their particular road is the ideal one to travel on. This partial alteration in the style of railroad advertising is merely a by-product of the advertising of the All-Year Club, yet it is now almost as important as the main work.

Inquiries at automobile clubs and similar sources reveal that additional thousands of people are going to start out this spring and summer on transcontinental tours. Practically every person who travels across the continent will visit Southern California. Many will come here direct over the Southern roads, while others will travel across the Northern routes, down the Columbia River highway, and then down the coast and return by Southern trails. Automobile travel for 1924 is expected to approach the number of persons traveling by train. The enormous growth from year to year is afforded by registration of tourist permits issued by the California Division of Motor Vehicles each year from 1920 forward. The figures are: 1920, 17,611; 1921, 20,725; 1922, 28,390; 1923, 66,054.

HUGE INCREASE

The increase of travel in 1923 over 1922, it is noted, was 135 per cent. A similar increase for 1924 over 1923 would mean that approximately 150,000 tourist cars could be driven into California.

In 1923 the motor visitors left $30,000,000 in California, most of it in the Southland.

Stein Defense Will Tell Case This Afternoon

Defense testimony will be introduced this afternoon before Federal Judge James in the case of Harry Stein, former proprietor of the Quality Garment Company, who is charged with conspiracy to violate the national bankruptcy law. The government rested its case Friday after spending two days in the introduction of evidence. The defense will rest within an hour after the trial is resumed today, according to counsel for Stein.

Stein was arrested last September at Chicago after being indicted on evidence that he had shipped to Chicago and New York $12,000 worth of goods purchased on credit in Los Angeles. Bankruptcy proceedings against him in Los Angeles disclosed assets amounting to only $700. Three others indicted with him have not been arrested.

NEW LOVE IS EXILE PROOF

Couple Fail to Break Triangle by Life Apart in Mountains; Divorce Follows

In spite of a voluntary exile of two months into the mountainous Bear Valley district, Elsie Cunningham, wife of Floyd A. Cunningham, Long Beach cafe proprietor, was unable to regain her love for her husband.

Cunningham's story, told in Judge Summerfield's divorce court, related of his wife's return and of her confession that she still loved the man over whom the separation had taken place. It won him a divorce.

The new romance came into Mrs. Cunningham's life after eighteen years of marriage, her husband said. The cafe man declared he worked many hours a day and that his wife had begun to go around with the other man.

"I urged her to quit him," Cunningham told the court, "and she promised me she would. But she didn't. Finally I asked her to decide between us. She said she didn't love me any more and couldn't give up her new love."

An agreement was made between man and wife, however, Cunningham says, to go separately to the mountains for sixty days and then to come back and try to live together. At the end of this time, Mrs. Cunningham is said to have returned and made her confession. The divorce followed.

SAFETY STUDY IS EMPHASIZED

Education Need in Caring for Workers Cited

Industrial Growth Cause of New Problem

Petroleum Trade Praised for Demonstration

Tracing the inception and development of safety principles and workmen's compensation laws, Industrial Accident Commissioner John W. Carrigan has expressed the belief that specialized education along these lines will soon become the universal common practice, and that all those with authority to direct employees will, as a matter of course, expect to study and understand these principles.

"Education of this character makes for better citizenship and better government," he said. "These principles are not the outgrowth of either civil or common law, but of the industrial development of the past fifty years, which has been greater during that period than during the thousand years preceding.

"It has been demonstrated time and again that safety precautions have increased efficiency and decreased the cost of production."

PRAISE GIVEN

Commenting upon the rules and regulations recently formulated for the petroleum industry in this State, which are now about ready for formal adoption, he expressed appreciation for the cordial and harmonious efforts of oil company officials and employees' representatives to co-operate with his department. He also lauded the industrial safety school recently established as an adjunct to the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which will work in conjunction with the Industrial Accident Commission.

Pursuing the legal aspects of the subject, Mr. Carrigan continued: "Under the old common law which prevailed prior to the enactment of compensation laws, employers were responsible when injury was the result of any act or omission on their part and on that ground could be compelled to pay damages. Under the present laws, injury suffered in the course of employment is compensable regardless of any act or omission. It is therefore to the advantage of every employer to welcome all rules, regulations and devices that may be legally adopted. Experience shows that wherever safety principles have become thoroughly understood both employers and employees co-operate fully in carrying them out."

HAND WORK VANISHING

Speaking from the economic viewpoint, Mr. Carrigan pointed out that in the vast majority of industries the day had passed when the actual work was done by hand. It is done by machinery operated by trained and experienced employees who are part of the industrial organization. When one of these employees is injured the industrial organization suffers. The injury is reflected in the life of the man's family and thus the city, State and nation are affected. The State and nation are called upon to rehabilitate him and that costs time and money.

Mr. Carrigan also takes a deep interest in the humanitarian side of the work of his department. "It is appalling," he said, "to see the number of accidents that are attributable to no other reason than the inexperience of the employee in the particular work he has been engaged to do, and unfamiliarity with his immediate surroundings. Industrial accidents, of course, cannot be entirely eliminated, but they can readily be reduced to an unavoidable minimum through education in safety principles."

ADOPTION OF DIESEL DRIVE HUGE SUCCESS

FUEL CONSUMPTION SLASHED THREE-FOURTHS, STEAMER OWNERS REPORT

Conversion from steam propulsion to Diesel drive has reduced the fuel consumption at sea of the American-Hawaiian motorship Seekonk 75 per cent, while the conversion of her deck machinery and other auxiliaries shows a saving in port of nine-tenths the fuel oil consumed while the Seekonk was a steamer, according to figures made public yesterday by the William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Company.

The figures cover the Seekonk's 13,322-mile maiden voyage as a motorship along the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts and return without a single stop while at sea. The Seekonk created considerable interest while at Los Angeles Harbor, that much as Representative Greene's bill, which would establish an annual fund of $25,000,000 for five years for the conversion of U. S. Shipping Board vessels to Diesel-driven motorships, has been favorably reported in the House.

Of the eighty-four days required by the Seekonk to complete her epochal voyage, fifty-one were at sea, twenty-nine in port, and four running in rivers and harbors. A mean speed of 10.29 knots was maintained and on completion of the voyage no machinery repairs of any sort were required.

The U. S. Shipping Board now has 361 idle vessels with deficient machinery, which it is offering for sale at a nominal sum. This "boneyard" fleet comprises 262 steamers equipped with geared turbines and water tube boilers, fourteen with turbines and Scotch boilers and eighty-five with reciprocating engines and water tube boilers.

DILEMMA IN BRANNON CASE

Police Doubt Ability to Convict Him of Murder Without Wife's Inadmissible Story

That a conviction of Barney Brannon, 37 years of age, who was placed in the City Jail Saturday night after the fatal shooting of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Cronin of 1129 South Grand View avenue, on a murder charge, may be impossible to obtain was the opinion expressed by Detective Lieutenants Craig and Jarvis of the police homicide squad yesterday when they announced that the only direct evidence against the man is the testimony of his wife—inadmissible in a trial.

In his cell at the jail, Brannon repeated his original version of the shooting, declaring that Mrs. Cronin was shot when she jerked a revolver from his pocket.

WIFE'S VERSION

The story of Mrs. Helen Brannon, who has told the police that her husband has several times threatened her with death, is that Mrs. Cronin jumped between her and Brannon when he calmly announced that he was going to kill her and drew a revolver from his pocket.

Only Brannon, his wife and Mrs. Cronin were in the residence when the shooting took place, according to the evidence in the hands of the police. Mrs. Helen McGrath, sister-in-law of the slain woman, was in the house when Brannon arrived, the police say, but she left on an errand and did not return until Brannon and his wife had left leaving the body of Mrs. Cronin lying on the floor. Mrs. McGrath summoned the police and Detectives White and Hartmeyer arrived at the scene in time to find Brannon and his wife still in the vicinity.

According to Detective Lieutenants Craig and Jarvis, Mrs. Brannon is nearly prostrated from grief and shock but is anxious to help the officers prosecute her husband for murder.

It is thought possible that a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on Mrs. Brannon may be preferred against Brannon before the murder charge is pressed so that the wife's story may be heard in court.

Brannon is said by the officers to have adopted an unworried attitude and to have been ready with an explanation for every question with which the detectives have faced him.

BRANNON'S EXPLANATION

Brannon, the police say, explained the revolver in his pocket by saying that he had bought it to commit suicide if his wife refused to become reconciled to him. He denied striking his wife or flourishing the revolver, as related in the wife's story, and declared that the only thing he brandished in the room was a flask—from which he offered to pour drinks for the two women.

There had been no argument, he said, and Mrs. Croin suddenly clutched at him, taking the bottle in one hand and reaching into his pocket for the revolver.

DAMAGES FOR EDITOR HURT IN AUTO CRASH

In a judgment on file in Judge Carlos Hardy's court, Simon Stone was granted damages of $4200 from Lloyd E. Crawford, driver of an automobile which injured the plaintiff when he left a street car July 23, 1922, at the intersection of Fresno and East First streets. Henry Crawford, owner of the car, also was named as a defendant, but his name was withdrawn during the trial. The defendants insisted that Stone jumped from the car while it was still in motion, but the motorman testified that he could not have done so as the gates were closed. Stone, before his injury, was editor of the Jewish Times.

SCOUT FUND DRIVE HEADS MEET TODAY

Four-Day Campaign for $100,000 Scheduled to Open Tomorrow

Boy Scouts of Los Angeles come into their own this week. During the next four days the public will have its opportunity to show a realization of the fact that the Scout organization has become a vital factor in the development of good citizens out of the lads of the city. The method of appreciation will be through contributions to the $100,000 training fund sought by a committee of business and professional men who are backing the boys to the limit.

The citizens' committee will meet at noon today at the Biltmore with Malcolm McNaghten, president of Los Angeles District Council, and Capt. Edward A. Salisbury, campaign chairman, for last minute discussion of the arrangements for the city-wide canvass to start at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and continue until Friday evening.

This committee meeting will be followed later in the afternoon by a gathering of the 333 field workers who will make the personal calls of the campaign. "Generals" George F. Bradley, Robert A. Heffner and Malcolm McNaghten have command of the 330 "captains" and "lieutenants" who bear the brunt of the actual canvass.

"Hundreds of boys are watching this campaign with almost pathetic eagerness," declared President McNaghten yesterday. "These are the boys who want to join the Scout organization but for whom no provision has been possible because there has not been money enough to train them through the degrees of 'tenderfeet' into second class Scouts and finally into first class Scouts.

"Knowing that the public has been asked for $100,000 these boys have flocked to headquarters with questions about the probable success of the campaign, to find out whether their names are still recorded on the large waiting list, and often to offer their services in any way they might help to achieve our goal. These boys, we know, are entitled to the great character-forming training of the Scout organization and they will not be denied Scout benefits if we can secure the money to help them."

SERVICE AT SALVATION ARMY HOME

Headquarters at Cottage and Ninth to be Dedicated Next Thursday

With the highest officers of the western territory taking part in the exercises, the Salvation Army headquarters at Ninth street and Cottage Place will be dedicated Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Local Salvation Army activities, which for years were directed from the quarters in the Chamber of Commerce, are now centered in the new and spacious home of the organization in Ninth street. The building was formally opened several weeks ago when Brig. C. R. Boyd and his local officers took possession, but the dedication which was planned for the visit of Commander Evangeline Booth to this city was postponed owing to the delay in putting the finishing touches to the structure.

Commissioner Adam Gifford, western territorial commander, will come from San Francisco with Col. W. J. B. Turner to take a leading part in the dedicatory ceremonies. Harry Haldeman, chairman of the advisory board of the Army here, will act as chairman. Members of this board, in addition to Mr. Haldeman, are Harry Chandler, Frank Ryan, Charles H. Toll, H. W. O'Melveny and William May Garland.

The women's committee, of which Mrs. Roy Jones is chairman, will take a foremost part in the ceremonies. Representatives of numerous civic and social welfare organizations will take part in the dedication.

Brig. Boyd, assisted by all the staff officers of the Southern California district, will hold flag-raising ceremonies at the new building at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

STATE CLOSES TODAY AT TRIAL OF COOTE

DEFENSE WILL INTRODUCE TWO WITNESSES AT NIGHT SESSION

After an effort this afternoon to show that the firm of A. W. Coote was insolvent at the time a check for $24,842 was accepted by Mr. Coote, the prosecution will close its case against him. Defense attorneys in the evening session will call two witnesses.

Coote is on trial before Judge Hahn on a grand jury indictment covering six counts of embezzlement. It is said by the State that he converted funds entrusted him by clients to his own use. When his firm of stockbrokers failed, investors lost sums of money aggregating more than $1,000,000, it was declared at the time.

Testimony showing the nature of Coote's transactions has been introduced. A. E. Parkford on Friday stated that he gave Coote a check for $24,842 in payment for stocks which he never received. Other witnesses have stated that stocks given to Coote for sale or exchange were never returned or paid for.

Dep. Dist.-Attys. Becker and Van Cott are prosecuting the case. Defense attorneys include the firms of Rush, Shaw, McDaniel and Beirne.

OBSEQUIES TODAY FOR BERNARD FANTA

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. today at the W. A. Brown Chapel for Bernard Fanta, a resident of Los Angeles for 42 years. He died Friday, 75 years of age. Mr. Fanta was born in Bohemia in 1849 and came to America in 1872. He was engaged in business here until 1902, when he retired, and in 1922 he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Amelia Fanta, and three daughters, Mrs. W. S. Sultan and Mrs. Edward J. Franklin of Salt Lake City and Miss Julia Fanta of this city.

SPIRITS ARE BLAMED IN DECREE SUIT

Repeated charges of immorality made by her husband, who is said to have declared "the spirits" were informing him of his wife's misconduct, were too much for Mrs. Josie Trusty Bland, who, in a divorce coplaint on file, charges her husband, Frank D. Bland, with cruel and inhuman treatment.

Mrs. Bland says her husband accused her of planning an immoral trip with two men and another woman to Los Angeles only four days after her marriage. Also that when she danced with another man at Tehachapi on November 11, Bland cursed her and threatened to "beat up" her dancing partner.

On November 28, 1923, Mrs. Bland declares her husband dropped out of her life, leaving her in a motor car in Lancaster. She hasn't seen him since, she says.

The complaint states the couple were married in Bakersfield on October 17, 1923, and separated on the following November 28.

DEATH CLAIMS NOTED SHORTHAND REPORTER

R. S. TAYLAR TOOK TESTIMONY IN MANY FAMOUS FEDERAL COURT SUITS

Robert S. Taylor, one of the best-known shorthand reporters in the United States, died early yesterday morning at his home at 7706 Hampton avenue. He had resided here two years, coming from Minneapolis after a severe illness.

Among the lawsuits of national prominence reported by Mr. Taylor were those of the United States against the Standard Oil Company, the government against the International Harvester Company, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern merger, and other antitrust suits of equal note. He was called from Alaska by Ambassador Kellogg of Minnesota to report the Standard Oil case. Ambassador Kellogg was then chief counsel for the government. Mr. Taylor is also known for his work of standardization of the Pitman shorthand system, to which he devoted ten years. This work is said to have advanced the profession more than anything else within fifty years.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. from the undertaking establishment of Strother & Dayton, 6240 Hollywood Boulevard.

SHIPS TO BRING BANANAS

United Fruit Company to Start Weekly Service on South America-Los Angeles Run

Plans of the United Fruit Company for the establishment of a weekly express passenger and fruit service between Central America, Los Angeles and San Francisco were confirmed Saturday by William Newsome, vice-president of the company in New York. Mr. Newsome said the matter has been under consideration for some time and that final decision will be made soon by the directors of the line.

It is planned to establish the terminal at Los Angeles Harbor, with the steamers running from banana ports on the East Coast of Central America, through the Panama Canal and thence to this port and San Francisco.

The company's banana business to the Pacific Coast, said to total more than $1,000,000 annually, is now handled by rail from Galveston over the Southern Pacific to Los Angeles. The resultant rehandling, refrigeration cost and time element will be obviated, it is said, if the company handles its shipments by water direct.

In addition to any shipments that may originate from the east coast of Central America more than 4,000,000 bunches of bananas from new plantations on the west coast of Guatamala are expected to arrive here during the year on steamers of the Pacific Mail Line.

A method by which the tropical fruit is shipped in open crates on the decks of the steamers has proved entirely successful, local importers declare.

The United Fruit Company at present operates a fleet of twenty-five fast steamers in the fruit and passenger trade, in addition to a number of similar British vessels to the United Kingdom. Mr. Newsome said that his company anticipates a 25 per cent increase in business during the coming year and will add six new ships to the fleet during the period.

RANCHER AND WIFE BOUND AND ROBBED

UNMASKED THIEVES RUSH INTO HOME WHEN DOOR IS OPENED

Jeff Walbridge, Whittier rancher, and his wife were bound and robbed Saturday night by two men, according to a report of the Whittier police. The men gained entrance to the Walbridge home by a ruse, rushing in when the door was opened. They tied Mrs. Walbridge to a chair and her husband to a bed, and then cut the telephone wires.

They then searched the house, apparently looking for money or valuable jewelry. They took a $500 diamond ring from Mrs. Walbridge's finger.

Both men were armed, but neither was masked.

RIVERSIDE

The City Beautiful

A Splendid Animal from a Riverside Dairy Ranch

Where dairying offers splendid opportunities for profit

Climatic and Other Conditions are Ideal Here

RIVERSIDE'S BACK COUNTRY is well adapted for dairy ranching. Climatic conditions here guarantee maximum chance for success. That success in this line has been achieved by many is shown by the fact that Riverside county figures for dairy products marketed rose from zero in 1917 to close to $1,000,000 last year.

Three important reasons for this remarkable growth are these: Right prices, right market conditions, and a highly organized system of transportation for dairy products. The Riverside county dairyman's product is not subject to delay; trucks carry it twice daily to Los Angeles, if he wishes. There is also a Riverside firm which absorbs much of the local production.

A herd of good animals, plus intelligent operation of the ranch, practically assure the Riverside investor of splendid returns.

DENY TOT KEPT FROM MOTHER

Injunction Defendants Say Child Refused to Go

Mrs. Ransome Asserted to Have Heard Decision

Policemen Not Used to Bar Parent, Aver Kin

Stating that they had posted policemen at their home in Santa Monica to prevent Florence Beasley Ransome, well-known society woman, from visiting her 7-year-old daughter, Vivian Marguerite Ransome, five defendants in a suit for an injunction brought recently by Mrs. Ransome filed answer to the action in which they set up the defense that the child voluntarily had refused to go with her mother.

Mrs. Ransome's suit was directed against Chief C. E. Webb and two other officers of the Santa Monica police force, Alfred G. Ransome and Mary Ransome, her parents-in-law, and Allan Ransome, her husband, from whom she is said to be separated.

ALLOWED TO VISIT

According to her complaint, Judge Daly of Inyo county granted custody of the two Ransome children to her parents-in-law, prior to hearing a contested divorce case between the plaintiff and her husband, who is said to be a society oil man. The court denied Mrs. Ransome a divorce, she said, but granted the order relating to the children so as to permit Mrs. Ransome to have their custody on Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Thursday evenings.

When Mrs. Ransome called at the home of her parents-in-law on February 1, last, the complaint recited, she was accosted by two officers who told her she would be placed under arrest should she attempt to take the elder of the two children. A similar situation was declared to have developed on two subsequent Sundays.

The police officers replied that they had not sought to restrain Mrs. Ransome from visiting her child, but were at the home at the request she called merely to prevent the commission of the peace of the community. They further asserted that the child cried and became hysterical when Mrs. Ransome attempted to take her and they suggested to the plaintiff that she not try to force the child to go with her.

It is stated that they be discharged of any blame in her complaint on the ground that a restraining order would keep them from enforcing law and order in Santa Monica city.

DENY CHARGES

Mrs. Ransome's parents-in-law have indeed entered a categorical denial of the assertions set forth in her complaint, declaring that they had in no way refused to permit her to visit her child. On the contrary, they said, the child frequently had refused to accompany her mother. On one occasion the defendants stated, Mrs. Ransome called at their home in company of one Frank Bush. The child refused to go with Bush, the answer recited, and Mrs. Ransome was informed by the child's mother so informed when she was declared then to be unable to enter the defendants' home. Allan Ransome, who is alleged to have restrained Bush, is declared to have been arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, preferred at the instance of Bush. At this point the answer stated, the child told her mother she would not accompany her anywhere.

PLANS TO GATHER

A special program to include music by the Golden Trio, popular radio vocalists, has been arranged for the reunion of former residents of Kansas in Disabled Veterans' Hall, 344 South Hill street, Thursday evening, it was announced yesterday. Tourists from the State have been invited to attend. There will be a number of counties and dancing will follow the entertainment.

URGES NATION TO AWAKE

Federal Judge Wade in KHJ Speech, Warns People of Danger of Ignorance and Apathy

(Substance of radio address by United States District Judge Martin J. Wade delivered March 8, 1924, over KHJ, The Times radio station.)

Men and women of America! Fathers and mothers and teachers, to you I make my appeal tonight. I appeal to you to wake up from your sleep of security and indifference. The world is in turmoil. Our nation is confronted with grave problems. Oh! Won't you wake up? Won't you listen to the warnings of Washington, the prayers of Lincoln, the dramatic commands of Roosevelt, the heartfelt appeals of Wilson?

Tell me this! What will become of "a government by the people" if the people refuse to govern?

In 1920, 27,787,466 men and women of voting age spurned the privilege and the duty of going to the polls and expressing their wishes, their hopes, their aspirations. They refused to help govern these United States.

ARE NOT THANKFUL

We are living in an atmosphere of discontent and doubt, and discord, and suspicion, and hatred, and class prejudice and denunciation—even of hopelessness.

Much of all this is due to gross inexcusable ignorance of the great fundamental truths of our government—to a misunderstanding of, and a contempt for, our institutions.

Where, oh where, is there any manifestation of gratitude for the blessings and the opportunities of free government? What are our millionaires doing to show any gratitude for the opportunities which enabled them to rise from obscurity to affluence?

A few—a very few—are contributing to education and charity, but most of them are spending their American dollars in purchasing second-hand chorus girls for themselves, or decadent princes for their daughters. What pleasure-mad Americans spend in Paris in one year would establish a school of American citizenship in every college and university in America—open to the brakeman and the scrubwoman, as well as to those who know Latin and Greek.

What are some of our working men—who are better paid, better housed and better fed, than any other working men on God's footstool—what are they doing to show their gratitude for American opportunity? Some of them came from Europe, from poverty and from tyranny, and took shelter under the flag. What are they doing to show their gratitude for the privileges they enjoy—for the free school for their children, and for the chance to rise, as many of them have, to places of power and responsibility? In many communities Debs could fill an auditorium to denounce America, while not a score would listen to Chief Justice Taft tell of the blessings of liberty under the law.

CREDIT TO STATE

California has many great things to her credit. One of the greatest is the enactment of a law opening the doors of her schools to the Constitution.

Another achievement of California is the action of her Attorney-General and of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who proclaim that the law requiring the teaching of the Constitution in the schools shall not be treated as a joke. These officers hold that not only shall the children of California study the Constitution, but that the teachers of these children shall study the Constitution and pass an examination in this great subject before they can receive a certificate to teach the children of California.

No, the American school is not an "open forum."

I would no more hire a man or woman to teach in an American school, who did not understand and reverence the Constitution—who did not have an abiding faith in our form of government—than I would employ an atheist or an agnostic to teach in a theological seminary.

I uphold the right to "freedom of opinion" and "freedom of speech." There are men and women in America who believe that Lenin was a greater man than Washington, who believe that Russian chaos is better than American government. They have the right to so believe, but this does not mean that they should be permitted to teach this heresy to our children.

There are American men and women who honestly believe that

NOT OPEN FORUM

In 1920, in a rural election precinct in North Dakota, sixty-two men and women voted; three ballots were for Harding, one was spoiled, and fifty-eight were for Debs, who was then in the Federal penitentiary under a twenty-year sentence for being a rebel against his country in the tragic days of the World War. They had a right to vote for Debs, but I apprehend that no one will contend that any one of them would be an ideal teacher of the children of real American fathers and mothers.

No, the school is not an "open forum," nor should the doors of our men's clubs, or women's clubs, be open to those who breathe defiance and contempt of our government and her institutions.

Churches do not open their doors to athiests, agnostics, Communists or followers of Mohammed. No American Christian mother would listen to a denunciation of the American Christian home in an appeal for the establishment of a "love cult."

Let "free speech" find its audience, but not in the home, nor in the school, nor in the club, if "free speech" proclaims destructive criticism of all that is dear and sacred to the American heart.

No! No! One thing is settled. Our form of government is fixed and final. The Constitution may be amended by the people, laws may be amended or repealed, new laws will be enacted, but regardless of Communist, Anarchist or radical Socialist, we are going to march forward under the Old Flag, traveling the beaten paths defined by the Constitution—on—on to the end.

AMERICANISM FIRST

No, I would not deprive our children of "world culture." I would not close the doors of knowledge, but I would have them "see America first." If knowledge of America, pride of America, faith in America, is once fixed in the American heart, I defy all the waves of hate and bigotry and passion, and Bolshevism, and Communism, to unsettle this foundation; I dare them to attempt to plant the red flag where the Stars and Stripes now so proudly wave!

Another great California achievement, is the inspiration here of the great national newspaper oratorical Constitution contest.

Fathers and mothers and teachers, in this hour of opportunity, will you not aid in having your children and pupils enter this contest upon the Constitution; not for the money prize alone, but for the greater prize which will come in the mental and spiritual development of those who must soon take up the duties and obligations of citizenship.

In these contests, not alone will the child be developed, but the child will become the teacher of the parent, and will bring the spirit of the Constitution into many homes where the Constitution now has no friends.

Men and women, and teachers of America, wake up!

GERMANS CRYING FOR FOOD

Bishop Nuelsen Paints Pitiless Picture of People Hopelessly Facing Starvation

A grim and pitiless picture of conditions in Germany, unrelieved by hope, was painted yesterday by Rev. John L. Nuelsen, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Central Europe, upon his arrival to secure the aid of America for the stricken people of his great district.

Rev. John L. Nuelsen

Unemployment is on the increase in Germany, he declared, starvation and disease are spreading, the people are undernourished if not actually on the verge of starvation and the German children of the present generation are crippled physically and morally. Everyone is affected by the present economic breakdown, Bishop Nuelsen declared. Everyone is starving in a measure from the effects of undernourishment and suffering in Central Europe.

WORSE THAN RUSSIA

Conditions in Germany, he declared, cannot be compared with those of the years in Russia. The famine there was due to a shortage which would be relieved when the next crop came in. However, however the distress due to a food shortage removed from unemployment, which has arisen from the industrial paralysis following on the depreciation of the foreign markets and the wrecking of the currency. Many Germans hope in the future for a complete economic collapse, so that no harvesting can save the situation. They believe, however, that, in consequence of diplomatic processes of diplomacy, the children of Germany will be fed and clothed through charity or they will starve and freeze to death.

MANY ARE JOBLESS

Unemployment increases in unbroken succession in addition to a situation which has added to a situation per German thought is in the church conference in the factory industry during the month of January showed that 87 per cent were averaging 36 hours work a week. In parts of this territory 25 per cent of the men were without any sort of work.

The professional and "white collar" classes are also suffering. Their salaries are not sufficient to buy even food for themselves and their families and thousands upon thousands of them are entirely without work.

The American Friends Service Committee, supported by the American Relief Committee under the leadership of Maj.-Gen. Allen, is doing the most effective work in relieving suffering in Germany at the present time. The various religious denominations are also doing good work, he declared, but their confined efforts are of little avail when the immensity of the calamity which has overtaken the nation is considered.

TESTIMONY OF MOTHER IN BALANCE

Fate of Mrs. Champion, Accused of Perjury, to Go to Jury Today

Might a mother lie to save her son's life and freedom?

And if she did would she be guilty of perjury and subject to incarceration for her act?

That is the problem that a jury today will decide when the case of Idella Champion is submitted to them by Judge Keetch. The jury is composed of eight women and four men, the women picked by defense attorneys presumably because a woman could better understand the workings of a mother's mind and heart when her son's existence was threatened.

Idella Champion took the stand when her son, A. F. Champion, was on trial on a charge of murdering James Goldy. She stated that her son was with her in Fort Worth on January 10, 1922, when the murder was committed. She gave a detailed story of his movements in Fort Worth and placed the date by several different events that took place during the month of January.

In spite of defense testimony, however, Champion was convicted of the murder and his mother, his father Frank Champion, and Vera Hughes, his cousin, were arrested and held on a charge of perjury. The three of them gave approximately the same testimony and repeated it before Justice Hanby. They were ordered bound over for trial. The mother is the first to appear in Superior Court. The other cases have not been set.

Mrs. Champion repeated to the jury before Judge Keetch her memory of her son's visit to her in Fort Worth. She placed the date of it by the fact that her niece had visited her in Texas during the first week in January. Near the end of that week she stated, the two motored into Fort Worth and met her son. He arrived on the 8th, she said, and stayed with her until the 11th.

A curious circumstance will arise if Mrs. Champion is acquitted. For her son has been convicted by one jury who did not believe her testimony. If another does believe it and acquits her of a perjury charge, is her son guilty or was he wrongfully convicted?

Compliment for Mother

Mrs. C. K. C. writes: "My little Janet came home from school the other day and said: 'Mother, the smartest little girl in school this morning belong to you.'"—[Boston Transcript.

SKYLIGHT BURGLAR OPERATES

Several Shots Fired by Watchman in Chase of Thief With Plunder

Firing several shots as he ran, V. S. Uty, a special night watchman, chased a skylight burglar over the roofs of several buildings in South Los Angeles street early yesterday but was unable to prevent his escape with several hundred dollars in loot.

The chase began, according to the report made to Detectives Partin and Vail of the police flying squadron, when the night watchman discovered an open skylight in the establishment of the B. A. Newmark Company at 398 South Los Angeles street. He entered the building and saw a man hoisting a bundle to the roof.

The burglar followed the bundle and was running across the roofs when Uty got through the skylight. Uty fired several shots and followed until the man was lost in the darkness.

Police officers, arriving in response to a call from Uty, discovered that entrance had been gained also to the Paradise Cafe through the roof of an adjoining building. The management of the cafe reported that $175 in silver had been taken.

The loot from the Newmark Company was several dozen silk shirts, valued at several hundred dollars.

Cases of Neal and Nine More Come Up Today

F. C. Neal, former prohibition agent, and nine others indicted a week ago on a charge of violating the prohibition law, will be arraigned today before Federal Judge Bledsoe. Neal was dismissed from the prohibition service by Harold H. Dolley, chief field agent for prohibition enforcement when Dolley was in charge of the Los Angeles office. Since then Neal has been associated with others who have been subpoenaed to appear before the Federal grand jury and explain charges against Dolley and the conduct of the Los Angeles prohibition office.

The nine indicted with Neal are: Mrs. Neal, W. S. D. Smith, F. Carlton, H. E. F. Greenwald, Nick Zanetich, Frank Oreb, Tom Dusevich, James Yubanni and William Morrison. The indictments grew out of the seizure of 1000 gallons of intoxicants and the boat Erni when an effort was made to land the liquor near Santa Monica.

Woman Tries Suicide; Love Affair Blamed

Despondent over a love affair which had ended unhappily for her, Mrs. Gladys Phillips, 34 years of age, of 4643 Melbourne avenue, Hollywood, attempted to end her life by slashing her arms with a razor blade, early yesterday.

The young woman was found by her sister, Consuelo Crafts, said to be well known in motion-picture circles. The sister hastily summoned Hollywood officers, who took Mrs. Phillips to the Receiving Hospital where she was treated by Police Surgeon Saverien. According to the surgeon's examination, the sharp edge of the razor did not penetrate into any arteries and her life is not in danger.

Detective Culp, who investigated the attempted suicide, reported that members of Mrs. Phillips's family said that she had been brooding over a love affair in which she had experienced a quarrel that ended the romance.

Bullet Checks Burglar Suspect at Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 9.—The "Five O'Clock Burglar," for whom police have been searching for months, is believed in custody with the thumb of his right hand missing.

J. M. Ramsey heard some one fumbling at the screen of his bedroom window at daybreak this morning, and saluted the intruder with a shot from a Remington rifle. The intruder ran, and Ramsey pursued down the street, pausing to take another shot. This struck the man in the right wrist, tearing off his thumb and part of the palm of his hand and smashing two fingers.

The man, a negro, said he was Clark A. Sims, 27 years of age. He is in Seaside Hospital, under arrest on a burglary charge.

POLISH BENEFIT CONCERT

Stanislaw Michniewica, Polish pianist, will appear in a benefit concert of the Polish Women's Aid Circle Sunday evening at the Polish Auditorium, Fortieth street and South Park avenue. The pianist recently arirved in Los Angeles. Teodora Wisniewska, coloratura soprano, will also appear. The program will be concluded with songs by Henry Cantor, member of the Delara Grand Opera Company, and Bogdan Gilewicz, Polish baritone and former member of the Opera Comique of Warsaw.

TO PLEAD FOR PEACE OF WORLD

Welsh Woman in City to Lecture, Bears Memorial of 400,000 Signers

Mrs. Peter Hughes Griffiths of Aberystwyth, Wales, who was a delegates to the United Association of American Women in New York, arrived here Saturday, and will speak this evening at the Welsh Presbyterian Church, 437 Crocker street.

Accompanied by Miss Mary Ellis and Miss Elined Prys, Mrs. Griffiths came to New York as a bearer of the memorial from the women of Wales to the women of America. This memorial was signed by more than 400,000 Welsh women and was presented to the welcoming committee at a luncheon at the Biltmore in New York February 9, last.

"We came to the women of America to plead for world peace," said Mrs. Griffiths at the Gates Hotel, "for we have come to believe that if there is ever to be international peace it must come through the efforts of the women.

"This movement on the part of the women of Wales has nothing to do with politics. We are merely acting as individuals with but a single thought and hope, and that is that peace shall prevail throughout the world.

"At Washington, as I stood by the simple stone that marks the grave of Woodrow Wilson, I could not but look at the unfinished structure in the crypt of which he sleeps and remember that his work, too, was unfinished. But he laid the foundation in an idealism that I feel sure will grow with the years, and one day that structure of peace which he hoped to complete will be finished.

"This is such a great, wonderful country. Just think. I traveled for four days to cross it! You people here in your beautiful, fertile, sunny California cannot conceive of the hardship, the poverty, the wretchedness and the terrible fear that grips the hearts of the women of the Old World."

Mrs. Griffiths is a member of the Council of the University College at Aberystwyth. She is the only member of the delegation from Wales to visit the Pacific Coast and is here to visit old friends in Los Angeles and Pasadena. Mrs. Griffiths leaves Tuesday night for New York, traveling by way of New Orleans.

NEVER HEARD IT
One of the professionals is writing a series of articles on how to master bad golf lies. The best plan we can think of is to wear earmuffs.

SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT
A bobbed-haired bandit is relieving Brooklyn men of money and jewelry. The odd part about this is that she flourishes a gun and wears a mask.

MAKING THE GRADE
The trouble with some of the legislators is that they confuse the melting pot with the junk pile. There's a big difference, as any metal refiner knows.

BY WIRELESS
There are now nearly 200,000 radio sets in service on the farms of America. First thing we know the American farmer will be trying to broadcast his beans.

NOT BY A WHISKER
Every voter in the forthcoming Presidential election in Santo Domingo will be shaved immediately after voting to prevent his repeating, according to a possibly veracious dispatch. It's easy to see what margin that President-elect will win by.

THE GREASY TRAIL
There is threat of a war between the Standard and Sinclair Oil companies. But there would be no call for a Congressional investigation on that account. Even the Senators would not mind if the oil corporations got to pummeling one another.

OUR FLEETING INSPIRATIONS
Because she had to live four days in a house devoid of gas and electricity a Los Angeles woman attempted suicide. And yet most probably when she saw "The Mission Play" or "The Covered Wagon" she thrilled to the courage and fortitude of the pioneers and yearned to be just like that.

WORTHY EFFORTS WASTED
Neither Mr. McAdoo nor Senator Reed seems to be doing much to convince the country that he ought to be elected President, but each is doing considerable to convince it that the other shouldn't be. And yet, with Coolidge in the race, that hardly seems necessary.

ENTANGLEMENTS
Among other things hard to explain is the effort of California Democrats to line up for Senator Copeland of New York in opposition to William Gibbs McAdoo. Dr. Copeland is not seriously considered as a possibility, even by himself, and there is no conceivable warrant for his further exploitation by a bunch of voters as remote as those of California.

HOME SWEARING
A judge holds that the use of profanity on the part of the husband is not ground for divorce unless it is specifically and persistently directed at the wife herself. Plain swearing does not suffice to warrant a decree. A little cussing now and then is relished by the best of men. Here is a second Daniel come to judgment. The hazards of a domestic career may justify an oath.

THE BORDER CURFEW
It may be unconstitutional, but the border lights are snuffed at 9 o'clock at night just the same and Americans are forbidden the crossing. Of course, the purpose is to put a check upon some of the night life at Tijuana and other sporting spots in Mexico. They are sustained by the wild men and women of America and, were it not for the patrons from this side of the border, they could not exist. It is the sons and daughters of Uncle Sam that contribute mightily to the naughtiness of Mexico. If there is a 9-o'clock curfew at the border it may help some. It will at least urge the invaders to do their drinking by sunlight.

SOME SECRECY
The administration informs the Senators that under the law and the rulings of the Treasury Department individual declarations in connection with the income tax are confidential and secret. The statement filed by Henry Ford or any other millionaire cannot become public property without the consent of the one most concerned. The tax returns are exclusive. That is why the government is serving notice upon the bootleggers to step up to the captain's office and settle. They are paying thousands of dollars into the treasury and some are even reporting the source of their income because the facts are not allowed to go any further. The Treasury Department may have a signed statement that the taxpayer is a bootlegger, but this is not to be used as evidence in another department. The revenue collector may get a slice of the large profits of some illicit distiller, but he may not make his evidence known to the Department of Justice. There are not many things withheld from the prying eyes of the people, but thus far the individual details of income tax gathering have been inviolate. Possibly some Congressman will be offering a bill providing for the posting of all returns upon the front door of the Capitol, but thus far nothing of the kind has been attempted.

THE AUSTRIAN RENAISSANCE
An inspiring earnest for future achievement in Europe is the remarkable strides that Austria has been making during the last year in rebuilding a new civilization on the crumbled ruins of the old. Austria had tottered for a generation before the war. Her government, a slightly tempered absolute monarchy, was both tyrannical and weak. Once the most powerful monarchy in Europe, her domain extending from the British Channel almost to the Bosporus, she had sunk to the state of a second-class power.

Under Franz Josef, decadent scion of the once-powerful Hapsburgs, she had lost every war in which she had engaged. Her territory restricted, she had sunk to the lowly condition of a hanger-on of the dominant and arrogant Hohenzollerns.

During the century after Metternich both civil and religious liberty had been little more than a name. Patriotic aspirations were stifled in their infancy and expansion of the national spirit had become impossible. A veritable Chinese wall was builded about the empire, and neither liberty nor progress was permitted to enter.

Her territorial losses resulting from the war were enormous. The Austro-Hungarian Federation was dissolved. Bohemia regained the freedom that she lost in the Thirty Years' War. Her ports on the Adriatic were taken from her and her liquid capital was exhausted, wasted in disastrous military enterprises.

But these losses were in a large measure equalized by the restoration of the government to the people. The aristocratic and military classes disappeared with the empire. Austria is now a republic; not, like Germany, in name only, but in fact. The workers have found themselves. They are the arbiters of their own destiny; and the result has been the development of a healthy national spirit. They are no longer intoxicated by dreams of conquest. The sword lies broken and rusted on the ground; and the great plants that one manufactured war material are now devoted to producing necessary articles of commerce.

Austria accepted the foreign guidance that Germany has so persistently refused. The government budget balances this year, which means that the people are paying in taxes the cost of necessary government.

New ideals and a new spirit animate the Austrian pepole. For the first time in centuries their lungs are filled with the invigorating air of freedom. Industry is flourishing. There is work for willing hands, and a stabilized currency. The Austrians are laboring under handicaps; but they have displayed an honest endeavor to build their national and social life on a firm foundation of justice.

Vienna is regaining its lost prestige. It is again the Queen City of culture of Eastern Europe. The arts and sciences are flourishing; and the new growth is much healthier than the old; for the chains have fallen alike from the wrists of the artists and the artisans.

At the present time the Austrians are able to feed their own, and they are contributing largely to relieve starvation in Germany. They are showing the recalcitrant Germans the way to a new and better life. They are taking the lead in the restoration of industry in Middle and Eastern Europe. And America, along with most of the world, wishes them well.

Where there is a will to achieve the opportunities present themselves. A people that wills to live becomes invincible. Austria has paid a heavy price for her decadent, supine existence during the century after Metternich. But the people have learned that craft and cunning are poor substitutes for honesty and industry; and her present forward movement awakens a legitimate hope that her debt to the past has been liquidated.

When Germany begins to follow the Austrian example she, too, will find that the liberty she won without her own knowing in the World War will be worth more than all that she lost during a generation of military imperialism.

A GERMAN LOAN
Some practical method for adjusting the reparation question between France and Germany is by general consensus the first essential to the stabilizing of Europe. Except through a colossal loan to Germany, however, there seems little hope that the two countries will ever find a way out of the present impasse.

It is equally evident that the diplomats who favor that solution are looking to America as the big brother who will advance funds sufficient to re-establish German credit and satisfy French claims. To do this would require the flotation of a fund of billions of dollars. Is it wise at the present time for the American people to underwrite so gigantic a loan?

Dr. B. M. Anderson, expert economist of the Chase National Bank of New York, finds several objections to such a transaction. It involves other issues besides the settlement of a long-standing dispute that is undoubtedly endangering the peace of the world. Dr. Anderson finds the following five objections:

The bonds could be marketed only at a heavy discount, even assuming ample security to have been guaranteed. Investors' money is scarce where such vast loans are involved. Nor has Europe's management of her financial affairs since the war been such as to inspire confidence.

The French government would lose heavily on exchange rates when it came to bringing the money home. Bringing $2,500,000,000 from New York to Paris would demoralize the exchange market. The French government would realize only a fraction of the franc value of the dollars at the time the transaction was begun.

France and the rest of the world would lose by violent disorders in various commodity markets. General level of French prices would fall and a commercial crisis in France might even ensue.

This sudden influx of dollars would encourage a great increase in French imports—in many cases unnecessary imports that France can ill afford. The French government would get much less benefit from the cash than it ought to get when it came to paying off its internal debt.

So vast a loan would tighten interest rates everywhere, good bonds in all countries would go lower and business enterprises in all countries would find it harder to get capital for expanding their activities.

Dr. Anderson concludes with the declaration: "The net result of the whole transaction would be a considerable waste of capital which an impoverished world can ill afford." These reasons alone are sufficient to deter American business from being drawn into subscribing to billion-dollar loans to foreign countries of dubious securities.

THE LIFE SAVERS
The American Society of Engineers is seeking to formulate a national code of fundamentals making for motor safety. The very first paragraph calls for jail sentences and forfeiture of licenses for drunken drivers. In the second place, the society insists that there should be public trial for murder of all drivers who are known to be responsible for fatal accidents. In the third place, there should be thorough examination of the physical, moral and mental capacities of the applicant for a driver's license. No minor or incompetent—and certainly no careless woman—should be permitted to drive a car.

The Society of Engineers will sponsor a movement to procure the adoption in each State of a safety code based upon these fundamentals. The committee which prepared the report submitted figures showing that approximately 15,000 persons were killed in automobile accidents in the United States last year, while over 410,000 were more or less seriously injured. The investigators agree that it is the driver and not the vehicle that must be dealt with. Fines may bring in a lot of money to the road funds, but they do not seem to have any bearing on the accident column. The tragedies go on.

The prison sentence and the withdrawal of the license are the corrective measures that really count. Take away a man's car and his liberty and he cannot do much damage to his fellows. When he is out on the highway with a six-cylinder car and an overdose of moonshine he is a dangerous criminal. No licenses for minors or incompetents; murder trials for careless killers and the jail for speeders would undoubtedly help materially in making the world safe for humanity.

THAT MARRIAGE SYMP-OSIUM
A symposium of noted novelists asked to decide the question, "Is marriage a failure?" has done its best to damn that ancient and honorable institution with faint praise. Their study of ordinary mortals seems to have tended to convince the novelists that most of them are in constant revolt, open or restrained, against marital bonds and marital tedium.

The sum of their wisdom, in fact, is about equal to that of the schoolboy who, when asked how many wives were permitted in America and what the system was called, replied that in America a man could have but one wife and the system was called monotony.

But it is noteworthy that none of the novelists appealed to took the ground that children are a failure. And to have the unequaled happiness children bring into the world we must, as the world is now constituted, be married. Otherwise we may have some of the children, but we miss all the happiness.

Does any parent of a child just learning to lisp "Mama" and "Daddy" and given to freighting those names with such love and trust as no other words can carry feel that the marriage which has brought him to that happiness has been an absolute failure?

May it not be that the novelists—who, generally speaking, are absorbed and not wholly natural creatures—are all wrong about it? May it not be that it is not marriage which is a failure, but certain modern tendencies which often spoil even so good a thing as marriage?

There is the tendency, for instance, among so many young couples, to look on children as a social and financial handicap, to be avoided as long as possible. And there is the tendency to utterly get away from the old-fashioned home life which used to make people find their joys, their aspirations and their inspirations in the family instead of elsewhere. No one dreamed of asking whether marriage was such an established success.

Marriage which is merely a partnership for business or social purposes isn't genuine. It shouldn't be counted as real marriage in any such symposium.

Let it be remembered it also has been asked whether civilization is a failure and whether Christianity is a failure. And it has been remarked that Christianity is such a splendid thing it is too bad some of the Christian nations don't practice it. The same idea might be applied to marriage. If a lot of the ennuied married couples would try a little genuine married life they might find it an enthralling revelation.

CONCORD OF SWEET SOUNDS
Every time they try to put grand opera into English a lot of folks feel impelled to apologize for their mother tongue. The Italian speech adapts itself at once to sweet phrase and glorious harmonies. Why cannot the Italians behave as mellifluously as they warble?

THE BONE END
The shinbones of the cattle slain in the Chicago stockyards are being exported to China to be made up into mah jongg sets to be returned for the pleasure of America. This should invite a better understanding between the races. We can feel it in our bones.

THE SAGE OF CALABASAS

The new motor-vehicle law, which leans hard on reckless driving and is rather lenient upon mere speed, seems to be working very well. Despite dismal police prediction, the abolition of speed traps has not produced apparent ill effect.

Bert Bellows, who used to race in the old dirt track days when Barney Oldfield was a comparative beginner, holds that all accidents are inexcusable. Here's his dope:

"The most careful driver I know seldom goes less than forty miles an hour on the open road; in fifteen years' driving he has never scraped a hubcap. But fast as he drives he has his car always in control. I have seen him go to sleep at the steering wheel, after driving all night and all day, keep his machine in the road automatically and wake up by instinct when he needed to.

"The most reckless driver I know seldom drives over fifteen miles an hour and yet he is always in hot water. His specialty is stalling on railroad tracks. He has had three cars smashed that way—unluckily for everybody but him, he has always managed to scramble out unhurt.

"There are lots of people like him, who never violate the speed regulations, but who are a menace. They simply go to pieces in any emergency. The answer? Some system to keep poor drivers off the road. It hasn't been invented yet, but it will be." EDWARD C. KRAUSS.

THE DEPARTED

John B. Jinx is dead and planted, peace and rest to him are granted, precious booms we all should covet when we're old and bent and tired; yet his friends are wildly wailing, heaven's gate they are assailing, with their fierce expostulations that so good a man expired. He has crossed the silent river in Old Charon's floating flivver, he is done with tribulations, taxes bother him no more; he is done with punk diseases, done with flu and all its sneezes, and there are no docs and druggists waiting, waiting at his door. He is done with weary toiling, there's no pot to keep a-boiling in the sunny fields of Eden where the saints are playing lyres; where angelic strains are swelling no one needs to soak his dwelling for the price of shoes and clothing, gasoline and rubber tires. No one hands him now a warning in the early hours of morning that the boss will shrewdly dock him if he is a minute late; strikes and walkouts do not grind him, and the drivesmiths cannot find him when they'd raise a fund of money to repair the town-hall gate. All eternity's before him, there is nothing that can bore him as the aeons roll serenely as the genial ages flow; why, then, all the heartsick weeping? Why are friends and neighbors keeping dreary vigils in the boneyard with the

JOTS FROM A JOURNEY

BY ESTELLE HEARTT DREYFUS

Leaving Los Angeles three pictures were anchored away in a cosy little harbor of my memory—congested traffic—windows full of pink peach blossoms, jonquils, old-fashioned stocks and freesias—lastly the kindly good-bys of the friends at the Southern Pacific station.

The trip from Los Angeles to New Orleans might not seem to hold much of newer interest, yet when we reached the small desert town of Yuma, where the hotels advertise "Room and board free any day the sun doesn't shine," I overheard the porter say, "Here's de place you turns your watches ahead one hour." "Well," said a traveler, "a fellow grows old fast going eastward, doesn't he?" "Why, yes, dat's so," replied the porter, "but he sure gets his youth again when he comes back West to California." And I thought to myself, there's an idea the Los Angeles Boosters haven't used yet.

About forty miles from Houston, at the little town of Liberty, they have had what they called a "Buried Treasure." In 1853 this huge treasure was brought and deposited on the bank of the river to assist in the building of a railroad. Just as the scheme of the railroad failed the river, too, changed its course and left the treasure beneath fifty feet of dirt, then the changeful river decided to go back to its old course and the treasure, because of its weight, sank deeper and deeper into its new home of quicksand.

So many fruitless efforts had been made to lift the treasure that, as the years went by, its reality grew to be somewhat of a myth, except, perhaps, to the few earlier settlers who still clung to the hope that one day the treasure would be recovered.

Last week, after seventy-two years, a well-known dredging company of the South undertook the job, amid the quizzical glances and shrugging shoulders of the townspeople.

A few days of the huge dredger dripping down—swinging over—and emptying out—the moment of excitement arrived, a cry, and everybody rushed to see—lo, there lay on top of the ground—a long rail, for what was the "Buried Treasure" but five trainloads of rails!

So today, when the town of Liberty keeps for its share 35 per cent and gives 65 per cent as the reward, the "Buried Treasure" assumes the proportions of a treasure, indeed, with 10,000 tons of rails in sight and every rail as good as new.

Here is the recipe: Take four good friends journeying toward South America, one being a teacher, seat them opposite each other, placing in each pair of hands the very good Spanish-American Reader by Berge-Soler & Hatheway, flavor the entire with a desire to make Spanish verbs and nouns a habit, sprinkle on top the spirit of happiness and put all in a Pullman-car drawing-room, going from Los Angeles to New Orleans, continue doing this every opportunity until you reach Buenos Aires—result—a Spanish vocabulary—that "open seasame" to every Spanish heart and country.

As we pass through Louisiana and Mississippi, glancing from our window, we see the swamplands and the weird moss-grown trees; we, from cheery California, shudder with the very dreariness of it, until we are told this moss is gathered for mattresses and automobile cushions, the process of boiling and stripping off the outside covering giving the moss the appearance and consistency of horse hair. Thus a parasite is transformed into a utility.

I believe New Orleans is called the Crescent City, because of its city plan, but I prefer to call it "The City of Gifts." There is scarcely a direction in which you look but the driver tells you with pride, "Yes, there you will see the gift of Mr. or Mrs. Blank."

Parks, statues, bridges, schools! Why, one man has forty-seven public schools, all splendid buildings. No wonder once a year every school child in the city of New Orleans lays a flower at the foot of his statue, which stands in the public square. There is also a beautiful little wading pool for tiny tots, under the sheltering arms of oak trees, and embellishing two sides are charming statuettes of childhood.

But, most of all, there is a large home, and just what kind of a home would you guess it to be? Well, it is a real home for homeless little boys. Could anything or anybody need a home more than a homeless little boy?

Stately reference libraries, normal vocational training schools for the blind, seminaries for priests; in fact, all kinds of educational gifts, but somehow that home for homeless little boys stays in my mind and I think of my dear Los Angeles, the many gifts she needs and the many people ready to give and I just hope, along with our magnificent community spirit, we might learn of this older city of New Orleans and be not in name only, but in the big reality of giving—The City of the Angels.

Miami, the Seminole Indian word for magic, and, indeed, it seems as if a spell had been cast upon us as we were awakened by clearly-toned chimes playing that sweet old hymn:

"My faith looks up to thee,
Thou Lamb of Calvary,
Savior Divine.
Now hear me while I pray,
Take all my sins away,
Oh, let me from this day
Be wholly Thine."

Looking out, we saw outlined against an early morning sky the cross and dome of "the White Temple," a church of the Episcopalian faith. Sweet old tunes followed, until, with the "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," the chimes ceased. Then quite softly to our awakened ears came the last strains of the Lohengrin "Wedding Song"—a pause—we could only imagine the murmured prayer of the wedding ceremony, and once again the voices, this time in a great burst of triumphant melody ending on "high C," prolonged and exultant. Ah, memories of June—Magic—Music—Marriage!

CLIMAX

Finis has been written to the present chapter of archaeological discovery. The lifting of the lid of the sarcophagus and the revelation of the mummy case of Tut-Ankh-Amen have ended investigation for this season. The end of the adventure has been satisfactorily dramatic, for, when the contents were drawn away the investigators found that which pointed that Tut-Ankh-Amen had been buried with all the reverence and with those magnificent shows of devotion at which his people were adept. The archaeologists found a golden boy. The Pharaoh, represented in high relief, covered with sheets of solid gold, is described as having a facb of serene, youthful beauty. All the adornments lavishly comply with the elaborate arrangements which ancient peoples made for the honor of their dead. The indication is that the Ankh-Amen died and was buried with all dignity and was not, as some of the stories have had it, ushered unceremoniously from life by his jealous enemies.

It is a gratifying conclusion to the adventure in the Valley of Kings. Exploits begun with great anticipation frequently end anticlimactically. But there can be no disappointment in the result of the opening of this tomb. Excitement has progressed from one point to another, with the equipment of the outer tomb eclipsed by the wonder of the sarcophagus in turn overrivaled by the golden boy within. The whole undertaking has been a most satisfactory romance. The archaeologists deserve the world's applause.—[St. Paul Dispatch.

THE BIGGEST NUT TREE

One thousand years ago, when America was a vast wilderness of limitless prairies and craggy canyons, before the hordes of Spanish, French and Spanish invaders had touched its shores, there grew on the banks of a river in the Southwest a slim, hardy pecan sapling. Today that same tree is the largest pecan tree in the world. Standing near the Colorado River, in the Saba county, it is 120 feet high and its circumference two feet above the ground is twenty-four feet. Five feet above the ground it is six feet in diameter, while the height of the first limb is forty-one feet. The main branches have a spread of 100 feet.

This mammoth of the ages, called "Jumbo," has borne more than 1400 pounds in one crop.—[American Forests.

MESA VERDE—A.D. 1924

Niagaras, arrested in full flight,
Cliffs, panic pale, plunge over the abyss.
O patient hand of God, that shaped this
When time was young and earth a neophyte, Stark in baptismal waters! Today white
Stone tidal waves curve out, where shadows kiss
A multitudinous pearl ocean,
Now turning amber in the noon light.

Women nurse babes and sing
Down the wall,
From mesa fields, men toil to children call
And laugh through canyons with
"It is he!"
Whisper upgazing girls; a bird flies where
His captive eagle frets and screamingly,
In kiva depths, priests chant to ancient prayer.

PLAY BY AVON'S BARD OVER KHJ

"Merchant of Venice" Heard From "Times" Studio

Pasadena Players Present Drama Masterpiece

Music Program Contributed by the Keltz Trio

Drama of Shakespeare!!! What would the Bard of Avon say if he knew that one of his plays was given over the radio? This play was written about the year 1594, under conditions that are hard for modern minds to comprehend, though modern science has so changed the world since that time. It is doubtful that more people heard the play last night than heard it in the first hundred years of its life. It is safe to say that in spite of modern inventions that have all come to change our habits of life human nature is about the same today as it was then.

FITS MODERN TIMES

The play was inspired by a money lender called Roderigo Lopez, a Jewish merchant executed in the year 1594, and was written to expose the evil of its degradation the heartlessness of worldly shysters, and the bloody minds of usurers." But in Radioland we feel the presence of similar characters and though the play given was written over 325 years ago in sentiment and character exposition it is no more an anything written. It bear this old dramatic masterpiece over the radio is a novel idea to say the least, and there is much to quibble about in this unique situation.

The play was staged by the Community Broadcasters of Pasadena already known for their "good drama" throughout the radio world. Under the direction of Howard Murphy and after much study of the studio and the mechanics of the broadcasting-room so as to be able to bring so large a cast before the microphone that the play successfully proadbast.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

The cast of characters was as follows:

"Shylock," Gilmor Brown; "Tubal," Thyra Ruhland; "Lorenzo," Marvin Williams; "Launcelot Gobbo," Maurice Wells; "Nerissa," Dorothy Welch; "Jessica," Alma Frederick; "Antonio," Robert LesSourreur; "Bassanio," Alma Story; "Gratiano," Ray Clifford; "The Duke," Edward Murphy; "Salerio," Palmer Miller; "Solonio," W. W. Ogier, Jr.; "Balthazar," Allen Morrison; "Balarzo," Frederic Peterson.

The music for the evening was rendered by the "Maurice Keltz Trio," composed of Maurice Keltz, violin; Ella Isbell, pianist, and Ed. E. Isbell, 'cellist. The music was entirely in keeping with the rest of the evening, Mr. Keltz offering as one of his numbers, "Day in Venice," by Nevin. Mr. Keltz showed himself to be an apt appreciator of atmosphere and feeling, and was ready with just the right numbers to fit nicely into the evening to make it all one huge success.

Youth Stabbed to Death Over Girl at Dance

After an argument which is believed to have arisen over a pretty Mexican girl, an unidentified man fatally stabbed Piler Moren, 21 years of age, of 826 Spruce street early yesterday.

The murder occurred in the rear of a house at 737 Phoenix street where a party was in progress. Guests told Detectives Partin, Brown and Vail that they, hearing Moren scream, ran to the rear of the house in time to see his assailant escape over a back fence.

From the officers' investigation it was indicated that an uninvited guest came to the party and called Moren outside, where an argument started over a girl to whom Moren had been attentive during the evening. A few clues to the murder were given by Mrs. Crecencia Moren, aunt of the murdered youth and with whom he resided. The body was removed to the Button Brothers' undertaking establishment.

POSTOFFICE LURES PUPILS

All Want to Work for Mr. O'Brien After Trip Through Arcade Station as His Guests

"I think that the men ought be paid more because they work very hard and stedy." One of the pupils in the Albion-street school expresses herself thus concerning the clerks in the Arcade Station of the Los Angeles postoffice. She was one of a class who visited the station recently in company with their teacher, Miss Fannie N. Ragan.

Postmaster O'Brien is answering letters of appreciation written to him by the children who were amazed by the wonders they saw in the big station. The ages of the children range from 9 to 12 years. Almost without exception they expressed a desire to work for Mr. O'Brien.

ENJOYED THE TRIP

"I have enjoyed the trip to the postoffice yesterday and I wish you would come and visit us sometime," wrote a boy. "I would like to work for you. And I like that job so much I would like to work for you right now. Because I can be a good pitcher in a ball team and besides I would like to work for you because you have such good workmans and they are kind and work fast and always does there duty. And I like to see chutes work. And I like the way the machine that goes and brings the packages up to the second floor and the men that throw packages in those bags. And I like you that you gave us permission to come and visit your postoffice at Central avenue. And I think that your postoffice is one of the bigest postoffice in Los Angeles."

BID FOR HIGHER WAGE

A girl tells the postmaster she thinks the mail man "surely must have a good membery to think of all to do there." Another boy puts in a bid for higher wages. "The men that work in the postoffice," he says, "are kind, courteous too. I think the mail carriers ought to have higher wages."

Says another boyish letter: "Yesterday when we came to your postoffice I enjoed that I would work in your postoffice. I think that I would mail my packages in your postoffice. I enjoed to see the men work so fast. I would like to work with the thing that stamps the letters."

These letters were the first the children had ever mailed, their teacher said. Each one of them was correctly addressed and carried a proper return card, Postmaster O'Brien pointed out.

VETERANS' PAST HEAD DUE TODAY

Antonio P. Entenza to be Guest at Two-Day Round of Entertainment

Antonio P. Entenza, past commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, will arrive in the city this morning to attend a series of meetings arranged in his honor.

A delegation of representatives of Southern California camps, including Department Commander Tom C. Galbraith, Department Presiden Anna C. Jesmier, Surg.-Gen. Howard W. Seager and Department Chief C. He will then be taken to Santa Ana by the Department Commander and members of his staff where he will be guest of honor at a luncheon at St. Ann's Inn, given by the Calumpit Camp, No. 24, Department of California, U.S.W.V. Following the luncheon a parade will be formed under the auspices of the Calumpit Camp for the purpose of raising funds to purchase a cemetery plot for deceased Spanish War Veterans.

Mr. Entenza will return to Los Angeles this evening to attend the housewarming of the new quarters of Roosevelt Camp, No. 9, in Foresters' Hall, 951 South Olive street.

Tomorrow a tour of local points of interest has been arranged which will terminate at the Soldiers' Home at 2:30 p.m. He will address a meeting of Veterans of all Wars at the Hamilton S. Hawkins Camp, No. 43 in the Ward Memorial Hall.

Preparations were completed yesterday for the spring ceremonial of Al Malaikah Temple, Mystic Shrine, which will be held under the auspices of the Ventura County Shrine Club at Seaside Park, Ventura, the 22nd inst.

The program of the day, according to Louis M. Cole, Potentate, will begin with an old-fashioned barbecue at noon to be followed by a business session. The ceremonial, which is being arranged by a committee from Ventura, Ojai, Santa Paula, Fillmore and Oxnard, will be at 1 p.m.

GEORGE BABCOX OIL TRIAL NEXT

Local Man Faces Charges in Texas Operations

Square Deal Principals to be Tried Again

Appeal in Great Angelus Case Prepared

George A. Bazcox of Los Angeles, charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the promotion of the South Texas Lease Syndicate, will be placed on trial tomorrow before Federal Judge James. He is charged with misrepresenting the value of twenty leases held in twenty counties of Texas and which he sold in 400 half-acre units at an average price of $50 a unit.

According to David V. Cahill, special assistant to the Attarney-General, who is in charge of the prosecution, Babcox bought the leases for $900 and then formed the George A. Babcox Company to act as trustee in the sale of an undivided interest in the property to purchasers who were informed in letters they would receive from $5 to $10 for every dollar they invested.

Babcox finally turned over all the leases to the secretary of the George A. Babcox Company and withdrew from the concern taking with him $20,000 received from the sale of units, the evidence to be presented in court is said to show.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY

One of the oil fraud cases to be set for trials in the next few weeks will be the one involving the Boulevard Oil and Land Syndicate which was promoted near the Huntington Beach field by Chris Nelson, Joseph S. Gendron and George K. Nickerson. The last two pleaded guilty to the charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with promotion of the Square Deal Syndicate. They will appear before Federal Judge Bledsoe Wednesday morning for sentence. The Boulevard Oil and Land Syndicate case will be tried as a result of the acquittal last Friday of Nelson and Webster W. Bush who were indicted with Gendron and Nickerson in connection with the promotion of the Square Deal Syndicate.

In the trial of the Square Deal Syndicate case Nelson admitted having made about $45,000 in the promotion of the Boulevard Oil and Land Syndicate, which project was carried out immediately before the Square Deal Syndicate was promoted in 1922. The case against Nelson, Gendron and Nickerson in connection with the Boulevard syndicate is stronger than the case against them in connection with the Square Deal Syndicate, according to Mr. Cahill. The government's evidence in the former case shows the Boulevard syndicate did not drill a well although the property held by the syndicate was sold on representations of profit to be derived from oil.

PREPARING APPEAL

Papers in the appeal of Martin Cullen, R. C Dennison and Thomas V. King, convicted on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the promotion of the Great Angelus Oil and Land Syndicate operating in the Antelope Valley, now are being prepared and the case is expected to be placed on the May calendar of the Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco.

Cullen and Dennison each were sentenced to serve six years in the Federal prison, and King was sentenced to serve two years. Their appeal is based chiefly on objections to the introduction in evidence of books of the syndicate and of audits made by the government.

DRIVER AND BRIDE HURT IN TRAFFIC

Man's Nose Torn Off When Cars Collide; Woman Hit by Street Car

Ray McManus of 1130 West Eleventh street and his bride of a day were severely injured yesterday in a three-cornered collision on Washington Boulevard, between Venice and Culver City. McManus's nose was torn off, his face cut to ribbons and his right arm and hand crushed. His wife received a broken collarbone and lacerations.

The police charge McManus was under the influence of liquor and had two bottles in his car. He is said to have swerved to the wrong side of the road, striking Harmon's car and the front of Miss Ayres's, which were going in the opposite direction. His car then turned over and McManus was thrown through the windshield.

Give the Children WRIGLEY'S after every meal

The following is from a recent work on teeth and health:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth. . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S is a benefit and a pleasure combined. It serves two purposes—and its cost is very small.

Aids digestion, too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat.

Choice of several flavors—all of WRIGLEY quality, standard of the world.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

The marriage of Miss Vera Naomi Tracy, daughter of Mrs. David Seymour Tracy, formerly of Ogden, Utah, to Horace Clay Williams, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Thomas Williams of Los Angeles, was solemnized Saturday evening in the chapel of the Mission at Riverside, the ceremony being performed at 6:30 o'clock by Rev. Lewis G. Gillies of the First Methodist Church. The chapel was artistically decorated with a profusion of white blossoms and foliage and the bride was given into the keeping of the bridegroom at the altar by her mother. The bride's gown was of white French crepe heavily beaded in crystals, her veil of tulle being caught by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried white roses, orchids and lilies of the valley with shower of narrow ribbons and orange blossoms. Mrs. Clarence Douglas of Salt Lake assisted as matron of honor, wearing a gown of yellow beaded georgette crepe; Miss Gleona Marriott in frock of blue beaded georgette was maid of honor, and Miss Lucille Arterburn in frock of pink beaded georgette was the bridesmaid. They all carried showers of roses to match their gowns. Yale McWain served Mr. Williams as best man and the ushers were Hojmes Parker and William Cable. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served for forty guests and later Mr. and Mrs. Williams left by motor for a brief wedding trip at Coronado. After their return they will make their home at the Regent in West Sixth street. The bride, who has been the guest of honor at numerous charmingly arranged affairs since the announcement of her wedding date, was graduated from the University of Utah and is a member of the Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Williams was graduated from Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., and practiced law in Chicago for several years. He is a member of the Phi Alpha Delta fraternity.

European Relief

Society and club circles are anticipating with much interest the series of four lectures which will be given at the Ambassador by Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, under auspices of the European Relief Committee for the benefit of Russian refugee students in Europe. The data for these lectures were collected by Mrs. Rodman during her recent trip in Europe and the East where she met many of the rulers and leaders in every country including the Khalif, Cardinal Mercier, the Queen of the Belgians, Lloyd George, Lady Astor, Stanley Baldwin, Ramsay Macdonald, and many others. The entire proceeds from these lectures which have the support of a large committee of well-known Los Angeles patronesses will be sent to the University of Louvain to pay for the education of the exiled youth of Russia.

The first lecture will take place in the Ambassador Theater, Thursday morning, the 27th inst. at 11 o'clock, and the subject will be "The Ruler of all Islem and His Magic City on the Bosforus."

For Mother

One of the delightful affairs of recent date was the mah jongg tea with which Mrs. Paul Schmitz of Ardmore avenue entertained Saturday afternoon at the Los Angeles Country Club in honor of her mother, Mrs. George Langston of Texas, and Mrs. Scott Moon. Mrs. Langston is chairman of Peace of Texas State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Moon was formerly Miss Lois Burton, whose marriage was solemnized in the late summer after Mr. Moon's return from Cyprus where he was Consul for the United States.

Home Again

Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, who for the past four months has been enjoying a delightful trip in the East is at home again in Chester Place, bringing back with her as house guest, Mrs. T. M. Hawes of Louisville, Ky., who will make an indefinite stay in Los Angeles. During Mrs. Wilson's visit in the East she was the guest of her cousin, Postmaster-General Harry S. New and Mrs. New, and was privileged to be present at several of the intimate sessions of the Senatorial committee meetings. She also was guest of honor at several functions given by Mrs. Trasker Lownes Oddie, who formerly was Miss Daisy Rendall of Los Angeles, sister of Mrs. Vernon Goodwin. After leaving Washington Mrs. Wilson visited in New York City, Chicago, Louisville and Indianapolis. Mrs. Wilson is planning a number of delightful affairs in the near future in honor of her guest.

Returns Here

Mrs. Charles Newhouse, who has been making an extended visit to her home in Salt Lake City, will return to Beverly Hills Hotel Tuesday, the 18th inst. Mrs. Newhouse will be joined here by her mother Mrs. M. Stingley, and they will make an indefinite sojourn at the hotel.

For Bride-Elect

In honor of Miss Florence Rice, who will become the bride of Clint Corum April 3, a charmingly arranged miscellaneous shower was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Jesse M. Few at her home in La Clede avenue. The house was adorned with spring blossoms and foliage and the centerpiece of the tea table was a miniature bungalow set in a garden of blossoms and trees where gifts for the bride-elect were deposited. Among those enjoying the afternoon were Miss Rice, Mrs. Robert M. Pease, Mrs. A. F. Rice, Mrs. E. J. Evans, Mrs. Harry Evans, Miss Eva Ratcliffe, Mrs. W. S. Stone, Mrs. Arthur Frazier of San Pedro, Mrs. Charles Frazier, Mrs. E. T. Corum, Mrs. Murray Pease, Miss Hazel Rosenbaum, and Miss Rhea Roach.

Visiting Sister

Mrs. Anna McK Howell has just returned from several weeks' visit in Santa Barbara, where she was the guest of Miss Josephine Rogers at her home in Chapala street. Miss Rogers and Mrs. Howell are planning a trip abroad in June, and Mrs. Howell will return to Santa Barbara in a few weeks. While in Los Angeles she will be a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. J. Fly in West Twenty-fourth street.

BALDNESS—No. I.

When I told a nude-headed friend recently that I was planning to write about baldness, he exclaimed: "Good heavens! If you can do as much for baldness as you are doing for the overweights, you will have the world kneeling at your feet!"

But, alas, he was thinking of his own particular type of baldness, the baldness that comes with advancing years; and according to all my studies, after that is established no power on earth or in heaven is able to remedy it.

However, there are certain types of baldness that are curable and I am going to tell you about those. All I can for the best-known type is to tell you how to prevent it. I believe I can do that, and that is a whole lot, isn't it? So, please begin your knee bending.

Before I take up baldness, I want to tell you a little about the structure of the skin and I can best do that by a diagrammatic sketch:

The skin is composed of two parts—the outer, called the epidermis or cuticle, and under this the dermis or cutis vera (true skin.) The epidermis is composed of four layers of cells. The top layer is a scaly or horny layer and is the thickest part of the epidermis. It is especially thick on the palms and the soles. The skin grows by the multiplication of the cells underneath the horny layer, and the new cells push toward the surface and grow horny and flattened as they do so. The epidermis has no blood vessels, but it does have many nerves.

The dermis, or true skin is composed of dense fibrous tissue, which passes gradually into the fibrous and fat tissue, the subcutaneous tissue, below it. The upper layer of the dermis is filled with blood vessels and nerves, and is thrown into minute projections or papillae; the epidermis is molded over these.

The hairs are growths from the epidermis or cuticle. They are contained in little pits called the hair follicles. These follicles are lined with the cuticle. You can understand their structure and that of the hair by thinking of the hair as a blunt needle pressed into the skin. The needle would represent the hair and the depression made would represent the hair follicle.

At the bottom of the follicle is a little nipple-shaped projection, the hair papilla. It is from this hair papilla, and not from what we call the root of the hair, that the hair grows. The so-called root of the hair is bulb-shaped and fits over this little papilla like a cap, as you can see in the illustration.

The hair itself is composed of a central part, the medulla or the so-called pith of the hair, and then several different layers of cells. The outside layer consists of cells which overlap each other like shingles.

All the hair follicles, except those of the eyelashes, are placed at an angle to the skin. Connected with each hair follicle is a little muscle and it is the contraction of this little muscle during fear or excitement which causes the hair to "stand on end"—that is, the contraction of the muscle pulls the hair erect. It is the contraction of this little muscle that causes goose flesh, too.

The Woman and Her Job

by Valerie Holmes

[Questions concerning the problems of women will be answered in this column if addressed to Mrs. Walrous at The Times. If personal replies are desired a stamped envelope must accompany inquiry.]

"THE OFFICE ROMANCE"

Several weeks ago "Ruth" wrote me a letter asking me what I considered "good form in business." At the close of her letter she asked another question about personal conduct, which couldn't be covered in the discussion of her first question.

Here's what she said:

"Do you think it correct for a girl to go out with one of the men on the staff. She has refused a couple of invitations because the other girls are a bit catty, and she thinks they'll have too much to say if they learn of it."

If the girl has known the man any length of time, and believes his companionship will be a pleasure, I see no reason why she should not accept his invitations. The fact that they both are employed in the same office should not be a barrier to a friendship.

There are disadvantages, of course. One of these is the fact that if a mutual interest develops it is quite likely to interfere with office routine. If a man likes a girl he is quite likely to yield to the desire to linger at her desk. If she likes him, it is but natural that she should encourage him in dalliance. It takes a strong will on both sides to keep the social diversions they both enjoy out of their business day.

Another disadvantage is that the comments of other people tend to give color to a casual friendship, influencing the persons most concerned to assume a relationship which otherwise might never have been considered.

A third angle is that two people may drift along most happily for several months, or a year. Suddenly there is a break in the friendship; possibly the fault of one, possibly both. It may be the discovery of a new phase of character, or a sudden realization that there are habits, or characteristics that would make marriage a failure. Such a break means much office gossip. These two people are no longer in harmony, and the casual office contacts become difficult, if not obnoxious.

The remarks of the "catty" girls in the office, are the least important of consideration. Remember what the old lady said, Ruth: "He who slights my horse will buy him."

"Office romances" always occasion remark—I know mine do. The only way to meet that situation is to have so many, change them so often, and be so obnoxious that the other members of the force have to make frequent trips to the bulletin board to see "what's doing today."

However, to be quite serious, it would be rather too bad to miss a friendship that might become a very precious possession, merely because of a little good-natured raillery. Really romantic attachments are rare, I believe, between people who are co-workers. Sound friendships, yes; marriages, the exception.

Where young men and young women are thrown together, in the school, the college, the store or the office, mutual attachments are almost inevitable. We are attracted to this or that person for no particular reason that we can explain, but we should be most wary about taking these contacts too seriously.

I have been told there is but one sound prescription for a happy marriage, and that is that each must enjoy the same pastime. If he prefers cards or mah jongg to dancing, that, too must be her preference; if she delights in hiking tops and whipping a mountain stream for trout, he must be an Isaac Walton by choice; if he delights in James Cabell, she should be sufficiently a modernist to read Hecht or Anderson with at least intellectual interest.

Doesn't sound reasonable, does it? But it bears analysis. Life is a serious business for most men; they grub in offices or stores all week, and the only time they have to spend with the wife is their leisure at the end of the day or on Sunday. Each may pretend an interest in the things the other likes to do before marriage, but afterwards each will seek his own level and express himself in his own way. If they are not interested in playing the same games, they will logically drift apart, and someone else who likes that game—or pretends she does—will take a hand.

Now, I don't mean by this that a man who dances well will make a good husband. Far from it. A girl might like to bowl, but the man who spent his time in a bowling alley before his marriage would be quite likely to be found there after the honeymoon has passed the first quarter.

First be sure the man has the stability and character to make a life-companionship worth while, then that he likes to do some of the things you enjoy, and that you get a lot of fun out of his pet hobby. As for the rest, love goes a long way in teaching one to do things for which one has no professed aptitude.

And, more important than all: Don't make mountains out of mole-hills.

Close Lettuce

Most of us are very fond of the California lettuce, but it is sometimes very difficult to separate the leaves. Cut the stem off the head a quarter of an inch and let the cold water run with force on the plant to help force the leaves apart.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Avoid Rust

Let the oven doors stay open after using the oven. Then the warm air will evaporate without rusting the oven.

Doesn't Take Long

You will find all electrical appliances will wear longer and better if care is taken to straighten out the cords after each using.

A Cleaner Floor

If the canary is a very busy little fellow and constantly scatters seed over the floor, make a cheesecloth bag with an elastic at the top and pull this up over the bottom of the cage, covering the feed cups.

Antique Brass

We do not like to use a brass polish on our antique brass. Try rubbing it with a solution of vinegar and salt and it will make it clean-looking without that bright polish.

Let Them Have Pets

Let the child have a pet, if at all possible. A pet develops gentleness and kindness in the child, besides affording a great deal of amusement. And you need never worry who accosts your boy on the street when a growling protector is just waiting for a sign of enmity.

A Piece of Charcoal

A piece of charcoal placed in the corner of the refrigerator will help absorb any odors that may be lurking there.

Hard Wood

Rub screws or nails with soap before trying to force them through very hard wood. They will then go in easily, without splitting the wood.

Discolored Gloves

When white gloves become yellowed and ugly, dip them into strong coffee and dye them a pale brown. They can be used for ordinary wear in this manner.

CREDIT MEN'S PARLEY CHAIRMEN WILL MEET

FURTHER PLANS FOR ANNUAL EVENT TO BE MAPPED AT LUNCHEON

Committee chairmen of the Los Angeles Credit Men's Association, appointed to arrange for the State convention of credit men to be held here the 18, 19 and 20th inst., will meet for luncheon today in the Broadway Department Store, where further plans will be completed for the annual event.

The committee heads were called for the luncheon by H. I. Bremner, general chairman of the conference committee, and Edgar L. Ide, secretary of the local branch of credit men.

At the meeting, Bremner will report progress being made in the vaudeville show to be given by the credit men on the 18th and 19th inst. in the Gamut Club Theater. Each committee head will be instructed in his respective duties and will report on work accomplished.

A feature of the luncheon session will be the plans of Fred Hilbert, chairman of the reception committee, for entertaining several hundred visiting credit men, who will come from other California cities and eastern points.

JELLIED SHRIMP SALAD

Make two cups of mayonnaise that will be stiff enough to hold its shape. Dissolve two level tablespoons of granulated gelatine in one-third of a cup of boiling water and beat into the mayonnaise; wash and dry the contents of one can of shrimps, break in small pieces and mix with mayonnaise with one tablespoon of lemon juice. Fill wet individual molds with the mixture and set in the ice box to harden. Unmold on lettuce covered plates and garnish with cooked, cold green peas that have been covered with French dressing and match shaped pieces of carrot.

PINEAPPLE MOANA

Place in a double boiler two cups of milk and scald; beat the yolks of four eggs with one-third of a cup of sugar and a small bit of salt; pour the scalded milk into the beaten yolks, mix well and return to the double boiler; stir and cook until smooth and thick; remove from the fire, cool, and flavor with half a teaspoon of lemon extract and half a teaspoon of vanilla extract. Fill long-stemmed glasses one-third full with diced pineapple, fill with the cooled custard, place a slice of pineapple on top, cover with whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped nut meats.

TOMATO BISQUE

Heat in a saucepan one large can of tomatoes, cook for twenty minutes, add a seasoning of salt and pepper, half a teaspoon of soda and one teaspoon of sugar. Strain into a clean saucepan, add two cups of scalded milk and heat well. Serve in cups with croutons.

MINT SAUCE

Mix with one cup of mild vinegar four tablespoons of broken-mint leaves and one tablespoon of sugar. Set in a warm place for two hours before serving.

PEDRO DRESSING

Rub a small cold bowl with a crushed clove of garlic, remove the garlic and mix in the bowl two teaspoons of anchovy paste and two tablespoons of tarragon; when well mixed stir in slowly one teaspoon of celery salt, three drops of tabasco sauce and six tablespoons of cold olive oil. Mix well and serve very cold.

MARTHA WASHINGTON CAKE

Beat to a cream one cup of butter and when light and creamy beat into it slowly two cups of sugar; beat well and beat in four well-beaten eggs. Sift three cups of flour with four level teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of allspice, one teaspoon of cloves and one teaspoon of cinnamon. Beat the flour mixture into the first mixture alternately with one cup of milk, beat well and bake in three buttered and floured layer cake tins in a moderate oven. Cool and spread the following filling between the layers.

FILLING

Place in a saucepan one cup of boiling water, two cups of sugar, the grated rind and juice of two lemons, and two cups of grated cocoanut; bring to a boil, add one tablespoon of cornstarch dissolved in four tablespoons of water and cook until it spins a thread; beat until creamy and spread between the layers of cake.

Age Shows
quickest in the skin
—all authorities agree

WRINKLES, "crow's feet," a dry, cracked outer skin—all are signs. Sometimes they are misleading, making women look more than their age.

The surest mark of youth is a smooth, soft, supple skin. Gray hair with such skin is called premature. But not so if the skin also looks old.

For forty-seven years a youth-retaining cream has helped to keep a myriad women pretty. It is called Espey's Cream.

The skin loses oils in washing. Soaps leave irritation. Wind, sun and water dry and crack and burn the skin. Dust, dirt and germs infect the pores.

Espey's replaces the lost lubrication, soothes the irritation, removes the chap, helps to clean the pores, takes out the tan and burn and heals the cracks.

You feel the effects almost immediately. Later, after daily use, you see the pretty pink-and-white tints of the under-flesh showing through a clear, translucent outer skin.

The formula, discovered in 1377, which controls these results, includes ten rare ingredients, all used in different ways by the world's leading beauty specialists. The base is glycerine, refined by a special process to complete efficiency. The combination, in exactly these proportions, produces qualities which otherwise would be unknown today.

We know it, so we offer you a 10-day bottle free to try at our expense.

LOS ANGELES
The Pacific Coast Stores of THE BOOTERY are located in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland

STYLE observations at the present moment bring forth the fact that white footwear during the coming months will be more of a favorite than for several seasons past. There is no radically new style tendency. Black satin and patent remain decidedly in vogue, as women's fondness for the new peach, nude and kindred shades of hosiery has accentuated the demand for black footwear.

As a costume for street wear the mannish mode is increasingly popular. The smart tailleur with coat hip length and straight short skirt is the thing.
The small close fitting hat will continue in favor. It is worn most effectively with the "shingle" haircut.

The gown for evening will be of some delicate color, or in silver, in white or in black trimmed with rhinestones or metal.

Laces from Italy, Laces from China, from France, Ireland and Belgium. Laces from every corner of the globe where this delicate art flourishes.

Laces that owe their beauty partly to the artistry of their conception—and partly to the mellowing touch of age. For many of them are centuries old.

$40,000 Exposition and Sale of Real Laces Beginning Monday

FOR one week, at Robinson's, the rare beauty of these Real Laces will be on exhibition and will be given prices greatly lowered.

Though their value is represented by thousands of dollars, their actual value cannot be measured in such terms. For they embody the spirit of true beauty in one of its finest forms.

Traced in the shadowy loveliness of their patterns are the stories, if they could be read, of the rise and fall of princes. Of court intrigue. And the drama of great names.

And other stories of humbler lives,—poverty pinched—and beauty starved. Of those patient toilers whose lifelong labor was to create beauty for others.

Dimity Blouses $1.95

THESE fresh, new Blouses of crisp, white dimity will be a tempting opportunity for Monday shoppers, in view of the low pricing they take.

Becomingly styled and finely finished and correct in all those little details which mean success for tailored accessories.

They include striped and cross-barred dimities—and are collared in Peter Pan or shawl fashion—all with long sleeves, with plain or tucked fronts, and trimming of narrow pleating, bindings and imitation Irish and filet laces.

Priced for Monday at only $1.95.

THIRD FLOOR

Millinery

THERE is a Hat at Robinson's to correspond with almost every possible feminine mood.

Demure Hats for one's naive, youthful moments: These are apt to be all-white, of Hercules braid, with just a bit of a brim—and a French good-luck ornament of rhinestones.

Hats for one's tailored, self-sufficient aspect: Such as the very new, very smart, high-crowned Milans, with brisk upstanding bows or cocardes of ribbon.

And Hats for one's restaurant mood: Just received are those of Tuscan braid in natural color — oddly trimmed with black or Tuscan colored wooden beads.

THIRD FLOOR

The new French vogue for navy and white is smartly represented in the model Hat above, of fine Milan, high-crowned and completed by a pleated white grosgrain and navy satin bow. $42.50.

New Springtime Slippers

THEY must be as light to the foot as a passing breeze—and slender and impudent of heel. And with such a beginning they may well permit a glimpse of sheer hose through the cut-out design at either side. As do these which Robinson's have just received.

In White Kid, at $15. Beige Suede, with tan calf trimmng, and gray suede with gray trimming, at $14.50.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the results of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.—[Advertisement.

STRESSES NEED OF SERVING MASSES, NOT INDIVIDUAL

Radio Speaker Charges Protestant Christians Have Lost Sight of Society as a Whole

That organized Protestant Christians, in their campaign for welfare of the individual, have somewhat lost sight of the importance of service to society as a whole, was the opinion voiced by Rev. Daniel T. Thomas, pastor of the Grace Congregational Church, in an address given from The Times broadcasting station yesterday. Preaching on "Jesus and the Crowd," Mr. Thomas spoke in part as follows:

"Much attention has been given to Jesus's attitude to the individual. His concern for the one man has been often noted. He had a genius for caring for the individual, and some of the best things recorded in the New Testament were said to an audience of one. But He had a genius also for crowds. A crowd appealed to Him profoundly; He sympathized with it; it tugged at His heart-strings. He never looked upon a crowd without being moved to compassion. This was because He never lost the individual in the crowd.

"A crowd, to Jesus, was not something impersonal or abstract. A crowd was a collection of individual men. The individual never merged into the mass. Every man in the crowd remained distinct and vivid to His eye. Every man retained a hold on His heart. For every man, as Jesus saw him, was in need. Every man carried a burden. Every man had interior struggles. Every man had hidden disappointments and griefs. Every man's life was a mystery—a tragedy. And when, therefore, 100 men, or 1000 men, or 500 men were massed together, the tragedy of human life took on new dimensions, and His heart was moved. His conduct flowed out of his pity. His work was born of His love. It was because He loved every man in the crowd that He was eager to minister to it in every way.

"Now, we do not like a crowd. We show this by the names which we employ. We call it a mob, a horde, a rable, or the common herd, or the vulgar throng. Many of us get away from a crowd as far as we can. We are fond of picked individuals, but we do not like men in masses. Human nature is interesting to us, when done up in single packages, but we have no liking for it in bulk. Each individual has his own disagreeable characteristics, and when a thousand miscellaneous individuals are brought together their disagreeable traits become so conspicuous that they become repulsive. A crowd is odorous, noisy and troublesome. A crowd is heedless, inconsiderate, selfish, sometimes cruel. A crowd feels, but it does not think.

"The salvation of individual souls has been the prime work of Protestantism for 400 years. A mighty work has been accomplished, and the wide world has been mightily renewed. But it must be confessed that in all these centuries the crowd has been too much neglected. We have thought too exclusively of men in their individual needs and have not taken them sufficiently into account in their social relations. But modern civilization has been forcing the crowd more and more upon our attention. The growth of the modern city has massed human beings as never before. Wherever our eyes are cast they fall on a crowd. To the man who is interested in the Kingdom of God these crowds stir up numberless questions and reflections. Like the crowds of Galilee, they suggest a flock of sheep, and today, as of old, they faint and are scattered, because they have no Shepherd.

"The unchurched masses are ever in the mind of thoughtful Christian leaders and ministers and laymen are asking with deepening solicitude 'What shall we do with all these multitudes?' When one stands on a street corner and gazes for an hour into the passing faces, many of the faces show behind them souls which labor and are heavy laden. We cannot escape the problem which the crowd of our day lays at the door of the Christian church. Stand on Sunday morning on any of the great highways of travel and note the vast multitudes which are streaming forth on excursions of pleasure, caring nothing for the worship of God, and if we be men of heart, we will go home to think and wonder.

"The multitude is today pressing on us from every side and we look with eager eyes for every hint which the New Testament has to give us as to the wisest way in which the needs of the world can be met. We detect ourselves at once in the temper and attitude of the disciples. They wanted to get the crowd out of their sight. They were annoyed by it.

"'Send them away?' That is the instinctive cry always of our unregenerate human heart, a heart which has not learned the principle of service. But to all disciples who come pleading 'send them away,' the Lord of Love has but one reply, 'Give ye them to eat.' It is, of course, an absurd thing for Him to say. Of course he does not understand, as we do. We are all experts in arithmetic. But Jesus paid no attention to their calculations. There are realms in which matmaticians do not work. It has no place in the Kingdom of Love."

TRUNDLE DISCUSSES "CURE FOR CROOKS"

Rev. Dan A. Trundle, executive secretary of the National Justice to Armenia Society, preached at the Grace Congregational Church yesterday on "The Cure for Crooks and Crookedness." He said in part:

"No more expressive term could be found for its purpose than the word, 'crook.' A curved line is one that deviates at every point; when that becomes fixed it is a crook. Some men are born crooked, some obtain crookedness and some may be said to have it thrust upon them by an evil generation. Men become crooked by stooping. When this reaches a chronic, or habitual stage they are 'crooks.' Christ, alone, gives the remedy that makes the crooked life straight. He saw a woman in the synagogue who was hopelessly crooked, in the physical sense. He cured her with a word. The ruler of the synagogue, the boss crook, was very angry. They always are. Crooks like this make all paths crooked.

"The best 'safety-first' device for political, social, religious and commercial life is for the individual citizen to accept the responsibility and acquit himself in this matter as he would a personal matter. How many of you as citizens, Christains, as independent, intellectual units in this great country wish to share the shame of the betrayal of the Armenian people? How many would willingly bear the odium of this disgrace? Yet, had you listened to the truth and not been led by lying pro-Turk propaganda and vile conspiracy you could have prevented it.

"Who is so blind as he who will not see? There will never be an outspoken, indignant, public sentiment in any matter of great moment if we are to be taught by crooks. Crooks, to carry their program through, resort to systematic, false statements to mislead the public as to their real intentions. Let him who ascends the 'hill of the Lord,' or any high place of public trust have clean hands, a pure heart and a straight path."

DOCTRINE OF HELL UNREASONABLE ONE

Edward Starke preached at Trinity Auditorium yesterday under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. He said in part:

"Away with the creeds of the dark ages which teach that the dead are not dead, and that the wicked are writhing in a place of fire, with devils and pitch-forks, tossing them around, actually alive for millions and billions of years. Why do not the clergy tell the people the truth, and remove the foul stain upon the character of God, who made us in His likeness and image? The doctrine of torture is not reasonable to the human mind, much less to that of a Divine being we know as God. God is love and we worship Him in spirit and in truth. He guarantees a resurrection of the dead, 'both of the just and the unjust.' The 'just' will be rewarded and the 'unjust' put on probation for a thousand years and if incorrigible, destroyed as natural brute beasts."

WILSON SAID TO HAVE WORKED WITH DEITY

Rev. E. F. Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, preached yesterday on "Working With God." He said in part:

"A few people among the earth's multitudes allow God a little time and place in their lives on Sundays; a few business men have some recognition of obligation to Him in their methods; now and then a politician takes the attitude of recognizing God and becomes a statesman. As a practical political idealist, failing in his immediate dream, Woodrow Wilson means more for world welfare than Alexander the Great, Napoleon or Julius Caesar, simply because he fairly understood, and was working with God in behalf of earth's peoples.

"Above everything else today God is working amidst men to strengthen their sense of his nearness and availability. The catalogue of evils like slavery, famine, pestilence, tyranny and war, along with others once regnant, might be called, but most of them are crippled, some of them are exterminated, and the question is 'why?' The answer is simply that God is working through human experience and judgment to do his good will toward humanity's welfare. Whatever interferes with human welfare, with righteousness, health and peace amidst the human family, is contrary to the will of God revealed through Christ. Wherefore, the missionary enterprise—the mightiest of earth—is wholly a divine enterprise. The commercial interest of earth, while actuated in large degree by the exploitation theory which once bred wars, are more and more coming under ideals of service, which are Christian in origination and maintenence. The universal battle for health springs entirely out of the Christian redemption of the human body, as the seat of the kingdom of heaven on earth."

"WE ARE ALL FOOLS," DECLARES DR. BROWN

Dr. Bruce Brown, pastor of the South Park Christian Church, preached yesterday on "Blind People of Los Angeles." He said in part:

"We have only to look around us to see what fools we are after all our boasted education. Any fakir can get a following, no difference how old or outgrown his teachings, if he will only give his fad a high-sounding name. Corpses of dead and dried dogmas that have been buried for centuries can be dug up and with a new dress and a little powder and perfumery the mobs fall down to kiss their feet. There has not been a generation in 2000 years, but throngs were following the teachers who said the end of the world was at hand. Hold that feftish aloft today and multitudes press after it. There has never been a year but what pretenders of miracle-working powers were growing fat off the contributions of the deluded. And the wonder of it all is that the victims, within a few steps of the grave, will declare that wonders have been wrought on them.

"Yes, most of the people are fools. They will not invest their hard-earned savings in the great stable businesses that everybody knows will pay dividends but they will blindly put them into the hands of strangers to invest in enterprises that anybody with any sense would know never could be successful. People will not observe the plain common-sense rules of health supported by thousands of years of experience, but will run after every quack and charlatan who announces some preposterous cure that makes everyone sick that takes it. Oh, we are a lot of fools. The only difference between people is that while we are all fools some know it and others do not. The only people with any sense are the ones who know that they are fools."

PLEADS FOR LARGER POLICE DEPARTMENT

Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin preached at Temple B'Nai B'rith last Friday on "The Cure for Crime." He said in part:

"It may be impossible under the most ideal conditions to do away entirely with crime. Especially is this so if the theory that there is a definite criminal type, is true. We do know, however, that many crimes are committed due to causes which can be overcome. Poor social conditions, poverty, lack of proper home training, disrespect for law, lack of proper religious education are all elements conducive to crime. Better penal laws, an enlarged police force, certin and swift justice, better safeguards will undoubtedly help to diminish and check the activities of criminals. But in the last analysis, society must go to the roots of the problem. Lust, malice and acquisitiveness, all fundamental human traits, must be checked and diverted into proper channels early in life. We need better homes, employment for all, and more emphasis in the training of our youth upon honor, self-control and character in general. The church and the synagogue have great responsibilities in this direction."

WEAKNESS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS DISCUSSED

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher preached at the Temple Baptist Church yesterday on "Does a Bad Start Mean a Good Finish?" He said in part:

"When it comes to the development of manhood and womanhood, a good start is needed if you are going to have a good finish. The life that lacks one essential element to real success may end in utter failure. In the education and training of boys and girls, there is one vital element in which our educational system is woefully weak.

I believe in the public schools and I believe in their value as Americanizing agencies, but the one weak spot which must be supplemented by the home and by the church is its failure to teach a vital spiritual religion as the foundation upon which a strong Christian character may be built. A young man is not safe for the future simply because he is capable, brilliant and handsome. Throughout the ages the devil has always loved a shining mark. The more brilliant a young man, the greater the temptation placed before him. Without Christ as Savior and His principles as guide, and the Holy Spirit as power, no young man or young woman is safe. Without Christ in the life, a young man has a bad start. No matter what other characteristics he may have, if he continues without Christ, he is sure to have a bad finish."

DOG DEFENDING HOME KILLED

Boston Terrier Sacrifices His Life in Scuffle With Burglar

A little Boston brindle dog died in the line of duty Saturday night.

After successfully protecting the home of his master, Mr. Valentine Peyton, at 857 Westlake avenue, against an intruding burglar he was shot and killed by the man who left the house without the loot he had gone after.

Mr. Peyton, who is vice-president of the Brea Canyon Oil Company, with his son was asleep on the upper floor of the house. He was awakened by the terrified cry of the burglar.

He heard a scuffle, then a shot.

The little dog was found dead near an open window.

HOLY APPEAL IN MISSION PLAY

Selected for Sunday Review as Real Sermon

Glamour of Church Conquest Theme of Drama

Saving of State for Christ Vividly Shown

BY ALMA WHITAKER

This week I have seen the Mission Play at San Gabriel again—for the fourth time—and, alive with vital Christianity as it is, I am going to make it my church story this Monday morning.

There is a tender glamor about that old Mission Playhouse at San Gabriel that grips the heart—especially if one loves California. For more than twelve years now it has sheltered the Mission Play, in the shadow of the old San Gabriel Mission and no matter if one be Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile, the charm of it, the religious devotion that pervades it, fascinates and enthralls.

For here we see the very beginnings not only of Christianity but of civilization in our beloved California. In the prelude we see the savage Indian sensing the approach of the white conquerors; the specter of the faded military glory of the Spanish conquest; and the spirit of the ever-living faith of Christianity.

FIRST BEGINNINGS

The first act takes us back to 1769 on the shores of the Bay of San Diego, where the faithful little band of friars came to pioneer for civilization and Christ. We see their desperate struggles and despair in what appears to be the almost hopeless task they have set themselves. And, while Don Caspar De Portola takes his ship to explore the coast and try to find the elusive Bay of Monterey, these friars must justify their little mission with Indian converts. But the Indians are shy, fearful and elusive, too, and not one single babe has been baptised, no iota of tangible success can be recorded. We see this despairing company of friars and the Catalonia guards left with them, almost starving and spirit-broken. Only Fray Serra Junipero still holds strong in the faith and his mission. B. D. McClean plays the role of Junipero this year and his portrayal is vivid and deeply moving.

We see Don Caspar return without having discovered Monterey, but having found the "most wonderful harbor in the world" instead. We thrill at the recital and hear Fray Junipero solemnly, spiritually dedicate it to St. Frances and christen it San Francisco.

But still there are no Indian converts and Don Caspar demands that the little mission give up its struggles and return to Mexico with him.

PRAY FOR CONVERTS

This is a tremendous scene aching with frustrated hopes — and the mighty power of prayer. Never was prayer more ardently offered than that in which Junipero prays for just one Indian babe to baptize. We see it answered, with the fearful Indians, persuaded, reluctantly bringing their babe for baptism. And, later, as the holy water is sprinkled on its brow, we see them snatch back the babe and flee in terror to the utter final despair of the missionaries.

It is then that Junipero prays again with terrible, dramatic, soul-searing earnestness that relief may come, that somehow Don Caspar's threat to break up the mission may be frustrated. And as the whole company kneels in ardent, mighty prayer, we see the relief ship with provisions rounding the point on the distant horizon — this ship whose coming saved California for Christianity and civilization. The natural reaction of the audience in this tense moment is even more poignant than that of the actors on the stage.

The second act, fifteen years later, shows us the San Carlos Mission near Monterey—with the work of civilization and Christianity amazingly advanced. We see Junipero older, frailer, but infinitely more spiritueile and "nobly triumphant"—a strong, intense, lovable and holy figure. And we learn that this is but one of several missions that have arisen for California's well-being under his divine inspiration.

The dramatic element of conflict comes from the gross desires of the Spanish commander and his schemes to over-rule the friars, circumvent the church and appease his immoral appetites. And we see the missions not only as the purveyors of religious devotion, as the protectors of virtue, right and justice, but also as the promoters of human joy and happiness.

FETE IN MISSION

Thus one scene, a gala festival, is given up to joyous gaiety, to vivid merry dancing and singing and fair raiment and lovely girls, beauty and charm rampant—all within the kindly and sympathetic chaperonage of the church. The joie de vivre and religion are synonymous and we see the missions as the sponsors of all forms of delightful art and human interests. This is rather a wonderful scene for we see all these gay, happy people attend that mission service first, with its wondrous music and enchanting ritual, yet permitted under the benign paternal eye of Fray Junipero himself to indulge themselves within the confines of the mission itself with human joys unconfined.

We are reminded of the historical fact that this wonderful Junipero walked from San Diego to San Francisco at least twenty times, visiting his missions—this spiritual man of God who loved every inch of California and had once been ready to starve and die rather than desert it. And every heart amongst us responds ecstatically to that classic speech of his in which he cries, "But oh, California is dear to me. It is the country of my heart. It were sweet to be remembered here by the people which shall some day crowd these golden shores and possess these sweet valleys and shining hills that I have loved so well."

And we know that they are spoken also from the heart of the author of that play, John Steven McGroarty, who also is beloved of these peoples, who also so loves California.

History, drama, beauty, poetry, and deep Christian love pervade every line of the Mission Play at San Gabriel.

The Majestic is six feet longer than the Leviathan, according to their designer.

LAW OF GRAVITY IN DISCARD

Newton's Apple Didn't Fall Straight, Mt. Wilson Exponent of Einstein Theory Maintains

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 9.—Did Newton's famous apple fall in a straight line before it hit him or only in a relatively straight line? The question, trivial as it may sound, is one that is causing scientists considerable worry. The law of gravity, it seems, may soon become an exploded theory and the theory of relativity may become a law.

According to Dr. Charles F. St. John, who has conducted experiments for a number of years at the Mount Wilson Observatory to test the truth of Einstein's revolutionary theory, an entirely new conception of the universe may soon be taught in the schools. His experiments, he says, have confirmed the theory beyond all reasonable doubt.

In order that the achievements of Dr. St. John may be understood, it is necessary that the principal features of the Einstein theory be summarized briefly. Dr. Einstein, in 1905, when he was only 27 years of age, published his theory of relativity; but it was many years before the book won recognition. So revolutionary are some of its conclusions that they are not accepted by many scientists. Gradually, however, the predictions with respect to certain astronomical phenomena which Einstein made have been found, Dr. St. John says, to be correct when observed through the most powerful telescopes and when submitted to the most careful mathematical tests

DEPEND ON OBSERVER

Time and space are not fixed things, but are relative, according to the theory, and depend upon the point of view of the observer and upon the conditions existing in the vicinity of the thing observed. This may be illustrated as follows:

Suppose you draw a straight line a foot long on a piece of paper, and it takes you a second to do it. To you, this line appears to be straight, a foot long, and to have taken a second to draw it. But an observer on the sun, some 93,000,000 miles away, would get a different view of this line. He would see the line to be forty miles long, because from the time you began to draw it until you completed it, you traveled a distance of forty miles. You did not know it because the earth did the traveling and not yourself. The observer on the sun would have to take into consideration the revolving of the earth about its axis and also the course of the earth around the sun.

The Einstein theory maintains, in effect, that fixed laws of time and space, such as those revealed by Euclid and applied to the universe by Newton, cannot be accepted since they cannot be universally applied.

Proponents of Einstein's theory of relativity declare it has upset Newtonian law of gravitation, which was thought to be firmly established. Newton declared that a body traveling through space travels in a straight line, provided it is not influenced by any other body. The reason why planets of the solar system revolve around the sun instead of traveling in a straight line is, he said, that they are attracted by the sun's gravitation.

DEDUCTIONS TESTED

But gravitation, according to the Einstein theory, is not an attractive force, but a condition or a property of space and rays of light as well as of heavenly bodies. There are three deductions from Einstein's theory, according to Dr. St. John, which can be submitted to experimental tests.

The first of these is concerned with the planet Mercury, the planet nearest the sun. In its orbit around the sun, Mercury passes through a point called the perihelion, meaning the point nearest the sun. According to Newton's law the path of Mercury remains constant. Le Verrier, a French mathematician, discovered a movement in this perihelion and that it also rotates about the sun. This indicates, Dr. St. John declares, that the course of Mercury is altered. Dr. Einstein calculated that this rotation of the perihelion was moving at the rate of forty-three arcs of a second every 100 years. Scientists have now proved this to be the case and that Newton's law of gravitation is erroneous.

The second test as made at the Mt. Wilson Observatory, concerns the deflection of light. According to Dr. Einstein, a ray of light will experience a curvature of its path when passing through a gravitational field. This curvature is similar to that of a body which is projected through a gravitational field. This fact was clearly shown when the sun is in total eclipse. Astronomers know that there are certain stars which are located directly behind the sun and which, if the light from them traveled in a straight line, would not be seen by observers on the earth. Photographs taken during the eclipse, show these stars apparently located at some distance beyond the area of the sun's interference.

USES SEPTROSCOPE

In his observations Dr. St. John used a spectroscope. This instrument, made of cut glass, breaks up light rays into their component parts. If the rays of the sunlight, after passing through the spectroscope, are projected on the screen, a strip of colors, from violet on one end to red on the other, are seen.

Dr. Einstein predicted that the gravitational field of the sun, through which the rays of light from the sun must pass, would cause a slowing up of the atomic vibrations or wave lengths of the elements producing the lights, and that as a result the lines of the solar spectrum would show a slight deflection.

Dr. St. John has devoted many months of study to this problem and has arrived at the conclusion that such a deflection does exist. Furthermore, he has measured this deflection of spectral lines and finds it to be one twenty-billionth of an inch.

The findings of Dr. St. John, although exceedingly intricate, are of far-reaching importance to the scientific world inasmuch as they tend to substantiate a theory that is revolutionary in its bearing upon preconceived ideas of the laws which govern the universe.

HIT AT MOROSCO

"FAMOUS MRS. FAIR" IS WELL DONE BY PLAYERS

By Grace Kingsley

While we are stopping, looking and listening for "the great American drama," let's pause and give due credit to such deeply genuine plays as James Forbes's "The Famous Mrs. Fair," which opened at the Morosco yesterday for the first time in stock. Its significances, while flowering lightly in delicious comedy drama, are deeply rooted in our native Americanism.

"The Famous Mrs. Fair" will survive and hold its own until the next war! For its drama is ever so much more than a mere dramatic by-product of the war; it exploits the American woman, vital, energetic, going astray only through the exuberance of her energies and her zeal.

Ever since Mrs. Jelleby neglected her husband and children to send coral pocket handkerchiefs to Boora-Boola-Ghas," we have d stories and plays on the theme woman torn between family duand civic duty.

The troubles of the Fair family all came about because Mrs. Fair when she came home from her ambulance driving, insisted on going on a lecture tour. Then it was the consoling female got hold of her husband, her daughter turned into a wild flapper, and her son got himself engaged below his class. The lines are clever and so are the situations, and all grow quite naturally out of the situation; an admirable piece of playwriting. No wild, intense drama; just everyday life, with some extra nice, everyday people.

The Morosco company did excellently well with the first really fine play they have had in many months. You will enjoy seeing it even though you formerly saw Blanche Bates and Henry Miller in it.

Grace Travers rose to all her fine opportunities, especially in those exquisitely human scenes between herself and her husband, and herself and her children. There were strength, sustained characterization, subtle but genuine emotionalism in her work. However, as the play is supposed to be written around her as "the famous Mrs. Fair," it does seem as though she might be permitted to dominate a little more firmly. She could do it, I'm sure. The opening scene, when she arrives home from war, is lacking in a sense of natural excitement.

Harland Tucker is back with a new nose—a regular Arrow collar affair, which makes him look younger and more frivolous than of yore. Of course, he walked right away with the crisp role of the engaging young pal of his father.

Gayne Whitman as the father just couldn't make himself look anything, for all the flour on his forelock, the mustache, and the age lines, except the fascinating young hero. Not that he didn't assume the part authoritatively; but it is a great pity to be making this young actor drown his engaging personality in such old roles.

As the flapper daughter, Charlotte Treadway did well and looked very, very lovely; but when she tries to cuddle her five feet six in Grave Traver's lap — well, it is rather amusing. She had some real acting moments, and was good in them. But she is a little too tall for some of the baby-stare stuff.

That most excellent actor, Albert Van Antwerp brought sustained illusion, finished technique, power and color to the thankless role of Gillette. When are we going to see him in a star hero role?

Jane Morgan was delightfully catty as Angela Brice; Fanny Yantis, queen of character women, scored heavily as one of the returned ambulance driver ladies, as she does in everything she undertakes; Edith Evans gave an excellent interpretation of the frank, self-respecting working girl in love with the Fair boy; and the others, laughter.

Old McCutcheon Story Reaches Screen at Last

Some fifteen years ago George Barr McCutcheon wrote a story called "The Man From Brodney's" that made about as big a hit as his "Graustark" stories. In all that time the cinema has been struggling along, searching here and there for something new and original, but always picturizing novels and plays that were neither. And somehow they overlooked this one.

Now, when the story is almost out of date, Vitagraph has come through with a picturization that should prove interesting. It is on view at Clune's Theater this week, where all who care to may see it. Years ago it would have made a very fine picture. Now it is "just another."

McCutcheon, apparently, was very far from running out of mythical kingdoms when he wrote the novel. He has two, one somewhere in Europe, and the other an island down in the South Seas. Most of the action occurs in the latter locale.

And action is good. There are more people running around as if they had lost their heads, and fights and duels here than in anything that has been shown recently outside of the chapter-play line.

The big kick of the story comes when the natives of the island start an uprising against the handful of whites, and the only ship in sight refuses to help because of a plague the crew thinks is ravaging the population. However, a United States destroyer comes to the rescue (Hip, Hip, Hoo-Radio!) and then the princess decides she'll forget her royal blood and just be a woman and marry the hero.

J. Warren Kerrigan is the hero. Alice Calhoun appears at her prettiest as the princess. Others in the cast include Wanda Hawley, Miss Du Pont, Pat O'Malley, Kathleen Key and Bertram Grassby.

Some short subjects are also of interest.

ONE OF DOUG'S BEST

"Mark of Zorro," at Alhambra, Fast, Furious and Thrilling

Those who entered the Alhambra Theater Saturday and yesterday to see Douglas Fairbanks in "The Mark of Zorro," which is now being shown there, departed with that feeling of satisfaction that they had seen one of the best pictures in which the vigorous "Doug" has ever appeared.

Here is a strong romance, containing love, action and humor predominating for five full reels. We are given a very vivid insight of the times when the grandees ruled sunny California during the last century before its entrance into the Union.

The plot is mystifying from start to finish. The love interest though powerful, is not as great as the mass of new feats Fairbanks is called upon to perform. These stunts, apart from being thrilling, have a tendency to provoke great

A NEAT VARIATION

"CINDERELLA" SANS GOLDEN SLIPPER IN "ICEBOUND"

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Cinderella not only has her rivals, but she also has her disguises nowadays. Sometimes indeed, she doesn't dress up for the party at all. Then the other girl may borrow the silver slipper, or whatever is substituted for the dainty footwear by the director or the costumer. But if you are wise to the ways of the photoplay you will know that the clothes alone do not make the heroine.

Witness, therefore, this extremely interesting version of our old familiar theme as expounded by William De Mille in "Icebound," which is showing this week at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater. On the surface the picture is just as nice a study as you could wish of the life and habits and customs of the people of snow-imprisoned, conservative New England, as viewed by the combined eyes of Owen Davis, from whose prize play the adaptation was made, and Mr. De Mille and, his scenarist, Clara Berranger. And underneath that surface it is just the same familiar story of love triumphing over all.

The Prince Charming isn't a Prince Charming, except in his attitude of mind—that is, demands that the girls shall be prettily clad. But the Cinderella has a fair godmother, who leaves her a fortune to guard, and the only trouble with her is that she is a little slow at putting on the dazzling garments that pertain.

And so you have it.

"Icebound" is really very neat. The psychology, the smoothness, the taste in the acting is of the finest. Mr. De Mille is nothing if not meticulous in the care with which he seeks out just the right touch of truth and sincerity at just the opportune time.

I could imagine many pictures more exciting than "Icebound." Truth to tell, it is terribly quiet, and the tempo even a bit slow.

But no one will be able to deny its frank and very real humanness, its precise atmosphere, the charm of its intimacy, and the fact that even some of the most conventional situations are high-lighted with a deeply sensitive feeling and with art.

There is nothing startling, nothing more spectacular than a fire in a barn, but the turgid dullness of New England picture has been efficiently, exquisitely, though at times almost too painstakingly, etched.

The general quality of the acting is not quite on a par with that in some of the other De Mille pictures. There is to be sure, one character so exceedingly well drawn, that the player, Edna May Oliver, just about captures the audience every time she appears on the screen.

Lois Wilson is well cast, and has moments of real greatness in her role, though at others she is rather too obvious.

Richard Dix is disappointing. The part he plays is feeble, and his interpretation does not tend to illuminate it with any light and shade. You feel that as long as he disliked his surroundings so much, he should have been man enough to get out of them, although I suppose in staying, he was living up to the conventional New England viewpoint.

Vera Reynolds has some sprightly moments, but this little girl has never equalled her work in Gloria Swanson's film "Prodigal Daughters," that first brought her to the fore. Most of the time she has been miscast.

The character types, especially those done by Ethel Wales, Alice Chaplin, Helen Dubois and Mary Fox reflect Mr. De Mille's discrimination in choosing his cast.

Creatore, who is conducting the overture again this week, won the enthusiastic laurels of applause. The brass section of his orchestra was rather dull in the "Carmen" selection, but the entire body responded well at the climax.

A Sennet comedy, "Scarem Much" will keep them laughing all week. The gags are terribly wild, but good.

"FLOWING GOLD" IS ENTERTAINING MOVIE

After the delicacies of William De Mille, I find myself in the position of having to make a sudden switch to the modern swashbuckling melodrama in all the violence of its mechanically engendered thrills. We have, in fact, in "Flowing Gold" this week at Loew's State Theater, a really fine old-fashioned movie; indeed a sort of supermovie.

Not satisfied with having the oil well blow up and burn, Richard Walton Tully, who made the picture, called on the cyclones and the floods to help him. The gentleman who divided the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments" could hardly have done more, although he might in spots have done it better.

About everything transpires in "Flowing Gold" that you might expect in a rollicking adventure tale. Some of it seems to have a good deal of reality, and a lot of it hasn't anything at all.

But if the plot weakens, the actors work, and they are a good group, for they include Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, who does a character this time; Cissie Fitzgerald, Alice Calhoun, Josephine Crowell, John Roche and Crauford Kent. They are the best in the picture.

For a while Miss Fitzgerald just about runs away with the honors. She's a big laugh as the Suicide Blonde.

"Flowing Gold" is all about the Texas oil boom that happened just after the war. There's human interest stuff about how the poor landowners who suddenly became rich and went in for jewels in such quantities that they looked like a showcase in a pawnshop.

It isn't the sort of human interest stuff that blends well with the romance, but then Miss Nilsson is so attractive in any role that she can make you believe that the hero wouldn't have any trouble falling in love with her. Besides, to make for a friendly feeling all around he took special pains to lick the hide off of her brother in one of the big scenes, just to save him from the wicked wiles of the designing lady whom Miss Fitzgerald played.

"Flowing Gold" is wild and rambling and occasionally terrible. But it will register a good entertainment. Sills and Miss Nilsson do much to make that, as do the others, not overlooking either Bert Woodruff and Charles Sellon, who are also in the cast.

The Fanchon and Marco modern minstrel show is a topnotcher for syncopation, with the Covey Sisters dancing their heads off, and a girl posing in the background wearing a flashing mirror gown.

The comedy, sketching for the 999,999th time the funny sides of film-making in the studios, goes over to a nice obbligato of laughter.

Italian Opera Baritone Sings at Auditorium

John Ardisoni, dramatic baritone, sang in recital yesterday afternoon at Philharmonic. Raymond McFetters, pianist, appeared jointly, playing both solos and accompaniments. In several of the operatic arias Mr. Ardisoni was assisted by Chevalier Guerrieri, well-known opera coach, at the piano.

Mr. Ardisoni sang mostly operatic arias, and several songs in English. It is in Italian numbers that he is best, for he has real understanding and sympathy for the dramatic intensity of the number with relation of the opera from which it is taken. For the same reason he interpreted his numbers with dramatic fire and enthusiasm.

In such numbers as "O Casto Fior" (Massenet,) "Dio Possente" (Gounod,) "Eri tu" (Verdi,) and "Nemico della Patrio" (Giordani,) he was especially at home. His voice is of large dimensions, and well suited to the size of the auditorium in which he sang. His quality was musical. His Italian diction is worthy of special note.

Mr. McFeeters played numbers by Scambati, MacDowell, Chopin, and Liszt. His renditions showed him to be a musician of decided and distinctive attainments.

FURNISHED HOME.

The furnishings will suit anyone as very good taste has been used throughout. This is a bungalow type home with 6 large rooms and the second floor can be converted into 4 more if wanted. The lot is large, with an abundance of shrubbery and flowers. The price and terms will surprise you as the ground value is worth almost as much as the price being asked. PLANTED FIG GARDENS

I have planted and sold 10,000 acres of fig gardens; I have spent $4,000,000 during the last ten years developing these fig gardens; there are over 1400 happy families living on these home acres now.

You may move upon 5 or 10 acres, just enough into bearing to satisfying the city of Fresno, build a home and farm the land; will give you ten years in which to pay.

THE CROPS
WILL PAY FOR THE LAND
I live on the land and developed it myself; you cannot fail, for I will help you to success.
A 5-minute interview with our personal representative will convince you as to the sincerity of our proposition.

FORTY NEW MEN FOR POSTOFFICE

Arcade Station Night Force to Get More Clerks

Postmaster Learns Request Has Been Granted

Business Unusually Heavy O'Brien Declares

Forty new clerks will be added to the force at the Arcade station of the Los Angeles postoffice, according to Postmaster O'Brien, who has received word from Washington that his request for that number of additional clerks has been granted. The new clerks, who are chosen from a civil service list of eligibles, will be added to the night force while men who have been in the service some time will be promoted to day positions at other stations.

"We will be in position to handle the business of the office in good shape when the new clerks begin their work, and we have put on duty twenty-five temporary carriers also authorized by the department," Mr. O'Brien said. "The business of the postoffice in Los Angeles is abnormally heavy now. The usual increase in the number of pieces handled around the first of the month has not subsided as usual after the first few days. The number of letters canceled at the Arcade station last Thursday night was 917,000."

Mr. O'Brien requested the Postoffice Department to allow him twenty-five carriers to add to the regular force, but he was granted only money sufficient to employ twenty-five temporary carriers through the remainder of the quarter, which ends the last of this month. He expects a similar allowance for the next quarter.

The request for forty clerks and twenty-five carriers was made last January. No men have been added to the Postoffice force here since the department last October authorized Mr. O'Brien to employ 166 additional clerks.

MAN FACES CHARGE OF VANDALISM

Caught in Act of Slashing Valuable Painting, Police Officers Say

A strange case of asserted vadalism will be heard in Police Judge Frederickson's court at 10 o'clock this morning when P. Stein will be given a jury trial on a charge of malicious mischief.

The complaint on which Stein was arrested is signed by W. W. Beach, Hollywood business man, who charges that the defendant willfully attempted to destroy several valuable paintings and portraits, among which was a large and valuable painting of "Whittier's Barefoot Boy." The paintings, bearing daubs of paint and numerous knife slashes, will be used as evidence against Stein.

Detectives Officer and Huston, who have gathered evidence in the case, declare that Stein was caught in the act of destroying the painting of the "Barefoot Boy." The painting, at the time, was crated and had been left for a few moments in the rear of an art store, where it was to be exhibited.

Stein, it is charged, had had business dealings with Beach, and it is said that he held an imaginary grievance against the business man.

Among portraits damaged are one of Mr. Beach's mother and father and a Civil War chaplain. A large number of curios and heirlooms were also damaged, and these will be introduced as evidence.

Hearing Today on Cost Division of New Viaducts

A continued hearing before State Railroad Commissioners Seavey and Shore to consider apportionment of cost of six projected viaducts across the Los Angeles River has been called for 10 o'clock this morning. The parties concerned are the city of Los Angeles, county of Los Angeles, Santa Fe Railway Company, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Company, Pacific Electric Railway Company and Los Angeles Railway Company.

At a hearing early last month, it was found that further conferences between these parties would be necessary in order that all the questions involved might be presented in a complete form acceptable to the commission.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS

Gale Gaines, who tells the story, is a soda jerker at Ajariah Bixbie's drug store at Drew City, near New York. He is a rival of wealthy "Rags" Dempster for the affections of pretty Judy Willcox, daughter of his landlady. Spencer Brock, son of the town magnate, is his friend and champion against those who snub him because of his job. One evening he has an argument with a stranger and knocks him out, later discovering to his horror that he has floored Knockout Kelly, a champion fighter. Nate Shapiro, Kelly's manager, makes him a proposition.

ROUND TWO
The Knight in Gale

That same night, when they have all went to bed in Mrs. Willcox's boarding house, I sneaked downstairs, got Judy's schoolbooks off the hall rack, and took 'em up to my room because after I have retired I find that me and sleep can't seem to get acquainted. The first one I open up a French Dictionary. It could have been a Chinese Grammer for all it means to me! The only French I know is "Oo la la" and "Croix de Guerre," and now that the war's supposed to be over, why, both them remarks has went out of use. The next novel is entitled "Al Gebra" and is simply a case of crossing the alphabet with arithmetic. Two passages of Al gets me dizzy. "How much is twice H?" "Divide YZ by 56." How do they get that way?

They's two books left, and in one of 'em is a note saying Judy has got to read this pair for her English Literature Class. I immediately join the Class. One book is called "The Saint's Tragedy," dashed off by a fellow named Charles Kingsley. The other is "The Last of the Barons," a much thicker book, by Edward Bulwer Lytton. I come near firing them out of the window when I see Rags Dempster has wrote his name on the first page of both, right under Judy's!

"What thoughts do these books inspire you with?" is one of the questions Judy will be called upon to answer, according to the slip of paper in 'em. Well, I don't know what thoughts they inspired Judy with, but they is a wise crack in each of 'em which makes me do a piece of thinking, and that's a fact!

"Toil is the true knight's pastime!" claims Charles Kingsley, and "To have fame is a purgatory, to want it is a Hell!" says Eddie Lytton. Well, if Charles is right, then every day I'm a knight, because I was toiling like a Chinese coolie behind Ajariah's soda fountain. As for Eddie's statement, I don't know what it is to have fame, but he said a mouthful when he said to want it is a hell. Take it from me; I know! No dope fiend ever craved to be a success at something—anything! The only thing I really knew anything about was jerking soda, and I was eighteen. But I hadn't been plied with enough education to grab off a job with a future in it, or even a present, for that matter!

I had fame listed in my mind like I see the race horses listed on the programs at the County Fair at Drew City that summer: "Fame, aged, by Work, out of Ambition!" Well, I was going to lead the field under the wire on this imaginary horse, or croak trying.

HIS BUSY DAY

I woke up at 7 a.m. thinking about the heavy date I got with Knockout Kelly's manager at the Commercial House. Whilst I'm hopping around to keep warm under the coldest needle shower in Drew City, if not in the wide, wide world, I remember what Nate Shapiro says to me after I have put Knockout Kelly on the floor. "You're all through mixin' banana pupches and the like, kid—I'll get you more jack for your punches than you'll ever see here!"

I know that means he want to make a prize fighter out of me, and then I think—why not? I have always made it the point to be healthy, and being born husky I've took the greatest care to keep myself that way. When I been eating regular, like I had in Drew City for the past year, I stripped at 142, and if I walk under anything lower than five foot ten, why, I got to bend my head. Of course I had never done no fighting in a ring or much anywheres else either, but still I don't ever remember runing home bawling because somebody picked on me. I've generally always been able to take care of myself since I've had to, and, to the best of my memory, that's been all my life.

The more I think of it whilst I'm getting dressed, the more I'm keen to say it with left hooks instead of with nut sundaes. It's a cinch I'll never set the lake ablaze whilst I'm burled in a small-town drug store, and the question which kept me awake at night when I was errand boy, newsboy, bobbing boy, and printer's boy is troubling me again. That question is, where do I go from here?

Then, again, boss boxers gets as much for mixing up two punches in a ring as I do for mixing up two million punches behind a fountain. I figure a dozen fights mught give me enough jack to lay the foundation of a education and also pull a chair up to a dining-room table three times a day whilst I'm doing it. I seen in the newspapers that Knockout Kelly, for the example, is to get five thousand dollars for boxing Jackie Frayne. And I knocked Kelly flat on his back with one punch! I think with a few more punches I can get a education, with a education I can get Judy Willcox, with Judy Willcox I can get anything!

At breakfast Mrs. Willcox asked me, land's sakes what am I thinking about, when I shake the salt and pepper in my coffee and pour the cream on my fried eggs. Without hardly knowing what I'm saying, I tell her I'm thinking about Punch and Judy, which is true, but she stares at me so long I know my face is red, so I beat it. By the time I have got the fountain all polished up and iced for the day, I have decided to take Nate Shapiro up.

He's name is a.m. as the time he wants to see me, and it's a good hour after that when I left the Commercial House a different fellow than what I was when I went in there. When I go up to see Nate Shapiro I got matters all set in my mind that I'm going to make my living boxing. Where I come out, I don't know. To be a professional scrapper a fellow needs a whole lot more stuff than just the ability to punch somebody in the jaw and the willingness to accept a duplicate in return. You got to study the game like you study to be a first-class doctor, lawyer, plumber or banker. But then if you get to the top of it, you can put the first-class doctor, lawyer, plumber, and banker on your pay roll and never miss the money!

"When will I have my first bout?" I asked Shapiro. "In a week or so, that is, roughly?"

"Roughly is right!" grins the hard-faced Shapiro. "Roughly is the way I want you to act in your first fight—not bout. But toss you into a ring inside of a week? Be yourself! It'll take you a dozen weeks to learn that first rule of boxin'."

"What's the first rule?" I says.

"Always keep your shoulder blades off the canvas!" says Shapiro. Don't laugh. Forgettin' 'at rule some day will beat Dempsey!"

"Well, how long before I would fight, then?" I says.

"About six months," says Shapiro—"'at's if you show some stuff!" He comes over to the bed where I have sit down, or rather sunk down, when I hear the "six months!" I'd figured that in six months I'd either be whipped out of boxing or the biggest thing in it. "Don't take it so hard," goes on Shapiro, patting my arm; "I could let you step next week with some tenth-rater, he'd paste you silly, break your heart, cure you of ever liftin' your hands again to even protect yourself and I'd lose a possible champ. Believe me, buddy, I ain't in this box-fight game for the laughs in it. I'm thinking of Nate Shapiro first, last, and all the time! It wouldn't hurt my nose if you got yours broke, but it would hurt my bank-roll, and 'at's one place I can't take a punch! I know how all you kids feels when you've knocked somebody stiff for the first time. Take you, for instance—you think because you flattened K. O. Kelly with a lucky punch 'at you're the cat's whiskers, now don't you?"

"Well, I—ah—" I begin to bashful.

"Sure!" butts in Shapiro, "I don't think too much of that hit—'at's all. You was to see her K. O. had his head and he thought you was the same way he thought he Lillian Gish! You took the completest surprise, ounce gloves on the back flip you into a ring and K. O. Kelly would on in less than 4 round, with in' up a sweat!

"Why, I don't know about you at all. How is you can fight with your fists or your nose broke? know you'll get up after a knock-down? know your name.

"Gale Gaines," I say, gloomier every minute.

"'At's a good one, Shapiro. "Easy to mean. I was afraid have a moanin' baffle the announcer name!" I says quickly.

"O. K.," Shapiro says. "If you do business, you good one, don't for you goaled Kelly with a I got a hunch we 'bout it! Well 'ng on 'at. They's and 'One-Punch and Smith"! 'At rolls gue easy and it Yea, sir, 'at 'Six-goin' to make the boy corner thoughtful, it won't!"

"It'll make me I says. "That's up to! Now, I got for the six —learning my trade ten-minute ones. Rits! Another thing might as well buy —you blow up as for scuffle and you'll "Who's Through drop you like a me somethin', you take it—and you shoot at!"

I get up after a to tell Shapiro to again and let to see what you about it—Judy Brock.
